TWENTY EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY.

The American Home Missionary Society held its Twenty Eighth Anniversary, in the Mercer street Presbyterian Church, New York, on Wednesday evening, May 10th, 1854.

Henry Dwight, Esq., President of the Society, occupied the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. James W. McLane, D. D., of Williamsburgh, N. Y.

The Treasurer's Report was read by Mr. Jasper Corning, the Treasurer of the Society.

An abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee, was presented by Rev. David B. Coe, one of the Secretaries.

On motion of Rev. John H. Pettingell, of Albany, N. Y., seconded by Rev. John Spaulding, of New York,

Resolved, That the Reports now presented be adopted, and published under the direction of the Executive Committee.

On motion of Rev. Isaac H. Brayton, of California, seconded by Rev. Benjamin Tappan, D. D., of Augusta, Maine,

Resolved, That the Providence of God points to our Pacific coast, as a missionary field of unsurpassed interest and importance.

On motion of Rev. George Richards, of Boston, seconded by Rev. Thomas H. Skinner, Jr., of New York,

Resolved, That Scepticism, the growth and bane of Free Institutions, must find its antidote in a preached Gospel.

On motion of Rev. George Thacher, of New York, seconded by the Rev. Henry A. Rowland, D. D., of Honesdale, Penn.,

Resolved, That the history of this Society, distinguished as it has been by every element of success, augurs a future of unexampled prosperity, in its relations to the growth and the glory both of our Country and the Church of God.

Able and eloquent addresses, in support of the foregoing resolutions, were delivered by the gentlemen who severally moved them, and the interest of the occasion was increased by the appropriate and skillful services of the Choir of the Mercer Street Church, under the direction of George F. Root, Esq.

Art. 8. Every Auxiliary Society, which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a missionary or missionaries to labor in such field as it may designate; at least to the amount of its contributions; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

Art. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution without a vote of two thirds of the members present at an annual meeting; nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

TWENTY EIGHTH REPORT.

We were permitted, at the last Anniversary, to congratulate the Society that the lives of all its officers and of so many of its patrons and friends had been preserved during the year. It is our painful duty now, to record the desolations which death has made in our ranks, in the removal to their reward on high of fathers and brethren who have been with us from the beginning, and whose counsels and advocacy and toil have been identified with our prosperity. Rev. Joshua Bates, D. D., and Rev. Justin Edwards, D. D.—Vice Presidents of the Society; and Rev. Eliphalet W. Gilbert, D. D.—one of its Directors, have ceased from their labors and their works do follow them.

But the stroke which has been most afflictive, has fallen upon one who has never before been absent from an Anniversary of this Society—whose spirit, we cannot but believe, is hovering with intense interest over us now—and whose life and labors form so prominent a feature in the history of the Institution. Rev. Charles Hall, D. D.—one of the Secretaries for Correspondence, departed this life, on the 31st of October last. He served the Society with eminent ability and faithfulness for more than twenty six years. His high order of talent, his intellectual furniture and cultivation, his wakefulness, sagacity and reliableness in counsel —his heart, glowing constantly with the love of Christ, and in deep sympathy with suffering and needy humanity everywhere, were consecrated unreservedly to the missionary work, and fitted him for distinguished usefulness in the discharge of its varied and responsible offices. In his life, he has given us a beautiful illustration of christian simplicity and singleness of purpose—of what a feeble man, walking by faith and mighty in prayer, and of unwearied patience in his daily toil, can accomplish for the glory of God and the good of men. And in his death, he has taught us how the presence of Jesus and the power of his resurrection can console the spirit under bodily suffering, and bear it away in triumph to its eternal home. May we be admonished, by the bereavement, to have our loins girt about and our lamps trimmed and burning!

Five of the missionaries of the Society have also died during the year—Rev. Peter Brucker and Rev. Alanson Saunders, in Ohio; Rev. John N. Geitz, in Illinois; Rev. Henry E. Eastman and Rev. Richard Sanders, in Michigan.

The details of the Society's operations are embraced in the following

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

The number of ministers of the Gospel whose names are found in the preceding General Table, together with those engaged in superintending the missionary work, and who are mentioned in connection with the respective Auxiliaries and Agents, is 1,047.

Of these, 880 were in commission at the date of the last Report, and 167 have been since appointed.

They have been distributed in 27 different States and Territories, as follows: in Maine, 93; New Hampshire, 46; Vermont, 57; Massachusetts, 44; Rhode Island, 10; Connecticut, 42; New York, 154; New Jersey, 10; Pennsylvania, 44; Delaware, 2; Maryland, 2; District of Columbia, 1; Virginia, 6; Georgia, 1; Arkansas, 1; Tennessee, 3; Kentucky, 6; Ohio, 110; Indiana, 43; Illinois, 105; Missouri, 28, Michigan, 76; Wisconsin, 87; Iowa, 56; Minnesota, 8; California, 7; Oregon, 5.

This distribution gives to the New England States, 292; the Middle States, 214; the Southern States, 11; the Western States and the Pacific Coast, 530.

Of the whole number in commission, 590 have been pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; 280 have ministered to two or three congregations each, and 177 have extended their labors over still wider fields.

The aggregate of ministerial labor performed, is 870 years.

The number of congregations and missionary stations which have been fully supplied, or where the Gospel has been preached at stated intervals, is 2,140; while many others have enjoyed the occasional ministrations of the word.

Ten missionaries have been in commission as pastors or stated supplies of churches of colored people; and 65 have preached in foreign languages—18 to Welsh and 40 to German congregations, and others to congregations of Norwegians, Swedes, Swiss, Hollanders and Frenchmen.

The number of missionaries to congregations of Germans, is seven less than last year. The number would have beeen increased instead of being diminished, could satisfactory evidence have been obtained, that the churches applying for aid were being built on a truly evangelical basis—that regeneration by the Spirit of God was made an indispensable qualification for church-membership. A careful examination of many individual cases, has increased the conviction of former years, that not a few of the churches of Germans seeking the assistance of the Society, are exceedingly lax in their reception of members and in the exercise of gospel discipline; that the church and state system of the old country—by which well nigh every one is a member of the church—has its influence in filling up churches here with those who make no profession of having been born again, and in retaining within them those who are immoral in their lives and a reproach to the christian name. So strong is the demand for membership in the church, free admission to the Lord's Supper and the rites of baptism and confirmation that, not unfrequently, ministers, who are themselves evangelical in sentiment and of experimental piety and the few of like faith and spirit associated with them, are not able to guard the fold of Christ against the entrance of the unconverted and the ungodly. Little or no distinction, in these circumstances, is made between the church and the world. The influence of the ministry is counteracted, and the last state of such a people is worse than the first. While we earnestly desire to give the Gospel, in the greatest measure practicable, to the German population in the midst of us and coming in such numbers to our shores, yet we cannot think its legitimate influences are to be secured by extending aid to churches of this description, or to those whose standard of qualifications for membership is little more than a moral life, an intellectual assent to the doctrines of the Gospel, a serious state of mind, or an expressed desire to become a Christian. And the Committee would call the attention of Auxiliaries and Agencies, Committees of Missions and individuals who recommend applications, to the importance of a thorough examination, not only into the character and qualifications of ministers, but also into the principles and practices of the churches, that the Society may be certified, in all cases, that they are building upon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone.

The number of Sabbath school Scholars connected with the missionary churches and stations is not far from 65,400.

The contributions to benevolent objects, reported by 655 missionaries, amount to $30,106 88.

The additions to the churches, as nearly as can be ascertained, have been 6,025—viz., 3,310 on profession of their faith, and 2,715

by letters from other churches. During the latter part of the year especially, many of the churches have been visited with seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Sixty-two missionaries make particular mention in their reports of revivals of religion, during the year, in the congregations to which they have ministered; some of which have been of more than ordinary interest and power. The number of hopeful conversions, reported by 374 missionaries, is 2,816.

We have grateful evidences of the progress of the Society, in the new fields of labor which have been entered, and in the advances made in those previously occupied towards the permanent establishment of gospel institutions. Fifty churches have been organized in connection with the labors of the missionaries, during the year; and forty five have become self sustaining—have passed from the list of beneficiaries to that of benefactors—cordial and efficient co-workers with us, in extending the blessings of salvation to those who still need the assistance of their more favored brethren. Greater progress has been made in the completion and erection of church edifices than in any former year; encouraged and aided, as the churches have been, by the liberality of their respective denominations. Sixty five houses of worship have been completed; forty nine repaired or improved; and eighty eight are in the process of erection. The number completed is eleven greater, and the number, the building of which has been commenced, is twenty two greater than the numbers reported last year. Twenty churches have provided for their ministers comfortable parsonages. Ninety seven young men, in connection with the missionary churches—including many sons of missionaries—are reported as in different stages of preparation for the gospel ministry.

The number of missionaries is forty less than was reported last year. In explanation it should be observed, in addition to what has been said of the difficulty of increasing appropriations to German congregations: (1) That more than half of this diminution is in the eastern States, where the necessity for aid is diminishing, and from whence missionary resources are transferred in larger proportions annually to our new settlements. (2) The entire diminution is less than the number that, in different parts of the country, have been taken from the list of the Society, in consequence of their support being assumed by their people. The work, therefore, has not been diminished; the responsibility of it has only been transferred from the Society to self-supporting churches, and consequently is to be counted as an important item of Home Missionary success. (3) The amount of labor, performed by the missionaries who have continued in commission, has not been diminished in proportion to their number; it has been but eight years less than in the previous year; showing that the average term of missionary service has been increased, and that the tendency of the Society's appropriations is to stability and permanent relations. (4) Another most serious embarrassment in the way of increasing the number of laborers has been, the difficulty of obtaining men of suitable qualifications for the work to be done. One hundred and sixty seven have been commissioned, who were not in the service of the society the year preceding. But that number has not enabled us to supply the places of those whose commissions we have not had occasion to renew, and to make the advances in occupying new fields of promise which their necessities have demanded. During some portion of the autumn and winter, the resources of the Society fell short of meeting existing pledges, and caution in regard to increasing them became necessary. But during the larger part of the year, the invitation and the pressure upon the laborers to enter the more needy portions of the vineyard have been unceasing. But the men were not to be found. The conviction is forced upon us by our own experience more and more deeply every year, as it must be upon every thoughtful and observing christian mind, that men of the character and qualifications which the service of the church requires, are not coming into the ministry in such numbers as her exigencies demand. If this deficiency is to increase, it may well be inquired with the deepest concernment, how are the destitute to receive the bread of life, or our abler congregations to retain the ministry of the word. Is it not time for the disciples of Christ, everywhere, to lift up their cry, with unwonted and unceasing importunity, to the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest?

APPOINTMENT OF A SECRETARY FOR CORRESPONDENCE.

The Executive Committee, in January last, made choice of Rev. Daniel P. Noyes, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, N. Y., as one of the Secretaries for Correspondence, to supply the place made vacant by the decease of Rev. Dr. Hall. The church to which he had ministered, the last five years, generously relinquished him to the service of the Society, and, on the first of April last, he entered upon the duties of the office.

THE TREASURY.

Resources.—The balance in the Treasury, April 1, 1853, was $7,202 15. The receipts of the succeeding twelve months have been $191,209 07; making the resources of the year, $198,411 22.

Liabilities.—There was due to missionaries, at the date of the last Report, $10,744 77. There have since become due, $184,731 87; making the total of liabilities, $195,476 64.

Payments.—Of this sum, $184,025 76 have been paid; leaving $11,450 88 still due to missionaries for labor performed. Towards liquidating these claims and redeeming the additional pledges in commissions, which have not yet expired—making in all $85,191 48—there is a balance in the Treasury of $14,385 46; the greater part of it received in payment of legacies near the close of the year.

The receipts above reported, exceed those of any former year, by $19,474 83. The amount in payment of legacies has been $37,280 47,—greater than the previous year, by $4,610 75; leaving the amount of increase from the regular contributions of the churches, $14,864 08.

The expenditures have exceeded those of the last year, by $9,586 52. The excess has been occasioned chiefly by the heavy expenses of the missions on the Pacific coast, and by enlarged appropriations, in connection with efforts on the part of the churches aided, to increase the compensation of the missionaries. From these causes, the average cost of a year's labor—$212—has been thirteen dollars greater than the previous year.

MISSIONARY SALARIES.

The increased expenses of living have rendered the salaries of ministers, which have not been raised in a corresponding proportion, inadequate, in very many cases, for a comfortable support. The evils resulting from it to the churches are of most serious import, and may well awaken concern among her most intelligent and devoted members. The minister whose church receives aid from a missionary society in making up his stipulated salary, suffers from this cause, in common with his brethren in other churches. Nor can the missionary society relieve him at once. There must be a change of sentiment in the churches—a juster sense of the minister's necessities and claims. The missionary society derives its funds from churches, many of which are paying their own ministers but little more than he receives. And the very circumstances which create the necessity for his having a larger salary, make his own people, not unfrequently, better able to raise it. If the Society had the means of increasing the salaries of missionaries at once to the desired amount, it would not be charity to the churches to do for them what they had increased ability to do for themselves; nor would it be justice to the contributors to bestow their benefactions on those who did not give, as God had prospered them, for the support of their own gospel institutions. If the conductors of a missionary society did not exercise great vigilance at this point, they would have but little entrusted to their hands for disbursement. The Committee, therefore, have directed their attention especially to the encouragement of the churches aided in efforts to raise a greater amount among themselves for the support of their ministers, and have expressed a willingness, where this is done, to increase, if need be, the appropriations from the Treasury of the Society. An extended and laborious correspondence has been carried on with individual churches, as their applications have been renewed, for the accomplishment of this object, and in most cases with the happiest results. This course the Committee purpose steadily to pursue; and if the churches aided will coöperate with them according to their ability, and the patrons of the Society will enlarge their contributions for this purpose, as many have generously done the last year, the much needed relief may be secured, the heart of the care-worn laborer be cheered, and increased vitality and power be given to the divinely appointed instrumentality for the salvation of men. To accomplish this object, and to sustain and increase its missions on the Pacific, as the providence of God demands, and as is proposed in another part of this report, and to enter every other field white for the harvest which shall invite the reapers, it is hardly necessary that we should assure the patrons of the Society that a great enlargement of its pecuniary resources will be indispensable.

COMPARATIVE RESULTS.

The following table gives a comparative view of the amount of receipts, expenditures, number of missionaries, new appointments, congregations and missionary districts, years of labor performed, additions to the churches, and pupils in Sabbath schools, for each year since the organization of the Society.

It also exhibits, in the tenth column, the average expenditure, each year, for a year of missionary labor, obtained by dividing the sum total of the expenditures for the year, by the number of years of labor performed. And in the eleventh column, by dividing the sum total of the expenditures of each year by the number of missionaries employed, is shown what the average to a missionary would be, if the expenditures were equally apportioned among them.

Remarks.—1. From the foregoing table it will be seen that in each of the ten years, from 1830 to 1840, and from 1840 to 1850, the receipts were more than doubled.

2. The total of receipts, for the twenty eight years, is $2,728,-363 71.

3. The total of years of labor is 15,706. These years are reckoned in each report, by adding together the months of labor which the missionaries have actually performed.

4. The average expenditure for a year of missionary labor, includes the entire cost to the Society of obtaining the missionary, defraying his expenses to his field, and sustaining him on it, as well as all the expenses of conducting the Institution. The increased average of recent years, has been occasioned by the greater number of those who have held full commissions, and the expensiveness of more distant missions—particularly of those on the Pacific coast—and the larger appropriations that have become necessary, as the expenses of living have increased, to secure to the missionary a comfortable support.

5. The difference between the annual average expenditure to a missionary and the average for a year's labor, is occasioned by the fact that a missionary is named and counted in a report, though in some cases he may have labored but a fraction of the year.

6. The whole number of additions to the churches is 126,705.

7. The fifth column—that of new appointments—shows how many have to be called in each year, to supply the places of those whose support is assumed by the people, the vacancies occasioned by death, sickness, removals and other changes, and to make the increase, if there be any, over the number of the preceding year.

DISTRIBUTION OF MISSIONARIES, No. 1.

PRINCIPAL AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES AND MISSIONARY FIELDS.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

WILLIAM T. DWIGHT, D. D., President; JOHN HOW, Esq., Treasurer; BENJAMIN TAPPAN, D. D., Secretary. Office at Portland.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, 1854, were $12,811 54; there has been received into the Treasury of the Parent Society, also, from the State, $148. The expenditures, for the same period, were $13,211 87.

The number of missionaries in commission has been ninety three. The fields of their labor comprise 107 churches, and more than 30 towns and plantations in which no churches exist. There has been gratifying evidence of progress in the installment of pastors, the erection of houses of worship, the prosperity of Sabbath schools, and additions to the number of the faithful under the gentle effusions of the Spirit.

Still, the imperious necessities of this wide and extended field are but partially met. "There are some places in the State where the people have never known by experience the benefits of a settled gospel ministry. For years, they have lived without a christian pastor, without stated instructions in things pertaining to God, without public worship. In others, where once religious privileges were enjoyed, the lights have been removed from the golden candlesticks, and but little ground of hope appears that they will soon be filled with any other than those wandering, wavering, waning lights, which serve rather to beguile and bewilder the indiscreet but anxious traveler, than to show him the safe way to the city of habitations."

"That they have no more to report of aggressions upon the moral wilderness—of new ground broken up by the spiritual husbandman—of new lands occupied by soldiers of Christ—the Trustees ascribe to three causes: the want of more men, the want of more money, and the slowness of churches now assisted in attaining a self-supporting condition."

While their hearts are thus burdened by the moral desolations immediately around them, they say, nevertheless, that "in efforts to fill the western portions of our widely extended country with christian institutions, and especially with that institution around which all good influences cluster, and from which most of them emanate—the christian ministry—we of the East may well feel a deep interest. For where in the West are not children of the East to be found? And while there they come in contact with the Campbellite, the Mormonite, the papist, the infidel, the atheist, how earnestly to be desired that they may find the devoted faithful teacher of a pure Christianity, by whose instructions they may be fortified against those various forms of error and vice by which their religious faith and their moral principles will be assailed! How desirable, too, that before their departure they may be so well instructed in the grand truths of the Gospel, and by the grace of God so imbued with its spirit, as not only to maintain their own integrity, but to spread around them a healthful influence, and to do their part in preserving and extending whatsoever things are true and right and conducive to the public welfare."

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

NATHANIEL BOUTON, D. D., President; Rev. BENJAMIN P. STONE, Secretary and Treasurer. Office at Concord.

Forty six missionaries have been in connection with this Society during the year. They have ministered to 49 different congregations, and have performed an aggregate of 34 years of ministerial labor. Three churches have become independent of missionary aid, and others have made advances in pecuniary strength and external prosperity. One house of worship has been built, and another repaired; and in several of the congregations there has been more than usual religious interest. In connection with 45 of the churches, there are 1,900 communicants; and the pupils in their Sabbath schools number 3,588.

The receipts for the year ending March 1st, 1854, were $9,115 69, of which $2,801 06 was in payment of legacies; and the expenditures within the State, $4,610 69. Of the amount received, $2,668 42 was designated by the donors for the Parent Society, and $1,500 has been paid into its treasury by vote of the Trustees. There has also been received into the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, from churches and individuals in New Hampshire, and in payment of legacies, the further sum of $2,270 45,—making the total received within the State for the general cause, $11,386 14; and the amount transmitted through the Parent Society to the western field, $6,438 87. This exceeds the receipts of the Society the year preceding, by $3,825 79; and the amount expended beyond its bounds is greater, by $3,733 65.

The Home Missionary work is prosecuted by christian men in New Hampshire, with an intelligent, steadfast purpose, and with increasing vigor and liberality. First of all, would they give to every feeble church and destitute scattered settlement within their bounds the ministry of reconciliation. But this does not diminish, it fosters and enlarges their interest in the national work. "While we are moved," say the Trustees in their last Report, "by a natural affection for kindred and friends, and by a stronger love than that of father or mother, brother or sister, to build up the desolations of New Hampshire, let the same noble principles impel us forward in the more enlarged work of laying new foundations for our American Zion all over the land. Let not our Home Missionary action be so local as to overlook the great common good; thus failing, by its own limitations, to reach all the high purposes to which it should ever be directed. Nor let it be so general as to expend its energies at the expense of the local. A Home Missionary benevolence that, having first made provision for the necessities which are nearer, diverges abroad to those more remote, is the only benevolence that is not contracted nor limited, but liberal, apostolic, and christian."

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Hon. Erastus Fairbanks, President; C. W. Storrs, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. J. F. Stone, Secretary. Office at Montpelier.

The receipts of this Society, for the year, have been $6,484 69; and its expenditures, $6,613 72. There has been paid also from the State into the Treasury of the Parent Society—including $2,390 in settlement of legacies—the sum of $3,033 98; making the amount of Home Missionary receipts from the State, $9,518 67.

Fifty seven missionaries have been in commission. The labors of several of them have been accompanied by the special manifestations of the divine Spirit; and gradual progress has been made in some of the congregations towards self-support. Other churches have been seriously diminished by removals to the West; some of them have lost more than one third of their strength; and several churches which had been independent of the Society for years, have recently been so weakened by emigration, as to be compelled to fall back upon it for help. The Secretary states, that "it is true of nearly all the churches in the State, that more members have gone out from them to other parts of the country, since their organization, than now remain. Many of the churches have dismissed twice the number, and a few of them six times the number, they now contain. From this cause, and from removals by death, and the absence of that influence from on high so indispensable for replenishing the churches, several have become extinct, and not less than twenty six fields, which have been occupied during some portion of the last six years as missionary ground, are now destitute."

In view of facts like these, the Directors of the Society put the inquiry with great pertinence and force—and we would that we could echo it in every sanctuary, and by every christian fireside, and cause it to quicken the heartbeatings of every disciple in Vermont—"What shall be done? What, in the circumstances, is the duty of the friends of Christ in Vermont? It has become a serious question with many of the benevolent, whether our churches ought not to concentrate their contributions, in larger proportion, upon the cultivation of our own State; not for the sake of Vermont merely, nor mainly, nor yet because it is our State; but in order, most effectually, to subserve the cause of Christ throughout our country and the world. To leave the feeble churches—churches that have been rendered feeble by their members being transferred to other parts—to die, will be to convert fields hitherto fruitful in contributions for benevolence and in christian missionaries, and teachers and church members for the West, and for all parts of the land, into worse than barren wastes. Let these churches die—let the influence of the living ministry, of the preached Gospel, of the praying and exemplary churches, cease to be felt—and though the tide of emigration shall still continue, it shall not bear upon its bosom those who shall prove the salt of the earth and the light of the world. Far different will be the influence going out from Vermont upon other States and other lands, when the light of her own sanctuaries shall have ceased to shine, and a generation shall have grown up without the moulding, the purifying, and elevating influences of the Gospel of Christ."

MASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

LEONARD WOODS, D. D., President; BENJAMIN PERKINS, Esq., Treasurer; JOSEPH S. CLARK, D. D., Secretary. Office in Boston.

The receipts of this Society for the year ending March 1st, 1854, were $34,295 59. Its expenditures, within the State, were $6,897 25. There was remitted from its Treasury to the Parent Society, $26,000; and from the State there was also received into the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society—in payment of legacies, $4,115 63, from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,785, and from congregations and individuals, $6,101 79—in all $12,002 42; making the total for the Home Missionary cause from this State, $46,298 01; exceeding the amount of the year preceding, by $1,622 21; and falling short of one fourth of the entire receipts of the National Society, less than it exceeded that proportion the year before. The amount which has been expended for the establishment of christian institutions in our new settlements, is $38,002 42.

Forty four missionaries have been in commission—a smaller number than has been reported before, since the connection of the Auxiliary with the Parent Institution, and but little more than half the number of some former years; showing the progress of the churches towards self-support, and giving renewed assurance that every waste place yet remaining in Massachusetts, shall be made to blossom. The average number of families under the spiritual watch of a Missionary, is 27, who furnish an average Sabbath congregation of 104; making in the aggregate, 1,267 families, and 6,024 regular attendants on public worship. About half of those who visit the sanctuary, viz., 3,012, are connected with the Sabbath schools.

"Every year," say the Executive Committee, in their last report, "brings new evidence that the grand results of Home Missions are to be reached not so much by a sudden and startling movement among the masses, as by a silent and gradual change. The recovery of 'old wastes,' and the culture of new fields in Massachusetts, embracing the ground occupied by nearly two fifths of all the churches belonging to our denomination in the State, has been accomplished in this way." And the report closes with a most pertinent and forcible illustration of the truth, that this is to be expected on all parts of the field, inasmuch as it is the established law of development in the Gospel kingdom.

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. Thomas Shepard, President; Gilbert Richmond, Esq., Providence, Treasurer; Rev. Constantine Blodgett, Pawtucket, Secretary.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, 1854—including $750 from the Connecticut Missionary Society—were $1,261 60; and the expenditures, for the same period, $1,181 64. There were also remitted from the State to the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, $589 60.

Ten missionaries have been engaged in the service of the Society. "While the year," says the Secretary, "has not been marked by revivals of religion and rapid advancement in any of our churches, it has been a year of general harmony and order, carrying still onward the demonstration of the fact that our churches and congregations are exerting a sound influence upon all good and valuable interests among the people of the State. Building slowly as they seem to, they still build securely, and for many generations."

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. Horace Hooker, Secretary; E. W. Parsons, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Hartford.

The receipts of this Auxiliary for the year ending March 1st, 1854, were $8,022. Its expenditures, within the State, were $3,702 38; $750 were remitted to the Rhode Island Home Missionary Society, and $1,000 to the Parent Institution. There has also been received into the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society from this State, in payment of legacies, $6,892 20, from congregations and individuals, $15,820 39—making the total for the cause, $30,735 56. Of this sum, $27,033 18 have gone to give the blessings of the Gospel to the destitute beyond the boundaries of the State. The Home Missionary contributions of Connecticut are exceeded only by the much larger States of Massachusetts and New York; and, in comparison with her population, she far surpasses the generous benefactions of these States. Even Massachusetts would have to add more than $30,000 to her sum total to be her equal.

Forty two missionaries have been in commission in this State during some portion of the year. Eight churches which have been aided, it is expected will need the fostering care of the Society no longer. "The churches under our care," says the Secretary, "almost without exception, have enjoyed harmony, and many of them give no doubtful indications of increasing vigor. Others who have not added to their numbers and pecuniary ability, have grown in moral power."

"Of the thirty four churches that now remain on our list, eight are in manufacturing villages, which absorb population from other quarters rather than send out their own. Twenty six occupy localities from which emigration is constant, and not small in comparison with the number of inhabitants. The feebleness of these churches arises in most cases from this very fact. Now, I would regard each of them as a Missionary Society, Auxiliary, if you please, to the American Home Missionary Society, sending out yearly, to every part of our country—especially to the West—a large number of missionaries, men, women, and children, trained indirectly by Home Missions, under the religious, literary, and domestic influences of Connecticut. They go forth, not commissioned and supported by others, but self-moved and self-sustained, laying broad and deep the foundations of society in the new settlements, transfusing their sentiments and habits throughout the land, and fellow-workers with the commissioned heralds of the Gospel in promoting the welfare of the christian church. The influence of such a band is beyond estimate; but whatever it be, no small share may be justly assumed as the legitimate result of Home Missions."

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

THOMAS FLEMING, Esq., President; HENRY PERKINS, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. ROBERT ADAIR, Secretary. Office, Philadelphia.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, 1854, were $13,345 68. Its expenditures on the field of its operations were, $8,896 89; $45 were remitted to the Parent Institution; and $4,031 33 invested as directed by the wills of testators. There were also received into the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society from the field of this Auxiliary, in payment of legacies $970 00, as the donations of churches and individuals $1,913 84,—in all, $2,088 84, making the total for the cause $16,229 52; exceeding the amount of the preceding year, by $5,750 51.

The number of missionaries in commission has been fifty nine, viz., 44 in Pennsylvania; 10 in New Jersey; 2 in Delaware; 2 in Maryland; and 1 in the District of Columbia. Six houses of worship have been completed, and four others are in the process of erection; two parsonages have been built, and another freed from embarrassment; one church debt of eighteen years' standing has been canceled; one congregation has become self-supporting; and some of the churches have enjoyed seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

"Our field," says the Secretary, "is becoming more important, every year, as a region for Home Missionary operations. The public improvements are opening new and interesting places for the efforts of our Society, and all that we need to take possession of them, are the requisite means and the men qualified for the work." The last Report of the Society urges the importance of a speedy and efficient occupancy of these openings. We would commend the appeal to the intelligence, the patriotism, and the piety of every patron of the Institution. "It would be a suicidal policy," say the Committee, "to overlook these inviting fields—the new and thriving towns that are springing up, as if by magic, along our streams and railroads—and to leave them to be pre-occupied by irreligion, infidelity or Romanism. These places must be occupied. Here churches must be organized, houses of worship erected, the heralds of the cross stationed, and the institutions of religion established. A wise general will leave no fort unoccupied that may be of advantage to him, or that may subserve the cause of the enemy. As prudent overseers of the field committed to our care, we must act with promptness and energy in planting the Gospel in such places, if, peradventure, we may hereby forestall the enemy of God and man."

CENTRAL AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. Theodore Spencer, Secretary; J. E. Warner, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Utica.

Another afflictive dispensation of Providence has visited this Agency. Within seven years, three devoted servants of Christ who have successively filled the office of Secretary, have been called away by death.

Rev. Richard F. Cleveland, who entered upon the duties of this office in the autumn of 1850, was compelled by the gradual failure of his health, to resign the post in September last. He, at the same time, accepted a call to the pastorship of a church, in the hope that a change in his mode of life, would prove beneficial to his health. He was permitted to preach, however, but a single Sabbath in this new relation, when he was prostrated by a sudden attack of disease, and on the 1st of October last, he entered into rest. The Board of Agency express their high appreciation of the ability and zeal with which he prosecuted his abundant labors, and the gratifying assurance that his memory is still hallowed in the hearts of the ministers and people with whom he came in contact in his official labors, and that its influence is still a blessing to the cause he so much loved. His successor has not yet been appointed; but the office labors of the Agency, in the Secretary's department, are performed, temporarily, by Rev. THEODORE SPENCER, of Utica.

There have been fifty missionaries under commission on this field during the past year. They have performed thirty seven years of missionary service, in connection with fifty seven congregations and missionary districts; and have supplied about five thousand souls with the stated ministrations of the Gospel.

Notwithstanding the lack of service occasioned by the decease of the Secretary, the receipts of the Agency, for the year, have been $4,827 77. There have also been remitted from this field directly to the Treasury of the Society, $1,783 97, making a total of $6,611 74. Of this sum $4,172 20 have been expended for missionary labor within the bounds of the Agency.

The Report of the Board bears testimony to the zeal and fidelity with which the missionaries have prosecuted their labors, amid the various discouragements incident to this form of service, and, in many cases, under great embarrassment arising from inadequate support. Gratifying evidence is also furnished, that their labors have not been in vain in the Lord. Several of the churches have been blessed with the reviving influences of the Holy Spirit, the graces of many Christians have been quickened, and a considerable number have been converted to Christ. The churches generally, which have not been favored with special seasons of revival, have still enjoyed an ordinary measure of external and spiritual prosperity. Sabbath schools and Bible classes have been generally sustained, and new ones have been formed in many localities; the cause of Temperance, in its new phase, has received the unanimous and cordial support of the missionaries, and the interests of education have, in various ways, been greatly advanced by their efforts.

A portion of the churches, on this field, now dependent upon missionary aid, were once strong in numbers and resources, and have been reduced to their present condition of feebleness chiefly by emigration. The Report states that "a church, which has recently applied for aid, was once one of the largest and most flourishing churches in one of the richest counties. A single church in Wisconsin, now numbers thirty six communicants who were once its members. They have also sent out towards the setting sun five of their deacons, leaving but one deacon and thirty four members to maintain the public altar in one of the best towns in the county. The necessity seems imperative, that such churches should be assisted until under the divine blessing, they recover strength by conversions from the world; and we cannot regret, in view of the paramount claims of the great West, that those broad streams of christian influence have been poured forth, even at such expense to the 'parent fountains.'

"It has been mentioned, in previous years, that much of the territory embraced by this Agency, is more sparsely populated than any other portion of the Middle States, and that its destitutions must, for a long time to come, furnish a wide and important field of missionary labor, similar to that which we are performing in the newly settled portions of the West. The time seems to have arrived when these northern counties, which have hitherto remained an almost unbroken wilderness, are to teem with a numerous population. Railroads are being constructed in various directions through them; their rich lands are being thrown open to the industry of the world, and their proximity to the seaboard enhances their value, and insures their sale and occupation. Populous towns and villages will soon draw largely upon our resources for the means of grace, and multitudes of souls, we doubt not, are there to be born unto God, who shall swell the anthems of redeeming grace."

WESTERN AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. John A. Murray, Secretary; W. T. Scott, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Geneva.

During the past year, fifty three missionaries have labored on this field under commissions from this Society, and have preached statedly to fifty eight congregations. One of these missionaries has been sustained by the funds of the Presbytery of Rochester.

The amount expended in the missionary work on this field is $6,054 14, and the total amount of receipts into the Treasury of the Agency, is $7,333 36. In addition to this sum, $18,873 25 have been forwarded from various individuals and congregations, and in payment of legacies, to the Treasury at New York; so that the entire amount of contributions to the cause of Home Missions has been $26,202 61. Of this amount $13,000 were the avails of the legacy of Dea. Jabez Goodell, of Buffalo.

Some of the churches on this field have enjoyed, during the year, seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Such instances, however, have not been as numerous as in many past years. The churches generally exhibit tokens of outward prosperity which call for greatful recognition of the good hand of the Lord upon them. New houses of worship have been erected, and old ones enlarged and improved; in several instances, burdensome debts have been removed, parsonages provided, and the pastoral relation formed, and other important steps taken to secure the permanency and full appropriate benefits of the ministry of the Gospel.

Not less than four fifths of the churches, within the bounds of this Agency, were planted, or have been fostered by the instru-mentality of Home Missions. The foregoing statements of the contributions of these churches, for the past year, show their grateful appreciation of the bounty of this Institution, and the fruitfulness of its outlays. This will appear more strikingly, if we extend our view over the whole period of the Society's operations on this field. The Report of the Agency states that, "In the twenty counties comprised within its bounds, 341 churches have received missionary aid from this source. The whole amount of missionary labor performed, is more than 1,400 years, at an expense to the Society of about $130,000. In return for its fostering care, these churches have paid into its treasury $272,000—more than double the amount received. Their annual contributions to the various objects of christian benevolence, are more than $100,000. Yet this is but the exponent of the power for good which is wielded by these churches in all the departments of christian enterprise. It is wonderful, indeed, that a region but a generation ago a wilderness, inhabited by savages, should, through the agency of Home Missions and kindred enterprises, produce, thus early, such and so abundant fruits. This is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes."

That a field where such fruits abound, should still be so dependent upon missionary culture is attributable, mainly, as in the case of the Central Agency, to emigration. While the large towns and cities of this portion of the State are growing rapidly, the rural districts are not increasing—in many cases they are decreasing—in population. From this cause, many missionary churches have been greatly reduced in numbers and pecuniary strength. One missionary says,—"Since May, 1853, over forty regular attendants on public worship have left us, and none have taken their place. By the 15th of May next, full forty more will have removed; and by the 1st of September next, there will probably be left but four resident male members, and eight or ten female members of this church. Once there were 150 or 160 members." Another missionary mourns over the loss of sixteen of his hearers who have removed to Minnesota. But these emigrants were not lost to the cause of Christ and of missions. The former pastor of this church, now a missionary stationed on the Mississippi, twenty miles north of the Falls of St. Anthony, after recounting his trials and perils from the Indians, says,—"The Lord, in his providence, has seen fit to direct hither Aaron and Hur for my help and comfort. A number of persons, members of my old church and congregation, have come into this region, and next week, I hope to see them all at my house, where they will unite their hearts and efforts for the purpose of building up Christ's church and kingdom in this place."

"Thus," says the Secretary, "this emigration, like the scattering abroad of the church at the death of Stephen, will cause churches to spring up more rapidly in places where they are greatly needed, and will bring help, and courage, and hope to the distant missionary who is bearing, almost alone, the burden and heat of the day. The scores of thousands of noble, christian men and women who have gone from our churches to the West, and are there engaged in building up the Redeemer's kingdom, may yet be seen to be the crowning gift of Western New York to the cause of evangelization in our land."

WESTERN RESERVE AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. Myron Tracy, Hudson, Secretary; T. P. Handy, Esq., Cleveland, Treasurer.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Agency, the past year, have been $3,784 54; and various collections, amounting to $1,459 63, have been transmitted directly to the Treasury of the Society at New York. The whole amount, therefore, of contributions to the cause of Home Missions, during the year, is $5,244 17. The expenditures of the Agency for missionary purposes have been $4,012 10.

Forty four missionaries have been in commission on this field the past year, and have been sustained by the funds of the Agency. The number of congregations to which their stated labors have been extended is fifty one. Two of the missionaries whose labors are now reported, have, since the commencement of the year, finished their work, and gone to their recompense of reward. Four others have been installed as pastors, within the year, and in one instance only has this relation been dissolved. Eight of the congregations aided have been engaged in erecting, or are now preparing to erect, houses of worship. It is a gratifying fact that so many feeble churches are improving this season of outward prosperity, in the erection of sanctuaries. Two churches have, within the year, attained to the condition of independence, and will no longer appear on the list of the Society's beneficiaries.

Several of the churches have been visited, during the year, with precious outpourings of the Spirit; and the general aspects of the field are such as to demand our grateful acknowledgments to him who alone giveth the increase. Rapid and striking changes, it is true, are not to be looked for on a field which has been under cultivation for so long a period. But if we take into our view the whole missionary history of this region, how impressive the contrast presented! It is thus exhibited in the last Annual Statement of the Agency:—"In the year 1801, and during his first missionary tour on the Western Reserve, the Rev. Joseph Badger wrote to his patrons in Connecticut as follows, 'The friendly disposition of the Indians banishes all apprehensions of danger from them. If the Lord should make this wilderness as a watered garden, by planting and nourishing up his church in it, there would be no place more desirable to live in.' How changed the scene in all this region since that day! The enterprise and success of the people in securing to themselves temporal blessings, and the success with which God has crowned Domestic Missionary efforts, which were here early commenced, and pursued with a liberal policy, have so filled this whole region with things desirable, that we feel called upon this day to express our warmest gratitude to him on whom success in every enterprise depends. We have a large Synod; strong and liberal churches; a Home Missionary organization among ourselves that has aided essentially, not only in supplying the wants of our own feeble churches, but also in furnishing means to send the Gospel to regions still beyond us; and all this, amid temporal blessings in the richest profusion."

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. Thomas Wickes, Secretary; Charles Shipman, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Marietta.

Twelve missionaries have been commissioned on this field the past year; and towards their support $492 25 have been paid into the Treasury of the Agency.

The Report of the Board indicates that, during the past year, the fruits of missionary labor on this field have not been as abundant as in some previous years. A few of the churches, under the faithful ministrations of the word, have been greatly refreshed, and important accessions have been made to their numbers and strength; but with mournful frequency we hear from the lips of God's ambassadors the exclamation, "Who hath believed our report?"

This portion of the State presents some peculiar obstacles to the successful prosecution of the missionary work. Lying aside from the great routes of emigration from the Eastern States, and presenting fewer attractions to the husbandman than the regions that border upon the Lakes, it was first settled, principally, by a desultory emigration from the adjacent States. Among the first occupants there was but little love for gospel institutions, and little effort to plant them. The attention of the christian community was much engrossed with the more importunate demands, as they were considered, of other portions of the West; and this field was neglected. The consequence is that, after the lapse of half a century, we have the same work to be done here, that is demanding our attention on the western frontier. But there is this difference. Error and vice are here more firmly entrenched, irreligious habits are more fixed, and the population are more inaccessible to gospel influences.

"In regard to destitutions," says the Secretary, "we may describe them as abounding. Large numbers of our increasing population are unreached by a preached Gospel,—for the population of these counties is advancing at the rate of forty five or fifty per cent. in ten years. Yet while we mourn over them, as did the prophet over his valley of dry bones, we feel that we have no adequate means of reaching them, and so far as we are concerned, they must continue wastes for years to come. Here are whole townships, and even counties, where we have not one Congregational or Presbyterian minister, where, too, the supply of ministers from other denominations is entirely inadequate to meet the necessities of the case; and thousands are perishing for lack of vision. We would not, however, produce the impression that there are not encouraging features, withal, and a good work being accomplished. There are townships which, by Home Missionary effort, have been revolutionized and redeemed from the dominion of ignorance, irreligion and vice. Inroads are here and there made upon the wide moral wastes, a foothold gained, the gospel standard reared, the church gathered, the leaven infused into the mass, there to accomplish its appointed work, not alone in the present generation, but in those which are to come."

WESTERN OHIO.

Rev. Marcus Hicks, Columbus, Agent.

The State of Indiana, and the western portion of Ohio, have been, for many years, entrusted to the missionary supervision of the Cincinnati Agency. This Agency was organized in 1830, and was denominated the "Central Committee of Agency for Home Missions in the Western States." The field of its supervision then embraced all the Western States and Territories, except Michigan, and the Western Reserve in Ohio. As the work increased, and the necessity arose for other local Agencies, this Board contracted the field of its labors, and for several years has included in its limits Indiana, and that portion of Ohio not covered by the Western Reserve and Marietta Agencies. The necessities of the field having become such as to require further subdivision, that portion of the field lying in Ohio has been assigned to Rev. Marcus Hicks, as the Agent of the Society. The Agency, relieved of a portion of its responsibilities by this change, proposed to surrender its trust. Accordingly, after twenty three years of efficient coöperation with the Executive Committee, in the prosecution of the missionary work, it rests from its labors.

In this part of Ohio the Society has aided in sustaining, during the year, fifty four missionaries, making the whole number in the State one hundred and ten.

A considerable number of revivals have occurred in this region during the year, several of which, at its close, were still in progress. As the result, chiefly, of the labors of one missionary, in two revivals, more than one hundred souls, it is stated, are rejoicing in hope. We are cheered, also, by many tokens of outward prosperity. Several churches have erected houses of worship, others have furnished parsonages for their ministers, or, in other forms, have provided for their more adequate remuneration; and the decided advance in public sentiment on this subject, which is beginning to show itself among the missionary churches, is one of the most cheering tokens of good.

According to the census of 1850, there were, at that time on this field, 1,581,413 inhabitants; and yet it appears from the statement of the Agent, that there are connected with the churches of those denominations which sustain this Society, less than 8,000 communicants, or about one to two hundred of the population. This fact alone indicates that much work remains to be done on this field. The demand for missionary labor has greatly increased, in consequence of the rapid physical changes which have been going forward, during the last few years. Within six or seven years, more than 1,200 miles of railroad have been constructed in this State; and along all these great thoroughfares villages are springing up, which furnish important and most inviting fields for missionary culture. Four railroads now lead eastward from Cincinnati, along which, says the Agent, "villages are growing up that are to absorb and control the country around them. On two of them you must travel one hundred miles, and on the other two, one hundred and twenty miles, before you reach a church in our connection." It is evident from such facts as these, that the necessity and the encouragements for the vigorous prosecution of the work of Home Missions were never greater than at the present time. But where are the men to enter and cultivate these promising fields?

INDIANA.

Rev. Henry Little, Madison, Agent.

This portion of the field, hitherto occupied by the Cincinnati Agency, has been assigned to Rev. Henry Little, who, for the last twenty years, with the intermission of a single year, has acted as Secretary of the Agency, and general Agent for the Society.

The number of missionaries commissioned within this State, the past year, is forty three. Their reports indicate that the churches in connection with which they labor, have enjoyed more than the ordinary measure of prosperity. Upon several of them, which, owing to various adverse influences, had nearly become extinct, the Holy Spirit has descended, quickening them to newness of life. To many long-neglected fields the missionaries have extended their occasional labors; their visits have been cordially welcomed, and much seed has been sown on the hard and stony ground, where, if proper culture can be secured, an abundant harvest will ere long be gathered. But the laborers are few.

For want of them, in past years, the good seed, scattered here by early missionary laborers, has been choked by thorns, which it now requires long and patient labor to subdue. The missionaries have striven, the past year, by multiplying and extending their labors to the utmost, to recover these wastes, and to resuscitate the languishing churches which are destitute of the regular ministry of the word. We would record, with devout gratitude to God, the success with which their faithful efforts have been attended. Still, there are many churches yet unsupplied; and large districts, in some instances comprising several adjacent counties, which the denominations acting through this Society have not yet reached. The following statement from a missionary in the northern part of the State, indicates the extent of the destitutions dependent upon this Institution for spiritual supplies. "I reside in the center of a circle sixty miles in diameter, or 187 miles in circuit, in which there is but one Home Missionary, except myself; and he is in the extreme northwest of the circle, almost beyond the circumference." Another missionary on the eastern border of the State mentions thirteen counties, lying contiguous to each other, and containing about 145,000 inhabitants, in which there are but four N. S. Presbyterian and Congregational ministers engaged in preaching the Gospel. He adds, "I fully believe that in two thirds or more of the counties of this State, there is, in the Congregational and Presbyterian churches (O. S. and N. S.) not more than one man to each county. One of our Presbyteries complains that it has but six men for sixteen counties; and there are other sections of the State in no better condition." Yet over all this region, members of Christ's household, scattered as sheep having no shepherd, are famishing for lack of spiritual food. With the churches sustaining this Institution rests the chief responsibility of providing the means wherewith this multitude shall be fed.

ILLINOIS.

Rev. Aratus Kent, Galena, Agent for Northern Illinois.

The number of ministers in this State who have held commissions from the Society the past year, is one hundred and five; and the contributions to the cause of Home Missions have been, $4,027 49.

The Agent for Northern Illinois has ordinarily confined his labors within twenty three counties; but as no Agent is now employed in Central Illinois, he has, during the past year, made occasional tours into that part of the State. His report, and the communications of the missionaries, show that God has not left himself without a witness, in that he has sent rain from heaven upon this portion of his vineyard, filling the hearts of the laborers with gladness. The revivals, reported by some of the missionaries, have been remarkable for their power and extent. The Agent states that, in the field appropriately belonging to him, six churches have been organized, and nine church edifices erected. The Sabbath schools, connected with missionary churches, are generally in a flourishing condition; and the cause of Temperance has received a new impulse, in no small measure through the labors of the missionaries. Their fearless advocacy of this reform, in the face of bitter opposition, and, in some instances, of personal peril, is not the least important of the incidental services they have rendered to the cause of virtue and morality.

Twenty one of the missionaries commissioned in this State, have been laboring within the limits of the Presbytery of Alton, which includes the 39 southern counties. The Presbytery, through its Missionary Committee, of which Rev. A. T. Norton is Secretary, have given to the Society their efficient coöperation; and as the fruit of these joint labors, the churches of this Presbytery have multiplied, within ten years, more than threefold. In education, morals, and all the elements of social as well as material improvement, an advance has been made, in this portion of the State, which clearly attests the efficiency of the agencies employed. The contributions of this Presbytery, to the funds of the Society, the past year, have been $657 80.

A material change has taken place, within the year, in the external condition and prospects of the churches of this State. The embarrassment occasioned by blighted crops, desolating floods, and the ruinous depreciation of agricultural products, has passed away. The vast system of railroads which has been in progress, in this State, has brought a market to every man's door. The means of sustaining the institutions of the Gospel have, therefore, been greatly increased; and it is believed that many of the churches which have long struggled with poverty, and leaned heavily upon this Institution for support, will soon relinquish its aid, and become liberal contributors to its funds.

But this returning tide of worldly prosperity brings with it new elements of danger, and opens new fields for missionary labor. To construct the 1,200 miles of railroad that have been built within the last few months, a vast foreign population has been imported, bringing with it, of course, intemperance, Sabbath desecration, infidelity, and every species of error and vice. To lift up the gospel standard against this inrushing flood; to turn the quickened energies and multiplying resources of the people, to the promotion of the higher, the spiritual interests of the community; to give the ministry of the word to the multitudes who are gathering along these great routes of travel and traffic, and thus allure them to the pursuit of the true riches, this is a work of such magnitude and urgency, as to demand the continued and increased activity of this Institution, and of the friends of Christ throughout this State.

MISSOURI.

Rev. William Homes, St. Louis, Secretary.

The Society has had in commission, in this State, during the year, twenty eight missionaries, six of whom have preached in the German language, and one in the French. The churches on this field have contributed to the Society's Treasury, during this period, $285 53.

Most of the missionaries, laboring in this State, have been compelled to struggle against peculiar difficulties; and though the fruits of the seed sown are less abundant than in some other portions of the missionary field, yet the results of their labors are such as evince a wise and efficient husbandry. Many of the congregations have been weakened by emigration to the Pacific coast, to which Missouri has probably contributed more largely, the past year, than any other western State. Immigration from Europe has produced a frightful influx of infidelity, superstition, intemperance, Sabbath desecration, and other kindred evils. Slavery, though prevailing only to very limited extent in the northern portion of the State, where most of the missionaries labor, is still a formidable hindrance to their work. Against these various difficulties, they have fearlessly and faithfully striven; and in some instances, God has crowned their efforts with signal success. Opposition has been allayed, confidence secured, the crooked places made straight, and the rough places smooth, and thus the way of the Lord prepared.

Notwithstanding the urgent appeals which have been made for laborers to enter this field, and the strenuous efforts of the Committee to procure them, the whole number sustained by the Society, since the last Report, is less by two than during the preceding year. Yet the importance and necessities of this State were never so great as at the present time. As many as eighty of its counties—more than three fourths of the whole, and all of them containing a sufficient population to require missionary culture—have not yet been reached by the denominations that sustain this Society. The extent of these destitutions, as well as the difficulty of supplying them, is increased by delay. The central position which this State occupies, its facilities for commerce, its fertility of soil, its exhaustless resources of iron, lead, copper, and coal, its multiplying channels of intercourse with other remote parts of the country, insure its rapid growth in population and all the elements of influence and importance. There are, indeed, peculiar obstacles to be encountered in rearing here the institutions of the Gospel; but they are vincible by the power of God's truth and Spirit, and should be regarded, not as warranting our feeble and tardy movements in this work, but as incentives to prosecute it with increased diligence, and on a more extended scale.

MICHIGAN.

Rev. Calvin Clark, Hillsdale, Agent.

The Agent of the Society for Michigan has, since the last Report, tendered his resignation, having accepted the pastoral charge of a church in the southern part of the State. For the last eight years he has performed the delicate and difficult duties of his Agency, with much acceptableness to the churches and to the Society. His valuable services to the cause of Home Missions during his official relations to this Institution, are held in high appreciation by its officers and patrons, whose best wishes will attend him in the new sphere of labor upon which he has entered. He will continue, for the present, to give such attention to the interests of the Society as his other engagements will permit, and therefore is still recognized as its official organ for the State.

The number of missionaries sustained in Michigan, the past year, is seventy six; and the amount paid into the Treasury of the Society, from the same field, is $2,538 53.

The record of missionary labor for another year, presents many facts of cheering interest. In one department of religious enterprise—the erection of houses of worship—no previous year has witnessed equal progress. About fifteen church edifices have been completed, or are now in process of erection, in this State. Much labor has also been expended in exploring and supplying destitute settlements, which have long been neglected; and these efforts have, in some instances, been crowned with remarkable success. The congregations, enjoying the labors of the missionaries, have shared with those of other States in the general prosperity with which this part of the country has been favored, and many of them need but the quickening visitations of God's Spirit, calling into his service these newly acquired resources, to make them independent of missionary support.

The Agent, in glancing at the religious history of this State, during the eighteen years of his ministry there, speaks of the work which this Society has accomplished, in the following language:—"Survey this peninsula; traverse its plains and prairies, its groves and forests; behold its beautiful villages springing up as by magic, adorned with substantial church edifices; pass over our great iron thoroughfares from Toledo or Monroe, and Detroit, to the Garden City at the head of Lake Michigan—gazing upon the thriving towns and villages as you pass—and ask what influences have been at work to plant those churches, and rear those sanctuaries. They are all, with two or three exceptions, the fruit of missionary effort. So, on the line of the Ottawa railroad, not a church can be found which has not enjoyed the aid of the American Home Missionary Society. Indeed, out of about two hundred churches of the denominations that cöoperate in this Institution, all but seven or eight, are the result of Home Missionary toil and self-denial."

"Yet Michigan, as a missionary field, was never more important than it is to-day. She never before enjoyed a year of such general prosperity. Emigration of a better character, and in greater amount than hitherto, is now setting towards our borders. The extension of the Oakland and Ottawa railroad through the Grand river valley, will give this portion of the State the advantages and reputation which it deserves, but has never yet possessed. It will add tens of thousands to the population, augment the sources of wealth, and open up new and important fields for establishing churches and pushing on the work of Home Evangelization."

The valleys of the Saginaw and the Muskegan, and their tributaries, lying still farther to the north, are also fast coming into notice, and are already making earnest appeals for missionary laborers. Indeed, the whole of that vast wilderness, occupying the northern half of the peninsula, has at last been explored and surveyed, and is found to possess attractions for the agriculturist which will insure its rapid settlement. It was stated in the last Report, that laborers were urgently demanded in the mining region, on the northern shore of Lake Superior, and at the Sault St. Marie, where the construction of a ship canal, to form a navigable connection between the waters of Lake Superior and Lake Huron, is adding rapidly to the population. Both of these important fields still remain destitute. The Committee will continue their best endeavors to respond to these, and the numerous calls that come to them from other portions of the State; but the supplies they will be able to furnish, will be painfully disproportionate to the demand, unless the Lord of the harvest, in answer to the prayers of his people, shall send forth more laborers into his harvest.

WISCONSIN.

Rev. Dexter Clary, Beloit, Agent.

In this State eighty seven missionaries have been in commission the past year, and have labored in connection with one hundred and twenty five churches, besides preaching at a large number of stations where churches are not yet organized. Ten of these missionaries have preached to various classes of foreigners, who are more numerous, compared with the whole population, than in any other State—constituting more than one third of all the inhabitants. Three have ministered to congregations of Norwegians, of whom this State contains twice as many as all the other States in the Union. Ten churches have been organized during the year, in connection with the labors of the missionaries; five ministers have been installed as pastors; eight houses of worship have been completed, one enlarged, and several others are now in process of erection. There have been contributed, the past year, to the cause of Home Missions, by the churches of this State, $898 49.

In the early part of the year, the special influences of the Spirit were granted to the churches of this State, only to a very limited extent; but more recently, many of the congregations have been greatly refreshed; and at the close of the year, several powerful revivals were still in progress. The Temperance reformation, during the past year, has assumed greater interest and prominence than ever before; and in the struggle now going forward to secure the legal prohibition of the liquor traffic, the missionaries of this Society have been among the foremost. Increased efforts are also made to induce young men of suitable qualifications, in the churches, to devote themselves to the work of the ministry. But the most prominent feature in the religious history of the year, is the general movement to secure the erection of houses of worship. These efforts promise results of great value, not only as providing ample accommodations for congregations hitherto confined to school-houses and private dwellings, but as developing their resources and enterprise, and thus preparing them, early, to assume the support of their own religious institutions.

Wisconsin is divided into forty eight counties, eighteen of which, the Agent states, are without ministers of the denominations acting through this Society, and nine others have, each, but a single laborer. "Some of these counties are new, having been organized the past year; others have been settled several years, and contain thousands of inhabitants. In all of them there are, or very soon will be, points of interest and importance to be supplied with gospel ministers; and those who are now laboring single-handed in fields comprising whole counties, are loudly calling for help. There are also fifteen or twenty destitute churches in different parts of the State. The work to be done in these destitutions, is, in most cases, truly missionary work. The foundations of society are to be laid, churches are to be gathered, reforms set in operation, and a way, straight and high, prepared for the coming of the Lord."

If we turn from these destitutions, to the fields already brought under cultivation through the agency of this Society, we find much occasion for gratitude and encouragement. "Eighteen years ago," says the Agent, "the first church in Wisconsin Territory, was organized among the Indians at Green Bay, by a missionary of the A. B. C. F. M. In the following year, the first Home Missionary commenced his labors. In 1840, the number of missionaries had increased to fifteen, and about the same number of churches had been gathered. Now there are in the State 160 (N. S.) Presbyterian and Congregational churches, besides about twenty German, Welsh, and Norwegian churches in Home Missionary sympathy with us. In every step of the progress which has been made, Home Missionary agency is recognized. The whole amount appropriated, by the American Home Missionary Society, to this State, from the beginning, is not far from $100,000,—a less sum than is required to construct ten miles of railroad, or to build a single steamboat of ordinary size; yet the good accomplished, by the timely aid thus extended to Wisconsin in her infancy, is incalculable. Already the fruit is an hundredfold in this present life, and, to multitudes of souls, life everlasting. Some have, indeed, reaped what others have sown, but both sower and reaper rejoice together."

IOWA.

Rev. Julius A. Reed, Davenport, Agent.

The number of missionaries who have borne the commission of the Society in this State, since the last Report, is fifty six; and $575 11 have been paid into the Treasury of the Society, by the friends of missions, during the same period. Twelve of the missionaries whose labors are now reported, have been commissioned within the State for the first time during the last year; yet, in consequence of removals, the assumption by the churches of their ministers' support, and other changes, the whole number in connection with the Society is greater by only one than in the previous year.

The Agent communicates the following statistical items, which are among the visible tokens that the labors of the missionaries have not been in vain. Two churches have, within the year, reached the condition of pecuniary independence; five have installed their ministers as pastors; ten churches have been organized; eleven houses of worship have been completed, and eleven others commenced. Seven of the congregations which have been heavily taxed for the erection of church edifices, have, nevertheless, been so much strengthened by the accomplishment of that enterprise, that they have advanced upon their previous pledges for the support of the Gospel about twenty five per cent.; and other congregations are coöperating with the Executive Committee in their efforts to provide a more adequate remuneration for those who are laboring in word and doctrine. But the most grateful token of God's presence with his people, is seen in the copious effusions of the Spirit upon several of the missionary fields, as the result of which many of the churches have been greatly reinforced from the ranks of the world.

In one important respect, however, the past year has witnessed but little progress. While 50,000, as is estimated, have been added to the population of the State, the number of laborers in the denominations represented in this Society has increased by only four. Twenty two churches have no one to break to them the bread of life. Twenty five counties, each with a population ranging from 500 to 8,000, are yet unvisited by missionaries of this Society, and should be occupied the present year. The opening of a railroad communication, between the Atlantic coast and this State, has, within the year, removed the only disadvantage which it has suffered, as compared with the States east of the Mississippi; and the wave of emigration, in increasing power and volume, will spread itself over its fertile prairies. Across nearly the entire breadth of the State, from east to west, scattered settlements have been formed, and on the western frontier, in the region of Council Bluffs, is a population of several thousands, affording a difficult but important field of missionary labor. This is one of the principal points of departure for the Pacific coast; and floods of ungodly men, on their way to the land of gold, have deluged these frontier settlements with every species of outrageous vice. Two missionaries are stationed in this portion of the State, and several more should be sent speedily to their help. If, in our efforts to supply this State with gospel institutions, we fall so far behind its present necessities, what prospect have we that we shall keep pace with its future growth?

CALIFORNIA.

It was stated in the last Annual Report, that six missionaries, with their families, sailed for California the preceding Autumn, and had then just reached their respective fields of labor.

Rev. Mr. Walsworth succeeded Rev. Mr. Brayton in the supply of the church at Marysville; and his support has been furnished, during most of the year, by the people to whom he ministers.

Rev. Mr. Bell is stationed at Oakland, on the eastern shore of the Bay of San Francisco. As this is the natural landing place for the large and fertile district of Contra Costa, and is but a half-hour's sail from San Francisco, it is destined to become an important center of influence. The growth of the place, and consequently the labors of the missionary, have been much hindered by the unexpected delay in establishing the titles of the occupants to their lands. A church, however, has been gathered; a house of worship, the frame of which has once been prostrated by storms, is now rapidly approaching completion; and it is expected, that within a few months, his entire support will be gathered from his field of labor.

Rev. Mr. Pond was designated to a destitute field in the northern suburb of San Francisco. He entered upon his labors on the 14th of April. Though all the members of his congregation, with a single exception, were in moderate circumstances, the erection of a church edifice was commenced in May, and was completed in June. A church, of eight members, was organized on the 28th of August, and, in three months from that time the congregation assumed the support of its minister.

Rev. Mr. HARMON has been laboring, amid many difficulties, at Sonora, the most important town in the Southern Mines. In May last a church of twenty six members was organized, and the erection of a house of worship was soon afterwards commenced. But the occurrence of several destructive fires, by which nearly the whole city was destroyed, has retarded that enterprise, and will render the congregation, for a few months longer, dependent upon this Society for a portion of their minister's means of sustenance.

Rev. Mr. HALE preaches at Grass Valley, Nevada Co., in the center of a mining district, rich in gold, and containing already a large population. Here, also, a church edifice has been erected, at an expense of about $4,500, a small church has been formed, and a large part of the missionary's salary pledged by the congregation.

Rev. Mr. PIERPONT is stationed at Placerville, Tuolumne Co., where, amid bitter opposition and abounding iniquity, he succeeded in gathering a congregation and erecting a commodious house of worship. A church of twenty one members has also been organized, and it is believed that the aid of the Society will be necessary for only a brief period.

Rev. A. F. WHITE, who has been employed for a year or two past, in the service of the American Tract Society, in California, has recently been commissioned, by the Committee, to labor at Redwood Landing, about twenty five miles south of San Francisco, on the western shore of the Bay. He commenced his labors in January last, with flattering prospects.

This State has, perhaps, advanced in population more slowly the past year, than during any preceding year since its mines of gold were discovered; yet the facilities and demand for missionary labor are rapidly increasing. Society is no longer a confused mass of adventurers, but has become organized and settled; property and life are more secure; social and educational institutions are established; and the various branches of industry are receiving their appropriate attention and reward; towns and cities are springing into existence and importance, and presenting urgent claims and inviting fields for religious culture.

A plea for additional laborers, has recently been received by the Executive Committee, from a joint Committee appointed for this purpose by the Presbytery of San Francisco and the Association of California. They ask for at least a dozen men the present year; and specify the fields in which even a larger number would find ample and profitable employment. The Committee desire to respond promptly to this appeal, provided suitable laborers and sufficient means can be obtained. Two missionaries are now under appointment for this field, one of whom is already on his way thither.

The views of the Committee respecting the bearings and importance of the work undertaken there by this Institution, are well represented in the following extract from the communication above referred to: "It is really, even if not nominally, the founding and rearing of a new christian State, and one whose influence will tell for truth the world over. This did not become a christian State when the arms of a Protestant nation conquered it, or the money of that nation bought it; it did not become such when crowds of men, claiming the name of Christian, came to dig God's gold, and profane his day, his book, his name, in all these hills and valleys. It will become a christian State when sufficient christian teachers come here to gather christian churches, and to bring up to sacred and believing recollection the doctrines and the cross of Christ. And it is with the churches of the East to bring this to pass or not.

"Let no one think California is safe. She is not safe. With a heathen population rushing in upon us; with a recklessness of old restraints, a chief characteristic of our people; with all forms of old error, from the four quarters of the globe, germinating rapidly or towering high—giants already in stature while young in years—and a ready soil for the production of new errors; with a general disregard of the Sabbath; with a public press corrupt and profligate; and, finally, in our isolation from all established christian States, California is not safe. And our hope for her, God's purposes aside, is just as great as our hope is, that Christians at the East will appreciate her importance and her necessities and will embrace the privilege they have of opening here a fountain, the streams of which shall make glad the city of our God."

OREGON.

The Society has had five missionaries under its commission in Oregon during the year just closed. Rev. Thomas Condon and Rev. Obed Dickinson were commissioned for this field in the Autumn of 1852, and their arrival in March following was announced in the last Report.

Rev. Mr. Condon was stationed at St. Helens, on the left bank of the Columbia, twenty miles below the mouth of the Willamette river. This place is one, prospectively, of much importance; but the heterogeneous character of the inhabitants, and their unsettled habits, have greatly retarded the establishment of religious instruction among them. Yet a great change in the moral aspect of the community is already apparent, and many indications appear that the missionary has not spent his strength for naught.

Rev. Mr. Dickinson has been laboring at Salem, the capital of the Territory. It is situated on the Willamette river, about one hundred miles from its mouth, and is surrounded by an extensive agricultural district, of great beauty and fertility. It is already one of the most important towns in the Territory; and, as the seat of government, is destined to become an important center of influence. A church has been organized, and measures taken to erect a house of worship, which will probably be completed the present summer. The heart of the missionary has been encouraged by the manifest presence of the Spirit among his people, and by the accession to the church of several individuals converted through his instrumentality.

Near the close of the year, Rev. MILTON B. STARR, who has for several years labored under the direction of this Society in the Western States, but has recently emigrated to Oregon, was commissioned to preach at Albany, the county seat of Linn Co. This place is situated on the Willamette, at its junction with the Callapooya river, twenty five miles south of Salem. At this point, and in the surrounding settlements, is a field of labor of much interest and promise.

It is estimated that the overland immigration to Oregon and Washington, in the summer of 1853, amounted to 8,000. Large numbers, also, arrived by way of the Columbia river. The Territory of Washington contains a population of about 5,000, among whom no missionary of this Society, and, so far as we are informed, no Congregational or Presbyterian minister, is yet stationed. Olympia, the capital, containing a population of 300, should be occupied without delay; and other places will soon demand attention. In Oregon, the changes of the past year have been such as furnish new arguments and encouragements for the prosecution of the missionary work. The immigration was generally of a better class than heretofore. "The companies," says Mr. Atkinson, "are composed mostly of families; and their members must become permanent citizens. Many of them have left good homes in the valley of the Mississippi, the very garden of the world, to subdue the land in this far-off region. The coming of colonists is doing much for the permanence of our settlements. Our Pacific coast must be peopled by thriving and industrious communities. The past mutability of things, like the primeval chaos, is fast settling into fixed and compact forms. The population, like the swelling tide, is moving up into the hills and mountains, on either hand, and rolling over upon the coast; and must, in due time, pour its fruits of labor down into the valleys, and send them out through the channels of commerce. Our present work is to sow this broad field, year by year, with the choicest seed, that in future, rich and glorious harvests may be gathered for the garner of the Lord."

CONCLUSION.

Such is a brief summary of the labors of this Society for another year. The Executive Committee would express their gratitude to God, for the liberality with which the growing necessities of the Institution have been met, and for the signal success with which its efforts have been crowned. From this survey of what has been already achieved through their instrumentality, they turn their eyes to the work yet remaining to be done; and they are more than ever oppressed with the view of its magnitude, and of their own responsibilities.

While the prominent features of this enterprise have continued unchanged from the beginning, each year adds to it new elements of interest and importance. To strengthen, in the feeble congregations of the older States, the things which remain that are ready to die; to cast the salt of divine truth into all the fountains of influence that are opening in our great Central Valley; to grapple with the diverse forms of error and superstition that are struggling for the mastery on that great battle-field; to follow the advancing tide of emigration as it rolls towards the setting sun, and rear amid its tumultuous waves the standard of the Cross; to lay the foundations of christian institutions for our new-born empire on the Pacific coast; these are features of this work with which every intelligent christian mind has become familiar. But the movements of Providence on the wider theater of the world's affairs, are unfolding new relations of this cause to the work of the world's conversion. While the other great powers of Christendom are rushing into a deadly conflict with each other, exhausting their energies and resources in the work of human destruction; while the most inviting fields of modern missions are suddenly converted into fields of battle, and the light there kindled may soon be extinguished in tears and blood; this nation, far removed from these scenes of commotion, at peace with all the world, advancing with rapid strides in her career of wealth and power, is summoned to make haste, at this auspicious time, in her beneficent mission.

By the wonderful providence of God, making the wrath of man to praise him, our colonies, with all our institutions, have just been planted, and taken root on the shores of the Pacific ocean. There we stand, confronting the heathen world, nearer to it by half than we have been before, and nearer, practically, than any other Protestant nation. And now, just as, by Home Missionary effort, the institutions of the Gospel have become established on that coast, and just as, by the ties of commerce, we have been brought into new relations to the continent of Asia, China is beginning to tremble beneath the tread of revolution. The throne of the Tartars, and the temples of Buddhism are tottering; and that vast empire, containing more than half of the entire Pagan world may soon welcome the missionary of the Cross. The intervening empire of Japan has also opened her gates at our bidding, and will soon receive our commerce, and, we doubt not, the heralds of the Gospel. Thus, while the work of evangelism seems about to be hindred, its resources wasted, and its channels obstructed, in one hemisphere, in the other, God is opening a highway between this nation and the heathen world on which the chariot of salvation may have free and glorious course.

These events exhibit the true bearings and transcendent importance of the work entrusted to this Institution. It is to open in all parts of our land, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the fountains of those streams, which shall bear the ark of salvation to the perishing of all lands. Never before has God shown us so clearly the intimate and vital connection between this enterprise and the ultimate triumph of his kingdom among men. Never before has such an accumulation of argument and motive urged us forward in our work. Under the pressure, therefore, of this increased responsibility, and with a more entire consecration to our Divine Master, let us enter upon the labors of another year, looking to him from whom our help cometh, with the earnest entreaty—"God be merciful unto us and bless us, and cause his face to shine upon us. That thy way may be known upon Earth, thy saving health among all nations."

In behalf of the Executive Committee.

Relation of Auxiliary Societies, Agencies and Committees of Missions to the American Home Missionary Society; Applications, &c.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

Most of the State Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them—as the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts—were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the Gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves as auxiliaries with the American Home Missionary Society, from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which such Auxiliaries—acting on the principles of the Parent Society, undertaking the supply of the destitute within their own bounds, and paying over their surplus funds to the Parent Institution—are connected with the Parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz.:

First—The auxiliary is not superseded or over-shadowed by the National Institution, but, on the contrary, is invigorated and sustained by connection with it.

This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the State to which it belongs. From it alone, so far as its means will allow, the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment is cherished towards it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—While the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connection with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it is also a branch of the National Society, and, as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus, the State and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in and free access, through the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on the work.

Agents and Agencies.

Besides preaching to the destitute and taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Agents of the American Home Missionary Society exercise a general superintendence of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation, they ascertain the wants of the destitute; assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee; and in other ways labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds. At present, the Society has in its employ no merely collecting Agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the regions where they labor. The Secretaries of several of the larger Auxiliaries, are also the Agents for this cause in their respective bounds.

In certain districts, where the duties of an Agent are likely to be peculiarly responsible, there is associated with him a board of counselors selected from the region of his labors, called an Agency. These Boards of Agency differ from Auxiliary Societies, in that they have no independent existence, but are appointed by the Executive Committee from year to year, and are governed by rules which the Committee prescribe. Their office is to counsel and direct the Agent in carrying out the principles of the Society, and to give advice in relation to such local matters as may be submitted to them by the Executive Committee. The persons composing a Board of Agency, are selected for their intelligence and interest in this cause, and their influence in promoting it; and are so distributed over the field as to secure a personal acquaintance with its condition. The Agent of the Society is also the Secretary of the Agency with which he is associated.

These boards of counsel might not have been necessary, had the ecclesiastical bodies on the ground been able and disposed to pay sufficient attention to the missionary work, and to act as its directors in their respective bounds. But the ministers composing them are usually scattered over a wide extent of territory, and meet but seldom, and only at seasons when they are much occupied with other business; and accordingly it has been necessary in some cases to organize agencies for this specific work. But in other cases, Synods, Presbyteries, and Associations, have chosen to act as Auxiliaries to the Society, examining into the condition of the destitute within their bounds, and recommending the appropriate action for their relief. Ecclesiastical bodies thus related to the American Home Missionary Society, act through

Committees of Missions.

The American Home Missionary Society has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the churches in their connection. Accordingly, the commission issued to every missionary requires that his credentials be acceptable to the ministerial body of his denomination, within whose bounds he is appointed to labor. And the various Presbyteries, Associations, &c., are invited to appoint, each, a Committee of Missions from its own members, to receive applications from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a Committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice, in all matters pertaining to missions in the connection to which it belongs. This mode of coöperation has been preferred by numerous ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guaranties to the churches of each denomination represented in the Society, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered, with all the advantage of having the endorsement of the body to which they belong. The advice of such a Committee, acting in the name and by the direction of the ecclesiastical body to which they belong, is regarded as the highest authority in matters pertaining to the standing of ministers and churches in their connection, and has the same influence with the Society, as that of a Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated. Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and gospel order, as not to retain the fellowship and confidence of the great body of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in our land, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected, as a basis of action, by the Executive Committee.

As cases may occur in which the feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any Board of Agency, or Committee of Missions, through whom to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that applications may be vouched by any two ministers of known and approved standing, who can certify to the facts of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sought by the Executive Committee, with as little delay as practicable, from the most authentic sources from which they can be obtained.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs, through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the missionary work, of those whose views of doctrine and church order admit of coöperation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discouraged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and East, along which has passed, from the latter to the former, a silent and invisible current of moral influences, more valuable, if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time, the connection of the Parent Society with the various Associations that act with it, is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

Applications for Aid.

Feeble congregations, applying for aid in supporting the Gospel, are requested to embody in their application the following particulars, viz.:

The name of the church or congregation; the number of communicants, and the average number of attendants on public worship; the denomination and size of congregations immediately contiguous, with the distance to their places of worship; the total amount of salary which the applicants propose to make up, the portion of that salary which they pledge for the given time, and the arrangements that are made for securing it; whether aid is expected from any other source; and the least amount that will suffice from this Society; whether the minister for whom a commission is desired, is the pastor of the church, or if not, whether any arrangements are made or contemplated in the course of the year, with reference to his installment. These statements should be signed by the trustees and elders or deacons, or by a committee of the congregation, and confirmed by the certificates of two or more clergymen, acquainted with the facts. Also,

The name and post-office address of the minister whose services they desire to secure; whether he is a resident of the place in which he preaches, and is engaged in any other calling than that of the ministry; his credentials; and the certificate of two or more ministers of known standing, as to his general character for piety, zeal, and acceptableness, as a minister of the Gospel.

Where the ecclesiastical body with which a church is connected has a "Committee of Missions" to act in their behalf, this Committee are the proper persons to certify the statements of the church, the standing of the minister, and his prospects of usefulness in the place where his services are desired; and the application should be sent to them for their endorsement and recommendation.

Applications, after being properly endorsed and recommended, should be addressed to the care of the Agent (or Secretary of the Agency, or Auxiliary,) for the region where the applicants reside.

As a general rule, the appropriations of the American Home Missionary Society are for twelve months from the date of the application; at the end of which, if further aid be needed, a new application must be made, containing all the particulars above stated, and endorsed and recommended in like manner. And each congregation applying for renewed aid, should furnish, in addition to other testimonials, the certificate of the missionary, that they have fulfilled their previous pledges for his support.

The address of the Society's Agents and the Secretaries of its Auxiliaries will be found on the cover of its Reports and of the Home Missionary. Where no such medium of communication with the Society exists, applications may be sent directly to the Society's Office in New York.

Principles of Missionary Action.

[From the 20th Report of the A. H. M. S., May, 1846.]

The Committee would allude, briefly, to several principles of missionary action, which they regard as vital to the happiest influence of this Institution, and worthy to be commended anew to the special consideration of its Auxiliaries and Agencies, and of the Committees of Missions who correspond with it.

In enlarging, the past year, the number of congregations and missionary districts partially supplied, more than they have been able to increase the number of missionaries, the Committee have not overlooked, nor been less deeply impressed with the importance of aiming at the establishment of a permanent ministry. To give, ultimately, to every church the undivided labors of a pastor, is the end which this Society seeks to attain. And the itinerant labor, which it designs to encourage, is that only which is introductory to such a result. In new and sparsely settled communities, or where churches consist of but few members, and have almost no means of aiding even in sustaining the ministry, and there is little prospect of a rapid increase, the best provision for their wants that can at first be made is, undoubtedly, by means of that general exploration and those occasional services, which shall awaken desire and hope, and prepare the way for more frequent ministrations. But this should by no means be regarded as a fixed arrangement. Rather, every church in such a district, which begins to acquire strength and put forth promise, should be encouraged and aided to secure, without procrastination, the regular administration of gospel ordinances; and if there are those which exhibit no signs of ever being able to do this, it is desirable that they should become so consolidated and allied to each other, that two or three together may enjoy the privileges which neither could hope for alone.

In churches, too, where the Gospel is regularly preached, the Committee feel it to be of the first importance, that the appropriations of the Society should be so made, as to be an encouragement to the institution of the pastoral relation. Churches which depend upon stated supplies, and are unwilling to enter into engagements for a longer period than a year; and ministers who are not disposed to cast in their lot with the people whom they serve, and take upon themselves all the responsibilities of a permanent connection, are not of that class, as the Committee suppose, which it is the special design of this Institution to aid.

And to facilitate the institution of the pastoral relation, great care should be exercised by those who, in behalf of churches and ministers, seek and recommend the aid of the Society, that only such ministers be introduced to our feeble churches, or have given them encouragement of receiving missionary assistance, as possess the requisite qualifications for the pastoral office in these circumstances, and are willing to remain permanently with the churches, if their labors should be acceptable. Especially should it be regarded as indispensable that, whether a pastor or a stated supply, the missionary should reside with his people, and be wholly devoted to their spiritual improvement. Applications in behalf of non-resident ministers, or ministers devoted mainly to teaching, to agriculture, to anything aside from the appropriate duties of the sacred office, should, in the judgment of the Committee, be declined.

It should be borne in mind, also, by all, that it is the church, and not the missionary, that is the beneficiary of the Institution. The laborer is worthy of his hire. And such laborers only as are worthy of it, can this Institution consistently employ. If there are those in necessitous circumstances, whose infirmities unfit them for the full service which the prosperity of a church demands, they should receive commiseration and kindness; but to yield them that relief which their condition requires, does not come within the objects contemplated by the founders of this Society.

The Committee are deeply impressed, also, with the importance of special care, that no church be placed or continued on the list of beneficiaries, whose condition is not manifestly necessitous and hopeful; so much so, that it may, without unseemliness and incongruity, receive of the charities of churches and individuals, many of whom give, not of their abundance, but of their penury. There is a tendency among churches which have been the longest and most liberally aided, to be among the last to relinquish their hold on charitable assistance. A grant from the Missionary Society is calculated on as a matter of course, and the question then is, how shall we supply the deficiency? The improvement of farms, the building of literary institutions, and even charitable donations scarcely less to individual objects than the amount they ask for, are sometimes regarded by churches as sufficient apologies for seeking missionary aid. Appropriations, in such cases, the Committee cannot doubt, would be justly regarded as a perversion of missionary funds. A life annuity to any church, it is no part of the design of this Institution to insure. Nor is its design to aid a church, for the purpose of enabling it, indirectly, to accomplish other objects than the support of the Gospel, however good and important these objects may be in themselves. Its design is, to aid and encourage the really feeble and needy, on such conditions, and to such an extent, and for so long a time only, as shall be most wisely adapted to bring them, in the shortest practicable period, to the dignity and happiness of self-supporting churches. And the success of the Institution is indicated, by the number of such churches that spring up under its fostering care—by the number which it thus gets off from its list—rather than by the number it takes on.

ADDRESSES

At the Twenty Eighth Anniversary.

Address of Rev. Isaac H. Brayton, of California,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

Resolved, That the Providence of God points to our Pacific coast, as a Missionary field of unsurpassed interest and importance.

Just one year ago, this night, the Presbyterian and Congregational ministers of California, few in number, assembled at Nevada, for our semi-annual meetings. This mountain town is in the midst of a large population, not less than 25,000, in a single county, where only six years before the Indian had exclusive possession. The opening sermon, before the Presbytery, was preached by our brother, Eli Corwin. His appropriate text was, "Would God that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his Spirit upon them."

In speaking a word in behalf of the Pacific coast, more especially in behalf of California, I desire simply to represent the encouragement and demand for missionary labor in our most interesting and important field.

The brief history of California presents many lessons of encouragement to us, as a people and a church. Let us glance at some of these. A sudden population poured upon those shores. It is only six years since California came into possession of the United States. Three hundred thousand men have assembled there: a population larger than our thirteen colonies acquired during the first hundred years of their existence. A reference to the census of the United States will show that this was about the population, four years ago, of such States as Wisconsin, Louisiana, or Mississippi. The assemblage was a promiscuous one. From our own States, men of every character—adventurers, gamblers, and blacklegs, as well as earnest, incorruptible christian men; from Europe, English, French, German, and Italians; from the South American and Mexican States, thousands of the light-hearted, fickle, Spanish American race; old convicts from the penal colonies of Great Britain; from the Sandwich Islands, a half-civilized race; and from China, thirty thousand idolaters.

Think of the circumstances under which all these men are thrown together, and of the scenes consequent. One throbbing passion drew them all, the passion for gold. It had intense action. Whatever diversities existed, all races were alike here; all sought gold. Some desired it for noble purposes; many for base purposes; all desired it. One shrine drew all worshipers. That was an intensely interesting, though painful lesson in human nature. The country was all unprepared to receive her population. Cities composed of tents and rude shanties were suddenly built in mud or dust. Miners unused to hardships roved over distant mountains, carrying their heavy burdens, at once their only stores, implements, and homes. Disease and death followed discomfort and exposure. Crimes and immoralities prevailed. The Sabbath was forgotten; its quiet lost in the noise of gambling halls, the cries of auctioneers, the hum of business, the shouts of revellers. The thoughtful and weary-hearted were constrained to find their Sabbath and their quiet among the shrubbery of the hills or by the stream, or back by the shore of the far-sounding sea. With such a population, to establish any community of sentiment seemed difficult; the prospects of a religious society appeared very distant. Yet men, in all circumstances, instinctively unite, first from the impulse of mutual protection, next upon the sentiment of religion. Fortunately, also, California had no experiments to make, either in government or in religion. Americans carried with them, to their most distant territory, a sincere love for free republican institutions; sincere convictions concerning the religious institutions and the faith of their fathers. They had no desire to raise any flag, save that of the Union; nor will they have, so long as justice shall be rendered to them by the East, which is growing rich from the gold which they dig. They had no lack of respect for religious institutions, however reckless they had become. The painful experience of what the condition of society is, without these institutions, wrought a deeper conviction in all minds of their value; it drew the voluntary confession from many hitherto sceptical men, that without these, society becomes too corrupt for even the basest. From these convictions, which Americans carried with them, the organization of society was comparatively an easy work. Noble men organized the State. The constitutional convention of California was one of the finest bodies that ever sat. There was stern stuff there. Many of the men were hardy pioneers who pathed their way Westward before gold had made a high-road. It was a noble spectacle—Americans, by necessity, carrying their tried institutions with them wherever they go.

The constitution of California was signed at Monterey, on the 13th day of October, 1849. Bayard Taylor, who was present on the occasion, speaks of it on this wise: "Thus we have another splendid example of the ease and security with which a people can be educated to govern themselves. Governments, bad and corrupt as many of them are, and imperfect as they all must necessarily be, nevertheless, at times, exhibit scenes of true moral sublimity. As an American I feel proud and happy: proud that the empire of the West, the commerce of the great Pacific, the new highway to the Indies, forming the last link in that belt of civilized enterprise which now clasps the world, has been established under my country's flag; and happy, that in all the extent of California, from the glittering snows of the Shaste, to the burning deserts of the Colorado, no slave shall ever lift his arm to make the freedom of that flag a mockery."

Our religious institutions also were adopted unhesitatingly, earnestly. In their carrying out, as in the administration of the government, some peculiar difficulties and obstacles are sure to arise. Yet in religious observances a change has come over our leading towns, and, in some measure, over the country, which is encouraging and remarkable. The churches have been eminently successful and prosperous. The pioneer minister of California was Rev. T. Dwight Hunt, previously pastor of a church at Honolulu, and who landed in San Francisco the 29th day of October, 1848. Four months afterwards came Rev. Messrs. Douglas and Willey, your first missionaries to that field. Thus the first movements towards the furnishing of a ministry to California were by denominations acting with this Society. Mr. Hunt was earliest. Messrs. Willey and Douglas were under appointment some time before news was received here of the discovery of gold. They arrived, along with two missionaries of other denominations, in the first steamer that plowed its way up the coast of the Pacific. Churches have been built. The various churches of San Francisco have their regular congregations of from two hundred to five or six hundred. The church of Mr. Benton, at Sacramento, has an average attendance of 400, with 75 communicants, and a Sabbath school of considerably more than 100 members. The pastors at Marysville, Nevada and San José, have also excellent and regular congregations.

Of the six ministers whom this Society sent out a little more than a year since, one of them, Mr. Walsworth, is at Marysville, in the church vacated by my own temporary return to the East. The other five have not only secured in their new fields places of worship, in most cases commodious churches, but have gathered around them congregations who already nearly support their pastors. A spirit of missions has already been kindled. San Francisco has furnished $18,000 for the Chinese mission under Rev. Mr. Speer. Very considerable contributions have been made also to our leading societies. Not less than $200,000 of the gold of California has, under the labors of the few men of this Society alone, been turned to the providing of houses of worship, and, through their maintenance, to minister to the religious nature of man; an amount which otherwise had been most of it very differently devoted.

Here may appear the encouragement, as well as the necessity, for the furnishing of ministers to our State by societies, although at considerable expense. Our fluctuating communities will not and cannot easily organize themselves into congregations and obtain pastors who must be brought from a distant part of the Union. Little advance is made until the minister is on the ground.

The minister is at once the nucleus and the rallying point of all conservative religious influences. They are latent until he is there. But, in our worst communities, throbbing as they are with excitement, reckless as they are from the absence of usual outward restraints, let a minister, an earnest, energetic, faithful minister, throw himself among the people, evidently with the sole purpose to establish the worship of God; and let his support be borne by the eastern churches for a few months, that he may devote himself entirely to the cultivation of his field, alike above the necessity and temptation of secular cares, and, in almost all cases, in one year he will have a church, and a support from the people. He may have begun to preach, with only a score of hearers, in some store or hall. In a twelvemonth he shall have a church with an audience of perhaps two or three hundred, and his influence reaching powerfully twice as many thousands. In scarcely a single instance would these churches be built, or would these results accrue, except the minister were sent there and for a time sustained. Yet, when he has once established himself, made evident his pure intentions, he finds a goodly response to his endeavors.

The entire cost of planting a permanent church in California is not greater than in other new States; only that it is all required in an immediate outlay rather than in installments protracted through a course of years. And then you have a church which will soon come to contribute largely to the great benevolent objects of the day and the world. Pecuniarily, the church can well afford to work with vigor in a field so promising. It is but lending from the great fund to which our all is devoted; if we be the consecrated of Christ, it is but lending to a State that promises quickly to pay back more than principal and interest. Without this aid, but little of the wealth of our golden hills could we hope to see devoted to the religious benefit of man and the world. With this aid, in cultivating our fine field, we hope to see there a large christian benevolence developed, of which the Pacific Chinese mission is but a small first-fruit offering. Thus, we hope to see, through the blessing of God, California in her time doing more for the world than any other State whatever. The expectation is not unreasonable. Let us now speak of the demand of our field. The present supply of ministers there is altogether inadequate. Of our 300,000 people, more than 200,000 are Americans. Of the denominations acting with this Society, there are nowin California fifteen congregations and ministers supplying them; which is a proportion of one minister to about 14,000 American people. Of Old School Presbyterian, Baptist, and Episcopalian, taken together, there are about the same number of churches enjoying the stated ministry as of the denominations acting with this Society, perhaps two or three more. The Methodist ministry is considerably larger, but yet insufficient for their work. Large and populous districts are unsupplied with resident pastors. Some of these are presented in the Home Missionary for May, in a communication from a committee of our Presbytery and Association. Four important and inviting seaport towns are unsupplied, and several wide and thickly-settled mining and farming districts. Mr. Harmon is located in a county of 20,000 people, and Mr. Pierpont in one of 40,000. Yet their parishes cannot consistently be divided until several other important localities are supplied. Twenty men could this day advantageously locate themselves. Our population is rapidly increasing. Besides churches, institutions of learning are immediately called for. Work is augmenting. The men who are bearing the burden and heat of the day have too much to do. A crushing load is upon them. Gladly they seize their work. Not one would be elsewhere. But their work is disproportioned to their strength, and they are often disheartened at seeing large fields lie waste.

A word of the kind of men which our State demands. There is a population there to appreciate the best of talent; there is an amount of work to inspire the intensest energies. Choice men are needed. They who fail to reach the sympathies of that energetic, strong-thinking, and quick-acting people must only disappoint and cumber the church. Missionary men are wanted, who, whatever strength, talent, experience they carry, are willing to build on their own foundation. There are no foundations there except the hills and plains covered with men. Men of enthusiasm are wanted, who can read the signs of the times and glow with the hopes of a new christian empire rising in the West. Men of prayer are needed to bring with them a divine influence upon a people that have but very little fear of man. To such what a prospect opens! What an inducement is presented to the church, for a special effort to furnish them now! It is not merely that there are thousands of strong young men there—young men from all the East—now unreached, but whose energies and wealth may be largely consecrated to truth and their souls saved for heaven; but here is an opportunity to build a christian State on the Pacific, over against idolatrous Asia, which is now brought near to us by our commerce.

Who has failed to think profoundly about the providence of God in preserving the treasures of that land, and its unrivaled position, to our free, christian nation? and in preserving them until this age, when our freedom and our Christianity have gained a development that make them worth giving to the world? For three hundred years the Spaniards possessed nearly all of the Western coast of America. They ran their race of conquest; dreamed their dream of glory. One by one their provinces became independent. Mexico, in her turn, severed herself from Spain. California then separated from Mexico. Mexico, in her weakness, chose rather to sell California to the United States than attempt to regain it by her arms. Our forces, under Stockton and Fremont, had already conquered it in the war with Mexico. Our flag was then waving in the principal ports; and there may it wave forever. All things were ready. Then, in one month after the treaty of cession, the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, the gold was discovered.

We possessed thus at once one of the very fairest, richest countries of the world; with a soil, a scenery and climate unsurpassed. An area of nearly one hundred millions of acres; a vast extent of choice agricultural land; mountains of forests; hills of gold; eight hundred miles of coast, with several good harbors, besides that of San Francisco, the best in the world. Presently a trade springs up across the great ocean. China is open, and we are knocking at the door of Japan. Spain had never more than thirty large vessels upon that ocean among her Western American provinces. Now suddenly the Pacific foams from the dash of a thousand keels. Her breadth of nine thousand miles of calm waters shall yet be whitened, as the Atlantic is, with canvas. Our own ports are the natural and almost necessary centers of that business and commerce.

We do not apprehend the importance to us, both politically and religiously, of our position on that coast, of the value of California and also of Oregon, because we have not yet begun to apprehend the destiny of that ocean. The Pacific has remained almost an unexplored sea: a mare incognitum. But it has been reserved for a later and better age of the world, as our continent was until 1492. The occupancy of that ocean by the fleets of the world dates an era no less remarkable than did the occupancy of this continent by Europeans. On that ocean peace shall gain her trophies "more renowned than those of war." The battles of the world have not been fought upon it. It has never floated a great Armada. It remains, as its name imports, a tract of peace. But it has a destiny yet commensurate with its breadth and its calm beauty. Our own Sacramento minister, Mr. Benton, says, "The Pacific shall yet be the ocean of the world; and California shall sit regent queen of the pearly domain, and wave her jeweled hand over the proud hereafter." I rejoice for my country in her position there; but yet more I rejoice for the church of God. Above the unfuling of a thousand sails, above the puffing of mammoth steamers, I hear a voice to the church bidding her be true to the indications of Providence, true to her destiny and her duty.

What a vision even now rises before me! dream-like in beauty, but certain as destiny. It is not a vision for many days; its fulfillment is already progressing. I see the four great commercial centers, whose cities belt the globe, London, New York, San Francisco, and Shanghae, brought by steam into quick and constant connection. Along a rumbling track, across our continent, pours a stream of commerce, a tide of travel. I see the Pacific alive with vessels. They visit every island; they penetrate every province of Asia. Old prejudices give way; new thoughts infuse life into the slumbering islands, wake up the dormant East. On those passing and repassing ships I see the nations astir. Swarthy tribes come and fill christian temples on our shore. The old Orient is content to receive light from the glowing Occident. The beams shimmer across the sea; they touch the islands; they begin to rise in their dawn over Asia. Night flees away; morning comes.

"The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ."

Address of Rev. Geo. Richards, of Boston, Mass.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED, That Scepticism, the growth and bane of free institutions, must find its antidote in a preached Gospel.

Scepticism is a general word, admitting of considerable latitude of meaning. It does not include a reasonable hesitation in forming our opinions, a determination to wait and to weigh, to prove all things, and to hold fast that—only that—which is good. It does include an unreasonable reluctance to believe, a looking for proofs that the case does not admit of, a morbid insensibility to reasons for, and a morbid sensibility to reasons against. This, in all its stages and gradations, constitutional or acquired, a disease of the head, or a disease of the heart, is Scepticism. It includes the Infidelity that denies the historical and scientific credibility of the Scriptures;—the Infidelity that goes further, and rejects them as a rule of faith and practice;—the Infidelity that rejects their inspiration, altogether. It includes the Deism that denies a providential and moral Governor of the world; that isolates the Deity from his creatures; builds a wall of adamant, of ice, between him and us. It includes the Pantheism that confounds God and the Universe; makes everything to be God, and God to be everything; transplants the monstrous phantoms of Hindoo subtilty and superstition into this practical and iron age of ours. It includes the Unbelief that denies moral distinctions; that views right and wrong as the mere result of education; conscience one thing in one man, and another in another; one thing in one age, and another in another; one thing in one country, and another in another. It includes the Universal Doubt, that distrusts everything, that doubts that it doubts, doubts that it exists. Up this dizzy and slippery ladder has the human mind toiled, losing sight of the solid ground, of the very rounds by which it climbed, looking off into utter emptiness, its head giddy with the elevation, all the while establishing what it endeavored to refute; its audacity, its ingenuity, its fertility of resource, its scope and range, "confirmation strong as proofs from holy writ," that it sprung from God, that traces of its origin still cling to it, that it is immortal like its source, eternity alone the field adequate to its full exercise and development.

This scepticism—according to the resolution—is the growth of free institutions. Free institutions throw wide the gates, inviting all to enter. Free thinking improves the opportunity. Curbed and restrained elsewhere, it naturally repairs where it can have the largest license. But not only is it thus welcomed from abroad, it is engendered at home. Men free in action, wish to be free in thought. Free in thinking on political subjects, they wish to be free in thinking on moral and religious subjects. The appetite is one that grows by what it feeds on. It would not be easy to persuade this nation to go to Rome for its creed; to be taught what it shall and shall not believe, by popes and cardinals;—some hesitate to be thus instructed by prophets and apostles. Not all the Cossacks, who throng the Danube or the Don, could bring us to bow the knee to one man;—some grow restive under the sway of one God. We are fond of legislating. All the way from the town-meeting to the Senate house, it is the same. Common law must give place to statute, the ancient to the modern. Codes must vary with an ever varying public sentiment; hence some rebel against a law immutable and eternal, no one enactment of which they can repeal or annul. We see the tendency. It is from much to more; from freedom in some things, to freedom in all things; from indulgence to excess. Scepticism is liberty run mad.

Such product of free institutions is the bane of free institutions. Men must be governed. We need a path marked out for us, and to be held to it. Else life runs to waste, is without aim, the sport of circumstances. No man is safe who is not put and kept under constraint. How is he to be constrained? In some countries it is effected by physical force—standing armies, garrisons in large towns and small towns—one heel on the liberty of speech, the other on the liberty of the press—no two talking together in the street after nightfall, without a third to overhear and report—spies in the kitchen and the parlor, at the family altar, and in the sanctuary—the confessional, a vast whispering gallery, where the bent ear of despotism may catch the faintest murmur of the lip or beating of the heart. Such is the enginery that in lands, not a few, crushes the abject masses.

In some countries is the habit of submission. Though the bayonets are diminished or withdrawn, the ubiquitous vigilance relaxed, still the mind yields, from custom; the bow has been bent too long, and too far, to straighten itself; the stone is rolled back from the door of the sepulchre, but there is no resurrection of the dead.

In some countries, sentiment is relied upon, the spirit of loyalty, reverence for the past, for hereditary and time-sanctioned institutions. Men recoil from change, grow jealous of innovation.

Among us, physical force is out of the question. Not the fleets and armies of the globe could put down and keep down this people. The experiment has been tried and failed.

So with the habit of submission. Ours is a habit of the contrary, a habit of resistance. When yet in the gristle, owing and owning our allegiance to the mother country, we were not among the most tractable of children, nor can we be said to have grown docile since. So, also, with the sentiment of loyalty, and veneration for past usages. We have no past. We are of yesterday, a nation born in a day. Our midnight joins on to our midnoon, without intervening twilight. Why, sir, who is the brother* just alluded to, the first settled Protestant pastor, on our Pacific coast? He is, as I happen to know, a lineal descendant of Elder Brewster, of the May Flower, the first Puritan teacher and preacher on the Atlantic coast. It would seem as if the ages had shrunk together—as if the parted oceans were contiguous, and the mouldered hand of the dead were extending christian fellowship to the warm, strong hand of the living.

How, then, the question returns, is man to be held firm and true? Either he must govern himself, or the community at large must govern him. How is he to govern himself—if this Bible is no more to him than other books, less to him than other books, the mere fragment of an exploded superstition? How, if prayer is the veriest mockery,—a plea addressed either to ignorance or to indifference—to a being who cannot hear, or a being who does not care? How, if God be resolved into a vague and shadowy abstraction, his personality denied,— or, if his very existence be voted down—his name and attributes erased as with a sponge from the catalogue of things? How, if conscience be regarded as a delusion; its most most solemn affirmations prejudices; no such thing as duty; heaven a gilded toy to amuse children; hell the bugbear to frighten them? Such a man cannot be relied on to restrain himself. He is not a safe member of society. He cannot steer steadily, persistently his bark,—helm and hand both overboard.

Nothing remains, but that the community look after him—protect him, and itself against him. But the community is made up of individuals. What if, one and all, they renounce the Bible, and dethrone God, and forswear moral distinctions? Incapable, each of controlling himself, can all wisely and safely control each? Unquestionably, here and there a philosopher, a scholar, quiet, secluded, fond of books and reputation, may live respectably and die decently—believing anything or nothing, as he pleases,—but most men are not scholars or philosophers,—but stirring, enterprising, practical, of strong impulses, and impetuous passions, needing bit and bridle; and even the philosopher must be guarded and guarded against, by true and better men about him. An entire commonwealth of unbelievers would be uninhabitable. It would be a paradise of fools—a cage of unclean birds—a den of lions, springing at each others throats, and weltering in each others blood. There is but one such permanent community, in all the universe of God—in hell; not there, "the devils believe and tremble." Tolerated for a time on earth, such confederacy would demand another deluge, to sweep it to the perdition it defies and deserves. Where, then, lies the antidote to the obvious tendencies in that direction? In a preached Gospel.

Plant your Preacher in any community the most faithless and irreligious. Let him be a man earnest, laborious, discreet, devout. He, at least, keeps the Sabbath; then the Sabbath is kept. One day is distinguished from the six. There is a pause between the world and the world. He will find imitators. He appoints public services upon the Sabbath; they will be attended. Some will come from curiosity; some because others come. The scorner will look in, asking—"What will this babbler say?" The wary and wakeful politician—his eyes open day and night—will patronize the worship, lending his presence and countenance to so conservative an institution. The love of eloquence—among the strongest of passions in a free people—will draw those who like to be addressed, to be argued with and appealed to as reasoning and reasonable beings. The meeting may be held under the blue skies, or the green leaves, or beneath some thatched yet hospitable roof—it will be attended. The minister prays, not at the people, for them—for himself and them, alike sinful before the Sinless; and hearts will respond, Amen! They sing—the familiar hymn in familiar tune, learned, perhaps, by the shore of the farther ocean, and old memories will wake, and fresh tears will gush at the sweet refrain. He opens this Book; reads it, let us suppose, well, with appropriate tone and emphasis, and unction—believing and feeling what he reads. He will be heard. Never is the Bible well read, that it is not heard. There is that in it which has kept it alive through its thousands of years; that which, to-day, is translating it into even new languages and dialects; that which creates, for its special accommodation, dictionaries, grammars, alphabets, where there were none; that which keeps the most learned and sagacious of sceptics still busy over it, illustrating and expounding, and, in spite of themselves, establishing; that which makes the researches in Palestine, and along the Nile, and on the banks of the Tigris and Euphrates, new demonstrations of its inspiration. This ineradicable, inextinguishable life and force will win eye and ear.

Then, as his special, distinctive function,—emptying this garnered wealth, history, prophecy, parable, epistle, the grandest imagery, the most picturesque description—emptying all into his crucible—let the preacher extract from all their essence, their substance, the glowing and molten ore, the pure Gospel of Christ. Let him hold that truth—the simplest, yet most comprehensive of truths—that revelation of Deity in humanity, which reconciles humanity with Deity—let him hold that truth clear, legible, palpable before the intellect; press its claims upon the conscience, praying, the while, the omnipotent Spirit to win it access to the heart, and it will prove, in the case of multitudes, the power of God and the wisdom of God, to their salvation.

Sir, let the Society, over which you preside, station such men in all the cities and villages, and over the wide area of this continent; let it precede and succeed them with its prayers and sympathy; let them take possession of the ground, and originate and foster every enterprise which looks to and leans on the Gospel for support—christian homes, christian schools, christian churches, the communion of the saints—society pervaded throughout with the spreading leaven,—and, my word for it, nay! God's word for it, you will have furnished the antidote to that Scepticism, which is the "growth" and "bane" of "free institutions."

Address of Rev. George Thacher, of New York,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED—That the history of this Society, distinguished as it has been by every element of success, augurs a future of unexampled prosperity, in its relations to the growth and the glory both of our Country and the Church of God.

The general truth which underlies this sentiment is not a novel one. Three thousand years ago it was written,—"that which hath been, it is that which shall be." In other words, the history of the past is a mirror in which we see reflected the outline of the future. By the aid of experience we judge of coming events,—not with the definiteness and certainty of divine inspiration, but yet with a degree of accuracy, and with a confidence in our predictions which subsequent developments will sustain. Every new undertaking is an experiment; its friends and promoters are embarrassed by the uncertainty of the issue. When a plan is formed whose operations and results are not intended to terminate at a given time, but to reach onward through an indefinite series of years or generations, if it bear well the first protracted trial, its permanent utility is no longer considered as a question but as a fact.

The Society whose Anniversary we this evening celebrate, has been in existence just eight and twenty years. Our resolution speaks of its history during this period, as warranting the confident expectation of its continued and ultimate success. A few remarks will show that this is correct. For on examination of its annual reports, especially of its statistical tables, we find it has these four characteristics which insure for it a prosperous career henceforth.

1st. It has vitality.

For more than a quarter of century, it has maintained a vigorous existence. It has done this in a natural, systematic, and steadfast manner; with internal harmony; constantly abiding by its professed principles; aiming undeviatingly at its avowed objects; at all times employing the same simple means and agencies; calmly meeting and easily surmounting all difficulties; never exhausting its resources nor losing its activity or courage or zeal. Thus, it has shown that it possesses an inherent life, an organic and self-sustaining power, and is not an ephemeral creation that may be annihilated by the first gale of adverse fortune, but endowed with strength to maintain its existence and position, despite all the embarrassments which may encumber it.

2ndly. It has the progressive element.

In its first year, this Institution received into its treasury the small sum of $18,000; in the year now closed, its receipts were $191,000. In its first year, its number of missionaries was 169; in the last year, it employed more than a thousand. In its first year, the number of congregations and missionary districts which it supplied with more or less of ministerial labor, was 196; now that number has increased to more than twenty one hundred!

At the beginning, its operations were chiefly confined to our Middle States; now they extend from the Aroostook to the Colorado, and from Massachusetts Bay to the great Pacific. It has, then, more than mere vitality. It has done more than preserve its original life and power. It has proved itself worthy of its name as an American institution. It has enlarged its sphere with the increase of our national territory, has multiplied its agencies with the spread of our population, has grown up from infancy to manhood, and gone on from strength to strength, until now it wields a power which makes Satan tremble and Heaven rejoice.

3rdly. It has efficiency. The efforts it has made for evangelizing the country have not been in vain. Under its auspices, more than 1,500 solid years of labor have been performed, by educated and ordained ministers in more than 4,000 destitute, or at least, needy places. Not less than half a million of children have received sound religious instruction in the Sabbath school. Upwards of 125,000 souls have been received into the churches that have enjoyed its patronage. Of these churches, more than nine hundred have through its assistance gained sufficient strength to sustain their own gospel institutions, and not a few of these are among the strongest and most influential churches in the land.

Now, Sir, we may safely challenge any reasonable christian man to contemplate the vast import of these facts, their value received and their far-reaching consequences, and then deny that this Society has done a work, I will not say, of which we should be proud, but for which we have abundant reason to praise and bless Almighty God.

The 4th characteristic of this Society, before referred to as an earnest of its future success, is the place it occupies in the esteem of that large portion of the churches of our country on whose support it depends.

It was originally the product of the genuine Christianity of these churches, and as soon as it came into being and assumed a definite form, they recognized it as their offspring, and began to cherish it with parental love. From that day to this, they have been faithful to their trust. Watching its growth and observing its operations, their regard for it has constantly increased; they have sustained it by their prayers and counsels, and labors; they have given up many thousands of their sons and daughters to devote their lives to its service; and have met its pecuniary wants with annual free-will offerings, the splendid aggregate of which is TWO AND THREE QUARTER MILLIONS OF DOLLARS!

But, Mr. President, is it not a certainty that an organization whose history so clearly reveals these attributes of perpetuity and power, will, with the blessing of Heaven, continue to prosecute its beneficent work until its glorious mission shall have been fully achieved? Sir, it is not a matter of doubt at all. If there is any truth in philosophy; if there is any tenacity of purpose in human nature; if like causes produce like effects; if the Bible is a revelation from Heaven; if the human soul is a sinful, accountable, immortal thing; if the crucifixion of Jesus for the salvation of men is a sublime and momentous fact; if the Spirit of God dwells in the hearts of his people, there is no human prediction more sure of fulfillment, than that this American Home Missionary Society will for a long time to come persist in its prayerful, organized, efficient labors for the universal ascendancy of the spirit and precepts of the Gospel in the hearts of the people of this land. Even should it change its policy or become known by another name, still, in its essence, it is destined to live, and grow, and accumulate results more valuable and magnificent than have yet been conceived. It cannot fail: it cannot falter. There is no provision for such a contingency in our constitution: blessed be God! there are no such fears in our hearts. The doctrine of the perseverance of the saints is true in more senses than one. That faith in Christ, and that love to man in which our Society had its origin, and which have been the source of its life and growth and fruitfulness ever since, have lost no measure of their influence, but will hereafter move the friends of the Redeemer with a perpetual impulse, to use, with ever increasing activity and urgency and power, the means which this Institution affords for arresting the progress of error and sin in our country, for saving the souls of our countrymen, for laying waste the strongholds of Satan and building up the kingdom of God in every part of the nation.

But the future successes of our work are declared in the resolution to have an important bearing on our national welfare. It is often said that this is already a great country. The remark is true. But on this occasion, it becomes us to think of what our country may be, rather than of what it is. But how can we adequately set forth the probable destiny of this great confederacy? We need some Banvard or Catherwood, who, with prophetic eye could penetrate the darkness of the future, and with truthful pencil, and in vivid colors, paint a panorama of our nation in its final greatness and magnificence. For since the world was made, the sun has not shone on, nor the human mind imagined a scene so wonderful and imposing, as that which there is reason to believe this country will present to the eye of an observer some centuries from now. We have, Mr. President, an area of three and a third millions of square miles, more vast than the whole Continent of Europe, fifty times as large as all New England.

This immense territory is capable of sustaining, and at some future time probably will sustain, 500 millions of human beings. I make this statement, incredible as its truth may at first appear, after an examination of the subject; but without delaying to construct an argument to prove it, as might be done, would our time permit, I simply offer in support of its correctness, the fact, that the kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland has 200 persons to the square mile; at which rate our country would have the enormous mass of 660 millions!

For the sake of not transcending the utmost limits of human belief, I have deducted about one fourth from this sum; but even with this abatement we shall have a numerical force of more than one half the present population of the globe. This, sir, is a most startling and stupendous thought, and may well make every living citizen of the land tremble at his responsibility for the welfare of these unborn myriads. But with the increase of inhabitants, there will be, it is believed, a progress in all the other elements of national prosperity. Agriculture, commerce, the arts, education, science, letters, freedom, virtue, the social and domestic institutions, everything conducive to the substantial happiness of the people, will flourish and approximate to a perfect and stable condition. Now, if these predictions be well founded, what a prospect have we before us! Look abroad in imagination and view this country, as it will be from ten to twenty generations hence. Behold its 500,000,000 of busy mortals! See them in their crowded cities, their noisy factories, their cultivated fields. Observe them as they move, with hasty step and anxious or hopeful face, through the thronged street, or course their way along the great lines of travel. Watch them as, with look of high intelligence and grave concern, they assemble in their chambers of legislation, or gather in solemn silence in their holy temples. Gaze on them as they sit in social glee around the festive board, or celebrate the joys of a youthful bride, or weep beside a dying friend or new made grave. Behold them in their seats of learning, their courts of justice, their places of exchange, their markets, their prisons, their almshouses, their hospitals. Survey the land thickly studded with towns and villages, checkered with a universal webwork of telegraphs and railways; its rivers and lakes white with sails and alive with steamers; its vast prairies cut into farms, and yielding their abundant harvests; its coasts lined with merchantmen; every spot of its wide area filled with signs of human enterprise, with the fruits of human genius, and skill, and industry, and with all the varied means of human happiness.

This is our country not many hundred years from to-day. These mighty masses are to be the inheritors of our wealth, institutions, laws, and liberties. Think of it, my friends! A nation of 500,000,000 of men dwelling on our seas and shores, our hillsides and plains, free, intelligent, enterprising, virtuous, happy! How thrilling, how exhilirant, how august the scene! But on what rests our hope that this vision will become a fact? Not on the perfectibility of unaided human nature; not on the necessary laws of human progress; not on the vitality and vigor of our free institutions; not on the patriotism of our politicians and statesmen; not on our naval and military strength; not on the intelligence of the people, or the wisdom of our philosophers; but on Christianity, on the self-propagating power of the church, on the permanency and efficiency of such agencies as this Society employs. What are its agencies?

When an army is engaged in actual warfare, there is often a band of men chosen from all the officers and soldiers, distinguished for their military skill and personal bravery, and detailed to encounter the enemy in circumstances which require the coolest and most reckless courage, and which render the sacrifice of their lives almost a certainty. The American Home Missionary Society is waging a holy war against the forces of sin in these United States, and aiming to bring the hearts of this people into blessed subjection to Christ Jesus, the great Captain of salvation. With this intent, it selects able-bodied men, with well trained minds, ordained to the christian ministry, wise in council, prompt in action, full of faith and the Holy Ghost, willing to relinquish all hopes of fame and fortune, and to "jeopard their lives unto the death in the high places of the field," in the service of their Lord; and these men it sends forth one by one, into our new and growing settlements, to proclaim the message of the Gospel. Each one begins his work on some Sabbath morning, perhaps, by preaching in a barn, a school house, a tavern or a town hall. He collects a little company of Christians and founds a church. He commences a Sabbath school, a Bible class, a prayer meeting, and a weekly lecture. Through his efforts a house of worship is built and paid for. Conversions are multiplied and the church is enlarged. It is recognized as a successful undertaking. It grows with the thriving community around it. Its influence permeates society. It is the supporter of education and social order and industrial enterprise. It operates as a corrective of error, a guide to public sentiment, a check on vice and crime, a preventive and cure of misery, a nursery of virtue and piety, a fountain of every salutary influence. Meanwhile, the self-denying missionary, having persisted in his labors till the end, dies on the field with his harness on, and, forgotten in this world, becomes a king and priest unto God in heaven. But the work begun by him goes on, and the single church which he established, becomes in process of time, two, or three, or four. And these multiplied results of his exertions last through many generations or ages, and contribute greatly to the highest and happiest development of the resources of a wide region of country, and of the talents, the characters and the destiny of a vast multitude of men. This is no exaggeration. It is all true, and its truth has been many times exemplified in the history of the churches of our land.

But if so, can any man estimate the profit which has accrued, and will yet accrue to the country from the 900 churches which this Society has already fostered into maturity and permanence? Much more, can any man estimate the advantages, which the nation will derive from the much greater number of churches that are certain to be established by the same instrumentality, during the hundred years to come? Let this work go on, sir, as we are sure it will go on, and we know, we do not guess, that it will quicken the growth of our country as but few if any other agencies can, and powerfully promote that consummation of our national glory, which we can but feebly imagine and still more feebly portray.

But our resolution suggests a far more important and engaging theme—the future influence of our Society on the church of God.

He is a poor Christian who does not love the nation with which he is identified. But the nation—unlike the church, which is immortal—is but a temporary thing. It is destined to become extinct; for the world itself will have an end. Because the world is only an expedient of God for the accomplishment of a purpose worthy of his infinite attributes, the establishment, growth, and perfection of the church. For so the Scriptures teach. When the world and all that it contains shall have passed away, its ultimate and eternal product shall appear in the redeemed and glorified church, in the congregation of all the saints, constituted into one holy family, in a state of the highest exaltation, of unmarred purity, of divine splendor, of perfect and evergrowing felicity. Wonderful, transcendent thought! The church of God, whose history began with the first conversion of a sinner to holiness, whose existence was preserved for many centuries in the bosom of the Jewish people until Christ came; which, from its pentecostal baptism till now, has been growing by accretions from every tribe of men to which the glad tidings of salvation have been preached, and will go on henceforth extending its conquests, multiplying its numbers, and fulfilling its mission till the judgment trump shall sound; then, having withstood all the opposition of sin and Satan, and outlived all the mutations of time, to be made complete, to be crowned with glory, and eternised in heaven! Most radiant and sublime conception, which the mind of man could never have reached but for the inspiration of God! Are we not right in calling this a more enrapturing theme than the growth and grandeur of our country?

But if the affairs of the world are conspiring to this thrice glorious issue, so are the affairs of every nation in which the true religion has a being, and of our own not least. Therefore, while we felicitate ourselves on the work of patriotic benevolence, which our Society has done and will yet do, much more do we exult in its contribution to the progress and completion of the kingdom of Christ. For every church founded and nurtured by it into strength and permanence, will become a powerful coadjutor with all other churches in the great work of evangelizing the world, in filling up the complement of the redeemed, and preparing the bride of Immanuel for her perfect union and eternal fellowship with her Lord.

This Society, then, in its operations and aims, affords the weightiest, and at the same time the most laudable incitements, as well as the widest scope to our ambition. It opens to us a field of labor in which the angels might love to engage. It appeals to our patriotism, but it makes a far stronger appeal to a far deeper and holier sentiment—our Christianity. It invites us to a work whose blessed influences shall flow onward through the country's and the world's existence; whose results will be seen and rejoiced in long after time shall have ceased to be, and win for us the benedictions of the saved before the throne while immortality shall endure.

Brethren, friends, what a privilege is ours! How noble a trust has our Lord committed to us! With what mighty motives are we impelled forward in our work! What honors shall we attain if we persevere to the end; honors as lustrous and unfading as the diadems of Prophets and Apostles!

Never, Mr. President, since the light of immortal hope first faintly gleamed in the soul of fallen man, never have the people of God had such an opportunity for proving their devotion to Christ and their love to men, as is now offered to the Christians of America. And I confess, sir, that the thought of the conquests which the church will hereafter achieve in our land, makes me wish to live to behold them; unless we may all expect to look down and witness them from the heavenly world. Nor is this an unreasonable expectation. For must we not believe, that the many honored missionaries and officers of this Society, who have been already translated to the skies, are watching the progress of our cause with an eager interest and an intense delight unknown on earth?

But among them all there is one, more fresh in our remembrance if not more dear to our hearts than any other; who for twenty six years was your beloved associate; who one year ago sat beside you on this platform for the last time; that holy man of feeble frame, and mild but serious look and meek demeanor, yet a man of scholarship, learning, taste, and genius; a clear thinker, a wise counsellor, a patient and effective worker, a faithful friend, a self-denying and heavenly-minded saint—our late Secretary, CHARLES HALL. Thanks be to God for his lengthened and cheerful labors, his bright example, his fervent prayers, his calmly triumphant death. Thanks be to God that though gone he is not lost, though dead he yet speaketh, though absent from us he is present with Christ.

Thanks, everlasting thanks, for our hope that when our labors here shall be done we also shall rise to the heavenly mansions, there to await, with serene delight, the coming of that great day when, earth's long drama closed, Christ shall say, with a deeper meaning than when he first spoke the words on Calvary, "it is finished;" when God, beholding the issue of redemption, shall pronounce it very good; when we shall view a more wondrous display of divine glory than has yet been revealed or imagined; when every harp and voice of heaven shall join in the everlasting song; when all the host of the elect shall enter on their eternal life in God, and take possession of the kingdom prepared for them from the foundation of the world.

MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS.

FROM THE PUBLICATIONS AND CORRESPONDENCE OF THE SOCIETY.

The "Sunny Side."

There are, after all, many things to cheer the toiler in this wilderness. To see some who were found here ten years ago the enemies of God by wicked works, who, by the blessing of God upon prayer and the preaching of his Word, are now advancing to christian manhood, and becoming pillars in the churches; to see refinement and intelligence, the means of education, and a strong gospel influence, and moral and church-going habits, where you once saw a destitution of all these, is in the highest degree cheering. It is worth more than the prospect of a comfortable support, or the luxuries of a convenient and tasteful home. How gratifying, too, to look over the territory embraced in the northern half of Iowa, and behold what the Lord hath wrought in ten short years. Where there are now between thirty and forty Congregational and Presbyterian churches, there were not ten; and two thirds of these have comfortable houses of worship completed, or building, while at that time there were only two or three. The six or seven lonely ministers who then occupied this same region, are now surrounded with a band of more than thirty. Nor have these brethren labored in vain. The refreshing showers of grace have descended upon many of these churches, and scores have been added to them of such as shall be saved. Ought not those who are permitted to witness such changes as these, to feel cheered and encouraged? Surely here is brightness enough for one life. I doubt whether it would be best for an ambassador of Christ to have more.

A Fruitful Year.

The feebleness of many churches lies mainly in their ignorance of their own resources, and to develop and render them available is an important duty of the missionary. He combines the diverse and scattered elements, proposes schemes of improvement, awakens hope, stimulates effort, and thus puts in operation agencies of good which had till then been unknown. By forming the habit of self-reliance, they soon reach the condition of self-support.

When I came here the church was weak and discouraged. The congregation was small, the house of worship small, cold, and uninviting. There had been alienations and divisions, though hostilities had ceased, and there was a disposition for peace, or, rather, a dread of division. The house of worship has been enlarged, re-seated, painted and furnished, and rendered convenient and pleasant. The congregation is much enlarged, and remains uniform. Ten have been added to the church, of whom two are young men who were converted among us during the year. One of them is now a member of Beloit College. Entire harmony exists in the church as far as I know.

The people are astonished at their own doings during the year, in pecuniary matters. They paid up an old debt (arrearages on the salary of a former minister), about $40; contributed to A. B. C. F. M., $30; Am. Bible Society, $30; Cong. Church Building Fund, $54; A. H. M. S., $30; for the enlargement of their church, $316; for salary (being $100 more than ever before), $350; subscribed in my congregation for the Institute, over $5,000, of which about $2,000 has been paid and spent on the building.

Changes in Four Years.

Looking back upon the nearly four years of labor amid all the discouragements of the place, I exclaim, "What hath God wrought?" Here we now see a temple erected to his praise; a church, organized with seven members, now numbers nineteen, one of whom is now studying for the ministry. A Sabbath school and Bible class are taught, and thus the leaven of Christianity is diffusing itself among the young. The greatest result is the unobserved change which has been wrought in the general features of society. Some have profaned the name of God less; some have violated his holy day less; some have attended church more; more respect has been paid to the burial of the dead. When I first came to this Territory, it was no uncommon thing to see the dead treated like dead swine, a hole being dug and rough boards, or even barrels, used as coffins; but now, almost every person, whether he be a citizen or a stranger, is buried with christian services and in a decent manner. These, and other unthought-of things, are changes which God has accomplished, in part, at least, by the agency of your noble Society. What a work, will the day of revelation discover to us, has been accomplished by the instrumentality of the A. H. M. S.

The lapse of Twenty Years.

The following interesting reminiscences are furnished by a Missionary, who was himself one of the fruits of missionary effort in the region where he now labors to bring others to the Savior.

It was my privilege to attend the meeting of the Congregational General Association at Quincy. It was a precious privilege for me to attend that meeting, at that place, for it afforded an excellent opportunity to review the past, and see what the Lord had done for us in this part of the West. It was in that part of the county where, twenty years ago, the first Congregational church was formed in this State, of which I was one of the original members. There was then no Congregational, and few, if any, Presbyterian churches north of these in the State. Iowa and Wisconsin were unknown, except as the abode of the Indian and the Indian trader. And as we met there a little band of disciples, numbering, I believe, sixteen, in a log cabin, and with the assistance of one of your missionaries, we were permitted to enter into covenant with God and one another, to labor for him, how little we realized what years would bring to pass—what progress, what changes! These you are as familiar with as I am almost, for the great moral changes that have been produced, your Society has had an important hand in bringing about. I think I could truly thank the Lord, and take courage; and so can your Society. It was also near Quincy where I tried to settle the question nineteen years ago, whether I would give up the employment (to me a favorite one), of tilling the ground, and commence a preparation for the more arduous and self-denying work of preaching the Gospel. The struggles of mind that I then had between inclination and duty; the decision I then came to; the corn-field where that decision was made, all came before my mind with the freshness of recent events, and I trust not without profit to me. If I had been such a minister as I then hoped I might be, how much more good I should have done.

A Contrast.

Another quarter of missionary labor has been performed; how well, or with what success, can only be known fully when all the little streams of influence, which make up so great a part of a missionary's life, shall have finished their windings and emptied into the common ocean—Eternity.

When I contrast my present circumstances with those which existed when I came here, less than two years since, I feel greatly encouraged, and am led to exclaim, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us!" I remember the old leaky house of worship where, on a rainy day, I was compelled to move my old Bible lest it should be still more defaced by the rain; I call to mind the almost insufferable heat in summer, and cold through the floor in the winter we then experienced.

I remember, as a consequence of these things, how few came to the solemn feasts of the sanctuary, and how nearly these discouragements drove us from our field, to seek another where the probabilities of success would be greater. But now how changed! That New England spire, the finger-board, I trust, of our faith; that comely structure, beautiful, attractive, and comfortable, both in summer and winter; that new Bible and becoming pulpit; those easy and well-filled seats; that choir, increased in numbers and in the richness of its music, too, by the soft tones of a melodeon—all these things, with an audience increased by half, truly awake my wonder and my gratitude to God, while hope brightens in the future.

Seed sown by the Wayside.

There is a species of labor which Home Missionaries engage in more or less, that is to them most pleasant, and often, no doubt, productive of good to others.

About five miles from this village is a public watering place, where, of late, hundreds of people resort almost every Sabbath. The proprietor of the place, and a few invalid friends who were seeking benefit from certain springs, had earnestly besought me to come and preach to them. There were from two to three hundred persons on and about the grounds. Many were quaffing at the bubbling fountain, and many more lounging in the shade of the overhanging oaks, while others were rambling here and there wherever the most earnest conversation or loudest laughing called them. They were, indeed, without form and void, as a worshiping congregation. A few temporary seats, occupied by the female portion of the assemblage, beneath two large forest trees, indicated where I was to stand; but how the scattered multitude were to be collected and approached was not apparent. At the appointed time, however, I rose, and after alluding to the difficulty of securing general attention under such circumstances, requested that all would place themselves as conveniently as possible for hearing what I had to say to them. They at once came forward, and, taking the most convenient positions they could find,—some perched upon the top of a long line of fence, some beneath them at its base, some standing erect, some reclining upon the grass in the valley, and others upon the hill side, gave, for more than an hour (with a few exceptions), the closest, and seemingly most solemn attention.

And there, beneath the open heavens and the waving forest—rich in its midsummer robes of mingled foliage, fruits, and flowers—all nature seemed to assist me in proclaiming the greatness of the gospel scheme of mercy. Reminding them, in conclusion, that as speaker and hearers of this great salvation, we had met but once, and would probably meet no more until at the Judgment we should stand face to face, and account for the improvement of that hour, they were commended to the grace of God in strong hope that all had not heard in vain: for there was seen the anxious countenance, the suppressed emotions struggling within, the moistened eye, and tears of joy, if not of grief.

Home Missionary Influence.

In the early settlement of Illinois, two missionaries of this Society came among us and preached. They found a young man among the wild people of the prairies and forests. They admitted him to the church, and advised him to study for the ministry. One of them came to his boarding place every day, and instructed him, there being no schools in the neighborhood. A year or two after, in 1830, a company of Home Missionaries founded Illinois College. This young man went there to college, but could only take with him one suit of clothes, and 75 cents in change; he had not a relation in the world able to assist him, neither had he talents sufficiently brilliant to attract, and thereby get friends. While overcome with discouragements, a Home Missionary came to him and said, "Don't be discouraged, we will see you through." That young man worked his way through college, and graduated in 1836. Being in debt, he taught school five years, paid off all his debts, and saved money enough to pay his way at Lane Seminary. While teaching, he prepared several young men for college, three of whom I know to be now Home Missionaries among the destitute. This man is yet a Home Missionary himself, and can call more than one hundred new born souls his spiritual children. He is yet poor and often discouraged, but when a quarterly draft is met so promptly by the Home Missionary Society, he lifts his head, and feels that God has means.

Building for the Future.

I am glad that the Lord has alloted to me a field in this country. I enjoy the work of preaching the Gospel in these wastes. This is the country of the future; and though the beginnings of spiritual things be small and of slow progress, the end will not be so. Under every discouragement, it is a comforting thought that he who labors at the beginning of an enterprise performs a service just as important as he who accomplishes the finishing work. The men who framed the code of laws which were to govern the infant colony of Plymouth, rendered for mankind a service as important as the framers of our national Constitution.

It is with such considerations that we are strengthened in our labors in this land where foundation work is to be done. Our work must tell on future ages. How disheartened is the missionary tempted to feel, sometimes, when he goes a dozen miles over these frosty prairies to preach to perhaps a dozen hearers—what small business—how little will it ever amount to! But his work is as useful and necessary, as acceptable to Jesus Christ, and gains for him as much the sympathy of his Redeemer, as that of the man who preaches the word of life to multitudes in crowded cities. He who puts but a stone in a chink of the temple, or drives a nail, does a work, in its place, as necessary for the completeness of the edifice, as he who hews and places the great stones, or prepares the beams of cedar. He who plants the seed, or turns over the soil, does what is as necessary as he who gathers the harvest. And the Missionary Society, which aids and sustains these laborers, is doing the same work—a work small in its beginnings, but, with the blessing of God, great in its results. If we lay the foundation right—if we build on it "gold, silver, precious stones"—if we labor with zeal and fidelity—it is glorious to look forward to what these hundred churches in Wisconsin will be, half a hundred years hence, vastly increased in numbers, and, we hope, in piety and zeal; no longer dependent on foreign aid, but pouring forth of their own fullness to send the Gospel to the most distant parts of our fallen world.

Visit to a Church in the Wilderness.

The small church was more than sixty miles away, and it required two busy days to reach it by such roads as we have. I found Col. W., a prominent member, on the afternoon of the second day, sixteen miles this side of his home. It was two o'clock, and we could not reach his house before six. He immediately resolved on a meeting that evening at the school-house near his residence, and managed so to extend the notice that a good congregation convened. The little flock are scattered over an area fourteen miles in length; but they were very glad to get together for divine worship: for which purpose all the horses and oxen in the vicinity were in requisition; and one of the brethren came seven miles on foot, and returned, both on Saturday and Sunday. It was a beautiful sight to behold eight or ten yoke of oxen before the door with their vehicles loaded with people. I visited as many as possible; held meetings in the various neighborhoods; distributed what tracts I had; received one into communion with the church on professing faith, whom the Lord had awakened on a former visit, and one by letter. So, after breaking bread to them, I left the small band of believers, and a number of anxiously inquiring sinners in sadness, until your Society shall commission and send a servant of the Lord to look after them.

In the week allotted to this visitation, I traveled 180 miles on horseback, on foot, and by sled, and preached eleven times.

"Faint, yet Pursuing."

I entered this field deeply impressed with its need of evangelical labor, to check the tide of error and worldliness, and to educate the minds of the people in gospel truth. The moral soil had been left so long to the husbandry of the Prince of Darkness, that soul-destroying errors had grown to a prominent height, and were exerting a fearful influence for ill. Hence, to uproot them, or to neutralize their influence by presenting a better faith, is not the work of a moment. I have desired to see the fruit of my ministry in the speedy conversion of many sinners to God; but in this I have not been gratified to the extent of my wishes. Some few have professed faith in Christ under my ministry, since I have been here, but in a great degree I have been obliged to walk by faith and not by sight,—to labor and leave the result to God. I have thus been laboring for more than two years on this field, amid alternate scenes of encouragement and discouragement; and, but for the word of promise, "Lo, I am with you," my courage would fail. But as the natural husbandman hath long patience till he receive the early and latter rain, so the moral husbandman must "bide God's time," assured that, "he that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

A pleasant Reminiscence.

"Away out West," far up on the bank of the beautiful "Des Moines," stands our church, where ten years since the lands were yet the home and property of the Red Skin, with no civilization nearer than forty miles. In the fall of 1843, I, a wild, restless boy, in company with six others older than myself, attended the last treaty made with the Sacs and Foxes, at which they ceded to the United States all their remaining possessions. We put our "corn dodgers" and "thick bacon" into a large, strong box, got a pair of horses and a good wagon, packed into it our provisions, our camping utensils, our buffalo robes, and ourselves, and started for the "Old Agency," a place then many long miles west of the last wave of emigration, then surging to the occident. After a few days of pleasant incident we reached the place, and there, before us, spread the "wake-ups" of the tawny Indians. Twenty seven hundred were there convened in general treaty with their "Great Father." I was but a boy. I enjoyed the novelty of the scene, and run a foot-race with the son of the renowned Black Hawk; but it was a wild region "away up there."

To-day, ten years later, I am no longer a restless, roving, adventure-seeking boy, but a minister and missionary, planting the standard of the cross twenty five miles west even of that "Old Agency;" not among Red Men, but in a flourishing village of 600 inhabitants, surrounded by a densely populated district of bona fide Yankees. But the half is not yet told. Westward, and still westward swells the wave of emigration. County after county is being occupied with men, women, and children who have souls, and Oh! who is to care for them? Who will come and gather them for God? Who? If you could have attended the semi-annual meeting of our Association at Ottumwa, this Fall, and heard of the destitution of our western counties, and the appeals for bread, the bread of life, you could but have wept with us—not that the harvest was so great, but that the laborers were so few. Who will come?

What Could I Do?

One year ago I had decided to leave here, and you had sent me a commission for another field. I was disappointed, was detained, and God mercifully visited the church. It seemed clear, that I ought not to leave; and yet, what to do I knew not. The room in my house, where we met, became far too small; and yet I could not make the church think they were able to build. There was no alternative but to build—to go to the court house, which was the center of rivalry already for six or eight sects—or for me to leave. I had struggled with this same difficulty, at great disadvantage, for six years. I could not think it my duty to do so any longer; and yet, these young converts gathered around me and said, "Do not leave." My heart bled; what could I do?

I will tell you some things that I have done—perhaps you will say I have acted imprudently. I started subscriptions; pushed them vigorously for a few days; then employed hands, purchased materials, took the lead in the work, on a plan twice the amount of the subscription—telling every one the house would be finished. This was believed, perhaps, by none, until they saw the walls were up and the roof on. My object was to show the church that a house could be, and would be built; thinking they would then take hold of it with becoming energy. I have not been disappointed in this hope.

Invasion of the Enemy's Territory.

Last fall I commenced preaching at a place notorious for intemperance, Sabbath breaking, and all irreligion. At my second visit a new school-house was opened for the meeting. Sabbath being their holiday, when I entered the house at evening I found it well filled, and on looking around I saw that, with a good many, there was plenty of whisky aboard.

During the exercises a man half intoxicated, who sat in reach of my side, was constantly crossing one leg over the other, and then reversing the operation, and spitting alternately upon each side of him. Yet he seemed as much interested in the discourse as his liquor and manœuvres would permit. In the middle of the house sat two lads, every now and then clapping their hats on their heads, while a man who sat behind them, also with plenty of liquor, would snatch them off and slap them on the floor, with a force that made the house ring.

Not far from these sat a teamster who drove an eight and sometimes a twelve ox team. He also had evidently imbibed large draughts of liquor. He listened until his head finally fell back against the wall, and he dropped asleep. Soon, he appeared to be in his favorite occupation, and seemed driving his big team over some difficult passage in the land of dreams. Raising his huge arm, he bawled out at the top of voice, "Whoa, haw, Buck!" In a moment my first mentioned friend, who sat by me, still performing his gyrations, bounded to his feet, with his fists clenched, his teeth set, and his red eyes flashing fire; he seemed about to leap upon the teamster with a zeal that would soon have aroused him from his dreams to the reality of passing events. But, after silently shaking his fists towards him a few times, he quietly sat down.

Pioneer Labors.

During most of the winter, and a part of the spring, we labored under great disadvantage in not having suitable places to hold meetings in. The cold weather set in earlier than usual, and the school houses, which we had occupied during the warm weather, had not been repaired, and were not likely to be during the winter. We, therefore, were compelled to procure private dwelling houses to hold our meetings in. These were usually so small that they were crowded to excess; in addition to this, they were, generally speaking, made uncomfortably warm, so that, before the services were concluded, I would be in a free perspiration, and as soon as they were over, I must start in the cold and go from two to six miles to be in time to preach in the afternoon; and then, again, in the same state, go from one to five miles to find a place to stay over night. I continued my labors in this way until I was compelled, by an attack of bronchitis and disease of liver, to relinquish preaching for five weeks, and obtain medical aid. I am not yet restored to health, but am able to attend to all my appointments.

Experience in Pioneering.

The region to which the two following paragraphs relate, lies along the Mississippi and its tributaries, from 100 to 200 miles above Galena. It was the theater of some of the bloodiest scenes of the Black Hawk war, and has but recently been vacated by the Winnebago Indians. During the last two or three years, immigration into this part of Wisconsin has been very rapid, and the demand for missionary labor has become loud and urgent. We commend to those whom it concerns the following appeal:—

I have now closed the second year of my ministry in this new and yet interesting field of labor. Although I came into this region with health much impaired, I have not failed to fill my Sabbath appointments, on account of sickness, in more than one or two instances. The change of climate, and the demand for much exercise in the open air have done much to give me back youthful vigor. It is only when greatly fatigued with a long walk, say a circuit of from one to two hundred miles, that I think of labor in a wild country in any other than a pleasant light. Crossing cold, swollen streams, an occasional fall through treacherous ice, camping out at night with the howl of the wolf for company, and now and then a streak of ill success in keeping the points of the compass, are not regarded as hardships. I meet them with pleasure, ever having my heart warmed with the thought of meeting an attentive and affectionate audience, in some rough board shanty, private log dwelling, or school house.

Sheep having no Shepherd.

The country is rapidly filling up with a vigorous and enterprising farming population. It makes my heart ache when I think of the hundreds, and even thousands, that are now without the preaching of the Gospel, except as occasional visits are made them by the ministers who live in this village. We need a good man at Viroqua, the county seat of Bad-axe County, and another at the Falls of Black River, the county seat of Jackson County. Another still is needed at the Falls of Chippeway; to say nothing of several other points of about equal importance. At some of the points above named, from one to two hundred dollars would be readily raised towards the support of an acceptable minister. Are there no brethren in the ministry who need the change in climate and labor which a situation here will afford them, to make them young again; or are there none already young, who would think it a luxury to lay foundations in a field full of future promise? Do send help, if possible. I find the people everywhere ready to hear the Gospel; not only once or twice, as a new thing, but with a steadiness that indicates a more correct appreciation of its untold value.

Why Help is Needed.

It occasions surprise to many, that churches in large and flourishing towns at the West sometimes continue for many years dependent upon this Society. The causes which operate to depress and embarrass them are not the same in all places, but the circumstances described in the following paragraph are not unfrequent, and we publish it that our readers may understand the occasion which often exists for granting missionary aid to churches of this class:

It does seem strange that a city of 4,000 inhabitants cannot raise for a respectable minister more than $200. But the case, rightly stated, will lose some of its strangeness.

This city numbers about 4,000 inhabitants. Of these are 3,000, nearly, foreigners. For all the advantage they are to the support of our church, they might as well be in Germany or Ireland. The place, then, is to be regarded as a village of 1,000 inhabitants, when viewed by the minister with relation to his salary.

The Methodists, Episcopalians, and Baptists, have each a church organization, and the two former each a building; and all of them good ministers. This church has but nine male members, and two of them are at a distance, and attend church seldom, and give nothing.

Besides this, there are but about five men in the congregation who give for the support of the Gospel. The place is notoriously "hard"—in proof of which, it gave nearly 300 majority against a prohibitory liquor law last month.

The original proprietors of this place were and are bad men; and the influence of the American population has generally been anywhere but on the side of Protestant Christianity. If they encourage the Protestants, the Roman Catholics will be likely to "cut them" in business and politics—if they encourage religion, in any of its forms, the German rationalists revile them—and so the people have been left to themselves and the devil.

I hope for better things; and so far I have reason to be encouraged. Our congregations are larger than ever before known; but, of course, the novelty of a new preacher will soon wear off, and what will remain permanent time only can develop.

Value of the Home Missionary Society.

The efforts which have been made by those interested in our church-building enterprise have diverted some portion of the amount which would otherwise have been raised here towards my salary; so that thus far I have received very little indeed besides what has come from you. Truly the Home Missionary Society well deserves the title "Alma Mater" of the West; for were it not for her fostering care of the feeble churches, scattered over this wide section of our land, many would die in their infancy; many a missionary tree would be rudely torn up and prostrated before time was given for the soil to settle about its roots and fasten them to the earth, were it not for the strengthening bands and supporting stakes put around them by your Society.

Precocious in Wickedness.

The following communication relates to a village, not yet two years old, in the northern part of Iowa. The state of morals described is not worse, probably, than in many other new settlements in the West; but the facts stated will serve to show the character and magnitude of the obstacles with which the pioneer missionary must contend. Let it not seem strange if, in such circumstances, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain:

I suppose there are some general features in the development of all new places that are somewhat alike, while yet each has its own peculiarities. Here sin has taken deep root. About every store (some six in number) sells intoxicating drinks; besides which, there are regular groceries, or rum-holes, where they do drinking and gambling as a business. A person recently looked into three of these dens of iniquity, and saw gambling on the Sabbath. I never have known so well as since I have been here what it is to have one's heart ache for sin and sinners. Your missionary is almost the only one who has ever spoken out in public against these evils. This has secured for me many curses from the wicked; yet we have felt that God was on our side and would and did own his truth. There are some who sigh for a better state of things.

Grateful Appreciation of Missionary Aid.

I do not know what your Missionaries would do, if it were not for these refreshing drafts that come always so timely. Whenever I meet my brethren at our conventions, and look around upon your Missionaries and upon the delegates of your missionary churches in Wisconsin, I am constrained to exclaim, What hath God wrought through the single instrumentality of your noble Society! What would have been the present condition of Wisconsin, and of all this great Western Valley, had not God raised up that agent so mighty through God, to the pulling down of the strongholds of Satan's kingdom?

External Agency necessary for the Evangelization of the West.

A residence in Wisconsin has given me new and enlarged views of the inestimable importance of such an agency as the American Home Missionary Society. When at the East, I had frequently heard and read in reference to this hackneyed theme; but one needs to make a personal survey of this vast and needy field, in order to understand the subject. In a large majority of cases, our churches here have not the ability, at present, to sustain the means of grace; yet what instrumentality, other than "the glorious Gospel of the blessed God," can preserve us from the evils of Romanism, Infidelity, "Spirit-rappings," and other forms of error and iniquity, now pouring in upon us? The ordinances of God's house, administered in their purity; the Gospel of Jesus Christ preached with affection and fidelity, will alone meet the wants of our heterogeneous and rapidly increasing population. "But how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent?" And how shall an evangelical ministry be sustained in this extended field, where there is so much of worldliness and error, of concealed hatred and open opposition to be encountered, unless it be through the instrumentality of such an agency as the American Home Missionary Society.

A Wide and Long-neglected Waste.

My labors are mostly expended within the counties of Gentry and Daviess, Mo., with but one church organization. I preach at three different points, and receive members to Mt. Zion church. My preaching places are about twenty-five miles from one extreme to the other. I occasionally preach at other places, and could have good congregations at more than twenty places every Sabbath, within a day's ride from home; but I do not think it best to undertake regular visits to so many different places; yet, until more laborers can be secured, I feel that I ought not to entirely forsake the members of our church in these destitute settlements.

From whence shall Assistance come.

My congregation here have to do without preaching six weeks, that I may assist two brothers with sacramental meetings. In another place where I preach one Sabbath in each month, they have to wait two months. At another place, where I preach monthly, they are waiting two months, and then they must wait two months again, that I may preach to others. At other places where I cannot have monthly appointments, they must wait much longer from the time they hear a Presbyterian minister until they hear him again.

An Urgent Appeal.

A great work has, indeed, been accomplished by this Society. But a much greater work is yet to be done, and this work must be done soon, or it can never be done so well, and with so small an outlay of the means at the disposal of the church. Hundreds and thousands of places are now actually destitute of the stated preaching of the Gospel; and the church is in duty bound to occupy these destitute places with an evangelical ministry. It will not be long before these destitutions will be occupied by ministers of a very different kind, the propagators of a religion that is false, pernicious, and, I might add, infernal; by those who turn the light of the world into error, delusion, and darkness; whose system tends to damage the soul, and lay conscience dead by an infinity of pompous ceremonies. And are there not men enough in the church to save those for whom I plead? Is there not an abundance of surplus wealth, possessed by the church, to send laborers into this great harvest? Can any one spend his time, talents, or wealth in a nobler cause? It is a cause in which the loftiest seraphs before the throne of God would rejoice to be employed—a cause for which the everlasting Father gave his only Son—a work for which the Holy Spirit moves upon the moral chaos of society, to reduce confusion to order, and to animate the dead with life.

Assistance Earnestly Desired.

My field is more than a whole county, and I have occupied it as best I could. I have had regular appointments at nine different places, most of which occur once in four weeks. I preach three times every Sabbath, save once in four weeks, when I preach twice only. These places are from three to seven miles apart. Here, at the center, I preach once on every Sabbath but one in the month, and then I go out.

O, how much I do need more help in this field! One part of my field, where I spend a fourth of my time, I feel that I must give up after this year, for my time must be more employed here at the center. Who will come into and cultivate this portion of my field? Enough church members are there already to form a church, and more are coming. The country around is fast filling up. They want a minister, and in that neighborhood they promise to help a man all they can. They know I must leave them, and they anxiously inquire for some minister. Who will come and build up a church there from the foundation, in that promising field? Who?—who? Shall that field, white for the harvest, go to decay?

"The Laborers are Few."

A missionary in Northern Indiana, presents the following picture of the spiritual destitutions around him.

I reside in the centre of a circle of 60 miles in diameter, or 160 miles in circuit, in which there will be but one of our Home Missionary ministers, and he at the extreme northwest of the circle, almost beyond the circumference; and if I must leave, and no one else comes, the whole field must be left destitute.

But in order to give you a more correct idea of the field, suppose that I describe the circle. Drawing a line southeast 30 miles, and we touch the little town of Lagro. Here is a little church of some 15 or 20 members, to which Bro. Hawes, of Marion, (some 10 miles beyond Lagro,) preaches occasionally. Six miles further westwardly we come to Wabash Town, a small church, and destitute. We sweep around to the southwest from Warsaw, and pass over, first, Eel River church, 27 miles from Warsaw; Shiloh church, 22 miles; Gilead, 25 miles; Franklin, 15 miles; Rochester, 25 miles—all destitute. Then we come to Plymouth, 28 miles from Warsaw. We sweep around until we are due north of the center, pass over one little church in the woods, and our radius is direct through Goshen, 25 miles from Warsaw, where there is a small N. S. Presbyterian church, to which a minister of the O. S. Presbyterian church preaches. But we pass on until we have come due east of Warsaw; then we have passed over the Troy church, 15 miles from the centre, and another little church in the woods. Thence we return to Lagro, almost touching Huntington, at which, I believe, there is a minister. Now, a great part of this field has never been explored; and it is impossible to tell what is in it. But you see that it is a great field, and will be a very great destitution when I leave, as I probably must.

Darkness and Destitution.

Here is a district of country some sixty miles or more in extent, each way, with a population of more than 20,000, with no other minister or church of our denomination. Not one fourth of this mass of immortal beings attend upon the stated means of grace. The Sabbath is scarcely known. The youth and children are growing up in ignorance and vice. The adults are rapidly ripening for perdition. Most of the members of these two churches live widely separated from each other, are poor, not alone in this world's possessions, but in all the christian graces, and can have but little saving influence. Other denominations around us are no better, to say the least. There is but little of the "living epistle," or the real leaven of the Gospel here. Not only ministers must be supported, but missionary schools must be sustained here, as much as in foreign countries, if the Gospel ever exerts its saving power upon this community. We want a score of missionary teachers, and missionary men and women, to come into this county, to be laborers together with Christ, and with the blessed Spirit of God, to be light and salt to save the masses here from eternal death.

Growth of the Country and Calls for Preaching.

I find my field is growing much beyond my strength. Calls for preaching are pouring in upon me from every quarter. The church at this place have voted to have but one service on the Sabbath here, to give me opportunity to comply with some of these Macedonian calls in the afternoon. We need very much that more laborers should be sent into this part of the vineyard. There are large communities, from five to ten miles around us, where very little if any preaching is enjoyed. And there are only two ministers of the N. S. Presbyterian or Congregational denominations on the North and West of me in this State. These counties are rapidly filling up with emigrants. Even now, there are thriving villages where industry and enterprise are changing the wilderness into pleasant homes. I hope we may not have to look out upon and mourn over these unoccupied fields much longer. I hope our young brethren will not be afraid of the toils and hardships of this new country. There is no small sacrifice, it is true, in leaving a well-provided home in New England, for a log cabin, plain fare, and a positive dearth of social comforts (except within his own doors), amidst a wild, unsettled community. But the "shady side" has its bright counterpart in the joyful privilege of working hard for Christ, and the honor of laying the foundations of many generations.

Explorations.

I have just returned from a tour of about forty miles, to explore a destitute and new field. The brethren and people where I have been feel their great necessity, and I trust their cry to God and their fellow Christians will not be in vain, as arrangements have already been partially made for their supply, and I expect a few days more will find a herald of the Cross among them dispensing the word of life. I have been strongly urged to visit another important point, which ought to be occupied, about twenty five miles from here, but where a man can be found to supply them I do not know. Several places within the circle of my knowledge are destitute, and I feel like praying for more laborers in the great moral harvest of the West.

The West is really a field of labor and toil for those who are willing to work; and none but those who are thus circumstanced can know or realize the encouragement it affords us to know that our eastern brethren not only send their money, but their prayers ascend to their God and ours, for his blessing upon us, without which all our efforts would be fruitless. We feel that we are one family, toiling for the same end, and heirs to the same inheritance through Christ.

TWENTY NINTH ANNIVERSARY.

The American Home Missionary Society held its Twenty Ninth Anniversary in the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, on Wednesday evening, May 9th, 1855.

Hon. Benjamin F. Butler, LL. D., one of the Vice-Presidents, occupied the chair; and the exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. William Patton, D. D., of New York.

The Treasurer's Report was read by Mr. Jasper Corning, the Treasurer of the Society.

An Abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee was presented by Rev. Daniel P. Noyes, one of the Secretaries.

On motion of Rev. William McLain, of Washington, D. C., seconded by Rev. Isaac Willey, of Goffstown, N. H.,

Resolved, That the Reports now presented be adopted, and published under the direction of the Executive Committee.

On motion of Rev. G. W. Heacock, of Buffalo, N. Y., seconded by Rev. John L. Taylor, of Andover, Mass.,

Resolved, That the Gospel of Christ is alone adapted, and alone adequate, to meet the highest wants and to achieve the highest welfare of man.

On motion of Rev. W. I. Budington, of Brooklyn, N. Y., seconded by Rev. L. B. Rockwood, of Rocky Hill, Ct.,

Resolved, That we find in the claims of our Home, the special and most effective claims of the American Home Missionary Society.

On motion of Prof. C. B. Haddock, D. D., of West Lebanon, N. H., late U. S. Minister to Portugal, seconded by Rev. Miles P. Squier, D. D., of Beloit College, Wis.,

Resolved, That we owe it to the Old World, to sustain and extend the Protestant Religion in the New.

The last three of the foregoing resolutions were sustained, by the persons who presented them, in able and eloquent addresses, which were listened to with deep attention by the audience. The services were diversified by appropriate music, in which the assembly united, under the direction of Mr. Lucius Hart.

The exercises were closed with the benediction, pronounced by Rev. Absalom Peters, D. D., of Williamstown, Mass., after which the Society proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Jasper Corning, Esq., having expressed his desire not to be reëlected to the office of Treasurer, it was Resolved, That the thanks of the Society be presented to Mr. Corning for the valuable services which he has gratuitously rendered as its Treasurer, during more than half the period of its existence, and for his personal labors, counsels, and encouragements in connection with the Executive Board, which have contributed, in an eminent degree, to its prosperity.

CONSTITUTION

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Art. 1. This Society shall be denominated The American Home Missionary Society.

Art. 2. The object of this Society shall be, to assist congregations that are unable to support the gospel ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute, within the United States; also to coöperate with evangelical Christians in the support of Home Missions in nominally christian countries, to such an extent as the funds of the Institution may justify.

Art. 3. The officers of the Society shall be a President, Vice Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, one or more Secretaries for Correspondence, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors, who shall be annually appointed by the Society; and who, together with the Directors for Life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

Art. 4. The officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of fourteen (including the Treasurer, the Secretaries for Correspondence, and the Recording Secretary), residing in the City of New York and its vicinity; five of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened. The Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society; shall appoint missionaries and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labors; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the Institution may require; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

Art. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds, annually, to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

Art. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society, by contributing annually to its funds; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for Life; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for Life; and any person on the payment of a sum which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for Life. An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for Life; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute a Director for Life.

Art. 7. Any Missionary Society may become Auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Secretaries for Correspondence a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

Art. 8. Every Auxiliary Society, which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a missionary or missionaries to labor in such field as it may designate; at least to the amount of its contributions; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

Art. 9. The officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be, ex-officio, Directors; and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of the Society.

Art. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the city of New York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

Art. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution without a vote of two thirds of the members present at an annual meeting; nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

TWENTY NINTH REPORT.

A voice from the unseen world addresses us, as we commence the review of another year, saying, "Work while the day lasts, for the night cometh in which no man can work." Rev. Leonard Woods, D. D., and Rev. Ichabod S. Spencer, D. D.—Vice Presidents of the Society—have, since the last Anniversary, been removed by death. The work of evangelizing our country was dear to their hearts, and to its advancement their counsels, and toils, and benefactions, and prayers were ever given. Dr. Woods was one of the projectors of this Society, and the office which his death has vacated he had held from its formation. He was also one of the founders of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, in 1799, and its President the last thirty two years. Both of these venerated men will long be held in grateful remembrance by very many of the missionaries of the Society, in whose hands the "Theological Works" of the one, and the "Pastor's Sketches" of the other have been placed, by the united liberality of their authors and a few of the friends of missions. May their teachings and their example long stimulate the missionaries of the cross to every good work. Hiram H. Seelye, Esq., a Director of the Society, and a highly valued member of its Western Agency, in this State, has been suddenly called from the sphere of his usefulness to his reward on high. And near the close of the year, there has been added to the number of deceased fellow-laborers the name of Rev. Myron Tracy, who had served the Society with eminent fidelity and acceptance, as its Agent, for twelve years, on the Western Reserve in Ohio.

Nine of the missionaries of the Society have also died during the year—Rev. J. Wellman, in Vermont; Rev. Charles Thompson, in Connecticut; Rev. James H. Thomas, in New York; Rev. H. W. Osborne, in Ohio; Rev. Alfred Hawes, in Indiana; Rev. Edward Ruggles, Rev. Ira Smith, and Rev. S. R. H. Wylie, in Illinois; and Rev. E. C. A. Woods, in Iowa.

But the Lord liveth; and blessed be his name that we are yet permitted to labor in his vineyard, that he has continued to this Institution his guiding and protecting care, and crowned the labors of his servants, through another year of difficulty and embarrassment, with the tokens of his favor!

The details of the Society's operations are embraced in the following

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

The number of ministers of the Gospel in the service of the Society the last year, whose names are found in the preceding General Table, together with those engaged in superintending the work, and who are mentioned in connection with the respective Auxiliaries and Agencies, is 1,032.

Of these, 852 were in commission at the date of the last Report, and 180 have been since appointed.

They have been distributed in 27 different States and Territories, as follows: in Maine, 92; New Hampshire, 48; Vermont, 45; Massachusetts, 43; Rhode Island, 7; Connecticut, 43; New York, 146; New Jersey, 11; Pennsylvania, 49; Delaware, 1; Maryland, 1; District of Columbia, 1; Virginia, 7; Georgia, 1; Tennessee, 4; Kentucky, 1; Ohio, 101; Indiana, 35; Illinois, 102; Missouri, 24; Michigan, 77; Wisconsin, 100; Iowa, 63; Minnesota, 10; Kansas, 3; California, 12; Oregon, 5.

This distribution gives to the New England States, 278; the Middle States, 207; the Southern States, 10; the Western States and Territories and the Pacific Coast, 537.

Of the whole number in commission, 528 have been pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; 328 have ministered to two or three congregations each, and 176 have extended their labors over still wider fields.

The aggregate of ministerial labor performed, is 815 years.

The number of congregations and missionary stations which have been fully supplied, or where the Gospel has been preached at stated intervals, is 2,124.

Ten missionaries have been in commission as pastors or stated supplies of churches of colored people; and 60 have preached in foreign languages—19 to Welsh and 34 to German congregations, and 7 to congregations of Norwegians, Swedes, Swiss, Frenchmen and Hollanders.

The number of Sabbath school scholars connected with the missionary churches and stations is not far from 64,800.

The contributions to benevolent objects, reported by 609 missionaries, amount to $27,932 67.

The additions to the churches, as nearly as can be ascertained, have been 5,634—viz., 2,948 on profession of their faith, and 2,686 by letters from other churches. Forty eight missionaries make mention in their reports of revivals of religion in the congregations to which they have ministered; in connection with some of which there have been 50, 60, and 70 hopeful conversions. The number of hopeful conversions, reported by 366 missionaries, is 2,434.

Sixty six churches have been organized, in connection with the labors of the missionaries, during the year; and forty have passed from a state of dependence to that of self-support. Sixty one houses of worship have been completed; thirty eight repaired or improved; and fifty two others are in process of erection. Eighty nine young men, connected with the missionary churches, are reported as in different stages of preparation for the gospel ministry.

THE TREASURY.

Resources.—The balance in the Treasury, April 1, 1854, was $14,385 46. The receipts of the succeeding twelve months have been $180,136 69; making the resources of the year $194,522 15.

Liabilities.—There was due to missionaries, at the close of the last year, $11,450 88. There has since become due, $178,755 20; making the total of liabilities $190,206 08.

Payments.—Of this sum, $177,717 34 have been paid; leaving $12,488 74 still due to missionaries for labor performed. Towards canceling these claims, and redeeming the additional pledges on commissions not yet expired—amounting in all to $96,518 40—there is a balance in the Treasury of $16,804 31; the greater part of it received in payment of legacies near the close of the year.

COMPARISON WITH THE PRECEDING YEAR.

The financial embarrassments and apprehensions of widespread disaster in the business affairs of the community, have affected, seriously, collections for benevolent objects during the year. The receipts of this Society, at the opening of the year, warranted the expectation that an advance would be realized, before its close, corresponding with that of the year previous. But in the autumn and winter, there was a material falling off, especially in cities and large towns where the greatest individual subscriptions are obtained, and in receipts which depend upon the collection and payment of legacies;—so that, for several months, remittances could not be forwarded promptly to the missionaries in payment of their dues, new responsibilities could be assumed only with great caution, and plans which had been formed for enlarging the operations of the Society were necessarily suspended. It was not till near the close of the year that essential relief was realized; and consequently a comparison with the preceding year shows a diminished amount of receipts and of labor performed. The receipts are less by $11,072 38; the greater part of the difference, however—$8,474 40—is in the amount received from the payment of legacies; the regular contributions of the churches and of individuals being only $2,597 58 less than the year before. The number of missionaries is less by 15, and the years of labor by 55; the additions to the churches are less by 391, and the number of congregations and missionary stations supplied, by 16. While the aggregate of labor, however, has been less, the diminution has been chiefly in the older States, where the necessity for missionary aid is diminished, year by year, as in our frontier settlements it increases. This transfer of laborers from the East to the West has, this year, while the total in commission is smaller, actually increased by seven the number in the Western States and Territories and on the Pacific Coast. Add to this, the 40 churches which have reached the condition of self-support, and the 180 laborers who have been brought in to supply, on the missionary list, the places of ministers thus sustained by their people, and the vacancies which have been occasioned by deaths and infirmities and removals; add the progress which has been made in the erection of houses of worship, in canceling church debts, in providing parsonages, in establishing Academies and High Schools, in promoting healthful moral reforms—the progress which has been made in everything which relates to the external prosperity of the churches and the spiritual enlightenment and sanctification of the communities, in which they shine as lights in the world; as well as the numbers, also, who have been brought to the foot of the cross under the outpourings of the Divine Spirit; and we have special reason to congratulate the friends of missions, and to give thanks to their Great Author and Patron, that such an amount of good has been accomplished, in a year of such discouragement and trial.

The Committee have been steadily pursuing their endeavors, noticed in the last Report, to secure to the missionaries a more adequate compensation for their labors. Many of the churches aided have cheerfully responded to their appeals, and made a liberal increase of the salaries of their ministers, without the necessity of larger appropriations; in other cases, the object has been accomplished by the united action of the churches and the Society. Let vigorous and persevering efforts be made in all the congregations which look to the Society for assistance, to raise for their ministers what would be regarded a fair equivalent for the services of men, of like capacities and attainments, in other professions and employments; and let the sentiment, that such a remuneration is but a matter of justice, take possession of the more favored churches—of all who enjoy the benefits of ministerial learning and labor and faithfulness, and contribute for their support in the communities in which they live, and among the destitute, and the Committee believe the means will not be wanting to relieve yet many a care-worn servant of God from embarrassment and privation, and give increased vitality and power to the chief instrumentality of Heaven for the salvation of men.

The pledges of the Society, at the present time, are $10,289 06 greater than at the date of the last Report. If these pledges are to be redeemed; if the work which has been commenced in our new Territories and on the Pacific Coast is to be prosecuted as its exigencies require; if every well qualified laborer is to be sent into the harvest field, with the assurance that he shall not want; if this work of Home Evangelization, which has been borne upon the hearts of God's people so long and with results so glorious, is to be carried forward another year without faltering; if it is to be extended in any measure as opportunities invite, and the necessities of our fellow countrymen, and the hope of the world, and the exceeding great and precious promises of God imperiously demand, there must be a great enlargement of pecuniary resources. The Committee can make no advances without it. But whence shall these resources come? Our only dependence, under God, is upon those who have so generously sustained the Institution hitherto, and who have rejoiced with us in the wonders which Infinite Grace has wrought through its instrumentality—in those who love their country and love the souls of their fellow-men, who devoutly ask, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"—whose earnest supplication, morning and noon and night, is, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

GENERAL COMPARATIVE RESULTS.

The following Table gives a comparative view of the amount of receipts, expenditures, number of missionaries, new appointments, congregations and missionary districts, years of labor performed, additions to the churches, and pupils in Sabbath schools, for each year since the organization of the Society.

It also exhibits, in the tenth column, the average expenditure, each year, for a year of missionary labor, obtained by dividing the sum total of the expenditures for the year, by the number of years of labor performed. And in the eleventh column, by dividing the sum total of the expenditures of each year, by the number of missionaries employed, is shown what the average to a missionary would be, if the expenditures were equally apportioned among them.

Remarks.—1. From the foregoing table it will be seen that in each of the ten years, from 1830 to 1840, and from 1840 to 1850, the receipts were more than doubled.

2. The total receipts, for the twenty nine years, is $2,908-500 40.

3. The total of years of labor is 16,521. These years are reckoned in each Report, by adding together the months of labor which the missionaries have actually performed.

4. The average expenditure for a year of missionary labor, includes the entire cost to the Society of obtaining the missionary, defraying his expenses to his field, and sustaining him on it, as well as all the expenses of conducting the Institution. The increased average of recent years, has been occasioned by the greater number of those who have held full commissions, and the expensiveness of more distant missions—particularly of those on the Pacific coast—and the larger appropriations that have become necessary, as the expenses of living have increased, to secure to the missionary a comfortable support.

5. The difference between the annual average expenditure to a missionary and the average for a year's labor, is occasioned by the fact that a missionary is named and counted in a Report, though in some cases he may have labored but a fraction of the year.

6. The whole number of additions to the churches is 132,339.

7. The fifth column—that of new appointments—shows how many have to be called in each year, to supply the places of those whose support is assumed by the people, the vacancies occasioned by death, sickness, removals and other changes, and to make the increase, if there be any, over the number of the preceding year.

PRINCIPAL AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES AND MISSIONARY FIELDS.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

WILLIAM T. DWIGHT, D. D, President; JOHN HOW, Esq., Treasurer; BENJAMIN TAPPAN, D. D., Secretary. Office at Portland.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, 1855, were $11,648 48; the expenditures for the same period were $11,109 24. There has also been received into the Treasury of the Parent Society from this State, during the twelve months ending April 1st, 1855, $356 38. The total contributions for Home Missions from Maine, the present year, amount to $12,004 86, being less than the last year by $954 68. The number of missionaries under commission has been ninety two, one less than last year. Three missionary churches have assumed their own support.

The State of Maine occupies a peculiar position among her sisters of New England. The youngest, and at the same time the largest, with a most extensive sea-coast lined with harbors, and yet but a sparsely settled back country; with a rich soil, but a cold climate, she is blest with that happy combination of natural advantages, so called, and disadvantages, best calculated to secure at last a population numerous, industrious, frugal, enterprising, wealthy, and intelligent. It is by no means impossible, that the very flower of New England's hope will unfold far away beneath the northern star; and that this State, whose youth prolongs itself in so slow a ripening, will, when she reaches her meridian, be the greatest and the noblest of the six. Certainly, we are free to concede to our brethren there, the incitement of this hope; and we rejoice in the enthusiasm which often seems to anticipate so bright a consummation. May it prove a prophetic instinct. Maine has already taken the lead in moral legislation. She was the foremost to storm the citadel of social iniquity; and it is not impossible that we may find her star shining before us on other paths of progress. She has been the first, again, to present to the public a truly valuable report upon the subject of HOME EVANGELIZATION. We look upon the fact, that the missionary spirit has induced her ministers to enter upon the systematic examination of that great subject, as the most encouraging incident of the past year. It shows, that in their missionary operations, they have an eye, not only for the inhabitants of poor and destitute regions, but for those also who are destitute only because they choose to be. We trust that the investigation which has been commenced will ripen into action, and that the ministers of Maine will find their way to all desolate hearts as well as to desolate parishes.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

NATHANIEL BOUTON, D. D., President; BENJAMIN P. STONE, D. D., Secretary and Treasurer. Office at Concord.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Auxiliary, for the year ending March 1st, 1855, amounted to $6,945 49, including a legacy of $50. These receipts are less than last year by $2,170 20; but inasmuch as the legacies of that year amounted to $2,751 06 more than this year, there has been an increase in the regular contributions of $530 86. For the year ending April 1st, 1855, the contributions received from this State into the Treasury of the Parent Society, amounted to $2,200 77, making a total of $9,146 26. This is $2,239 88 less than the total of last year. But the legacies, received last year into the two Treasuries, amounted to $2,788 02 more than the present year; and therefore the total of the regular contributions is $548 14 greater this year than the last.

"The whole number of missionaries employed during the whole, or a part of the year, has been forty eight, and the aggregate of their labor is equal to twenty nine and a half years. The number of churches and congregations aided is fifty. Only one church has become independent. One church that never before received assistance has been taken under patronage; and four others, that had been independent for ten or fifteen years, have been constrained to become beneficiaries again. It is worthy of notice here, that all the churches now on our list, with the exception of some twelve or fifteen, have been the beneficiaries of the Society for long periods; in other words, they occupy ground that constituted the main portion of our missionary field from the commencement."

It is not to be forgotten, then, that the missionary work in New Hampshire, as well as in other parts of New England, has its unpromising aspect. In its very nature, it is a work that cannot be summarily concluded. "Ye have the poor always with you," our Savior said to his disciples; and this finds a fulfillment among the missionary churches of our older States.

The secret of this protracted poverty and feebleness, is found in the emigration which is flowing in a ceaseless tide from the rough hills of the Granite State toward the rich savannas of the West. But we are not permitted to mourn over this process of depopulation, or to be disheartened at the prospect, thus crowded upon us, of a never-ending labor. We are rather to accept this state of things, as an arrangement providentially made, for wisest ends; and seeing that the West, the center of empire, is to receive an important element of its population from those barren hills where these missionary pastors are feeding their flocks, we are to find, in this drain upon the strength of our feeble churches, a motive for redoubling our exertions, and renewing our hopes. "Where are those," asks the New Hampshire Report, "who have gone out from them? They are found in the villages, and the cities of New England, where they have aided in building up other churches; or, they have scattered themselves over the West, pioneer laborers in the cause of morals and religion!" "The demand upon us this day is not so much for a lamentation over the smallness of the results of our labors, as for a thankful return to the Great Head of the Church that he has enabled us to accomplish so much; and while he still points us in his providence to the starving poor around us, let us rejoice that we are counted worthy to carry unto them the bread and the water of life."

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Hon. Erastus Fairbanks, President; C. W. Storrs, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. John F. Stone, Secretary. Office at Montpelier.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, 1855, have been $6,861 25, or $376 56 more than for the year before. The disbursements have amounted to $5,853 70. There has also been received into the Treasury of the Parent Society, from this State, $964 05, being $320 07 more than the amount of the regular contributions of the year before, and making the entire gain, in contributions, $696 63. The total receipts from the State amount to $7,825 30. This is less than the total of the year preceding by $1,693 37, the falling off in legacies more than counterbalancing the gain in contributions. The number of missionaries under commission, has been forty five.

From the last Annual Report of this Auxiliary, we learn that, "during this, as in preceding years, many of the churches in Vermont have been severely affected by emigration. Not less than ten ministers who had been under commission during some portion of the year, have left the State; and six others have been called from their fields to minister to self-sustaining churches. The scarcity of ministers is our greatest difficulty. Some of the destitute churches maintain public worship, in the absence of a minister, by reading sermons as a substitute for preaching. Few of the churches aided report revivals, and those reported are of limited extent. One pastor has been installed. Three new meeting houses have been completed; two others are in process of erection; one valuable house has been purchased; and one, owned in company, has become the sole property of the Congregational church. Not far from 100 towns are now destitute of Congregational preaching; and many of these are without the stated and regular ministrations of any evangelical denomination. In others, are small churches wasting away for want of the sympathy and aid which their enfeebled condition demands, and likely soon to be entirely broken up, unless active measures shall be taken in their behalf. In several towns the church has already become extinct. From some churches, nearly all the members have removed to the West."

Such facts as these are calculated to awaken the feeling, that in Vermont, at least, the cause of Domestic Missions yields precedence to none other. Our first duty is always that of fidelity to our own souls, and to our own homes; and this, not indeed for the sake of ourselves or our friends merely, but for the sake also of our country and the world. If religion should die out here, in these citadels of her strength, if Christianity cannot maintain herself in christian lands, there is no encouragement for sending it to the heathen. The claims of this cause, therefore, upon churches in Vermont, must not be estimated in view of her own destitutions alone, great as they are, but in view of the influence which she is destined to exert upon a much broader sphere, by means of those who shall go forth from her communities. For many years, this State, it is believed, has done more, in proportion to her population and her wealth, than any other, towards establishing churches and sustaining gospel institutions at the West; if not in money, in what is of greater value, in church members, and christian families; in teachers, and in ministers. Long may this noblest of charities be continued.

MASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

——— ———, President; Benjamin Perkins, Esq., Treasurer; Joseph S. Clark, D. D., Secretary. Office in Boston.

The receipts of this Society for the year ending March 1st, 1855, were $36,452 28; being greater than the year before by $2,156 69. Its expenditures, within the State, were $5,985.

There was remitted from its Treasury to the Parent Society, $31,000. The American Home Missionary Society has also received, in payment of legacies, $4,553 66; from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,500; and from congregations and individuals, $3,709 09—in all, $9,762 75; making a total of $46,215 03, for the Home Missionary cause, from this State; of which $40,762 75 has been expended for the benefit of churches beyond her own borders. If to this be added the $5,985 bestowed upon her own feeble churches, we have $46,747 75 as the total of all her expenditures in the cause of Home Missions, through this Society. Massachusetts has therefore furnished, this year, more than one fourth of the whole income of the American Home Missionary Society. Forty three missionaries are reported as having been under commission. Five churches have become self-supporting, and four new ones have been taken up by the Society.

Rev. Leonard Woods, D. D., for so many years the President of this Auxiliary, uniformly present at its Anniversaries, deeply interested always in whatever related to its prosperity, the revered Theological Teacher of many of its missionaries, the counselor and patron of all our benevolent and philanthropic enterprises, has, since the last Anniversary, in the fullness of his years, passed away from a life on earth, eminent for its services in the church of God, to its reward on high.

The last Annual Report of this Society states, that for the year then reviewed, the missionaries had under their charge 1,230 families; and these furnished an aggregate attendance of about 4,000 hearers, which would be—allowing, on an average, five persons to a family—about two thirds of the population under their pastoral care. The average valuation of these societies, for the last year, was about $25,000; and the average sum raised for ministerial support by them, being $322, is a fraction over one and a quarter per cent. of their taxable property. If property to this amount were invested at six per cent., it would take more than one fifth of its interest to make up the amount raised by these feeble congregations for their ministers. About three fifths of the missionaries were pastors. "The remainder," in the words of the last Report, "are called 'stated supplies'—a term not found in the vocabulary of the Apostles, nor in that of the Puritans; for the reason, probably, that the relation hereby indicated was not known in those times."

There are places still to be found in Massachusetts which need missionary labor, and will be likely to demand it for a long time to come. But though we may not expect to see her feeble congregations all independent, we do feel at liberty to cherish another hope—that before many years more have passed, the churches within this State will be united in the deliberate determination to set forth before the world an example of a CHRISTIAN COMMONWEALTH. The population of Massachusetts is comparatively stable, and is peculiarly alert on all moral questions; her churches are strong and rich, her institutions of every kind are well constituted and full of energy, her wise men have added to their wisdom the benefits of a most valuable experience, and it is difficult to avoid the conclusion, that the time has come when her population should be brought beneath the power of the cross, and the christian faith and the christian spirit be made substantially predominant in all the out-goings of their life. This aspiration may well stir the deepest ardor of her youth, to whom the privilege of seeking its realization seems properly to belong. Let it be theirs to grasp this high purpose, and, clinging to it with prophetic enthusiasm, to labor systematically and incessantly for its accomplishment. The purpose itself insures its own triumph.

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

THOMAS SHEPARD, D. D., President; GILBERT RICHMOND, Esq., Providence, Treasurer; Rev. CONSTANTINE BLODGETT, Pawtucket, Secretary.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, 1855—including $300 from the Connecticut Missionary Society —were $1,983 79; and the expenditures, for the same period, $1,762 83. There were also remitted from this State to the Parent Society, $631 85, making a total raised within the State, of $2,315 64. If we subtract the $300 above mentioned, it will leave the net contribution of Rhode Island, the present year, toward the support of the Gospel beyond her borders, $331 85. This is an advance upon the preceding year, of $492 04. In the contributions of her churches, there has been a greater improvement. Instead of $511 60, they have now raised $1,683 79, being an increase of $1,172 19—in all, more than three fold. Seven missionaries have been under commission during the year.

We congratulate the churches of this State upon the beginning which they have thus made. The missionary spirit is evidently gaining strength among them; and the day is already past when a New England Commonwealth will look beyond her own borders for aid in support of her feeble congregations. It is now many years since Rhode Island began to gather harvests of wealth from her running waters. That very roughness of surface which interferes with the work of the husbandman, is the main reliance of the manufacturer; so that what, to a careless eye, might have seemed a remediless misfortune, has already become a source of the greatest pecuniary prosperity. We may expect, with confidence, that hereafter this State will continue to be found by the side of the most liberal supporters of the Home Missionary cause; and that her great material growth will minister to her spiritual strength and usefulness.

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. HORACE HOOKER, Secretary; E. W. PARSONS, Treasurer. Office at Hartford.

The receipts of this Auxiliary for the year ending March 1st, 1855, were $7,413 97. Its expenditures, within the State, were $3,950 51; $500 were appropriated—of which only $300, however, has been called for—to the assistance of the Rhode Island Home Missionary Society; and $2,000 were remitted to the Treasurer of the Parent Society. There have also been received into the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, from this State, $21,499 25, of which $5,969 93 were in payment of legacies, and the remainder donations from congregations and individuals. The total raised for Home Missions in Connecticut, is $28,913 22. Of this sum, $23,499 25 were received into the Treasury of the Parent Society, and, taken together with the expenditures noticed above, make the outlay this year, by Connecticut, in the cause of Home Missions, $27,749 76, or more than fifteen per cent. of the entire income of the Parent Institution.

Forty three missionaries have been under commission. One church has become self-supporting; two others will need no aid after the close of the present financial year, in May; and several others are near the same point, already returning to the Treasury of the Society nearly as much as they take out of it.

The Secretary concludes his statistical report for the year, with the following observations: "In looking over the preceding details, I am gratified in noticing, that a year marked by the high price of most of the necessaries of living, has touched so lightly upon the pastoral relation in these churches. By their own self-denial, or by the liberality of their people, the pastors have sustained the burden, three only having been dismissed, while four were installed. Our appropriations have been enlarged but in a single instance, while in several others they have been diminished. The trial, in this respect, through which the weak churches have passed, has thus far given pleasing evidence of present stability, and hopeful indications of permanence."

"Feeble churches we still have, and such there will be for a long time to come, unless the benevolent, tired of this mode of doing good, shall order them to be disbanded; but 'waste places,' such as disfigured the moral landscape some forty years ago, when our Society was organized, are nowhere to be found among us. Drained and cultivated, the noisome marshes no longer exhale pestilence and death, but clothed with verdure, are distinguishable from the adjoining enclosures, only by their size." "There has been no diminution here of interest in the cause of Home Missions, or in attachment to the American Home Missionary Society. While the wants are as great, and the measures of that Society as judicious and efficient as now, it will never lack well wishers and patrons in 'the land of steady habits.'"

It is no small thing that this Society is able to make the announcement, No more "waste places" in Connecticut. And yet it must be that, even from Connecticut, as well as from her sister States at the East, many, educated in the bosom of her churches, and whose names are enrolled among the professsed disciples of Christ, when once free from influences of tradition and association, forget their vows and renounce their christian principles and habits. At the same time, numbers of those whose minds are tinged with scepticism, fanaticism, or superstition, seek amid the solitude of the prairies, or the vagueness and disorder of the young villages at the West, that "largest liberty" which cannot exist in a stable, settled, and well ordered community. The emigration of this description constitutes one af the most formidable obstacles which the Home Missionary cause has to encounter at the West. While rejoicing, therefore, over the blessing with which God has rewarded the labors of his servants in the older States, the thought is driven home upon us with solemn force, that a much greater progress is demanded; and that those communities which are most compact, most wealthy, most intelligent, most religious, should earnestly devote themselves to the completion of that christianizing process, in which they have already made so good a beginning. The most precious gift which the East can possibly bestow upon the West, is the benefit of such an example.

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

——— ———, President; HENRY PERKINS, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. ROBERT ADAIR, Secretary. Office in Philadelphia.

The field of this Auxiliary covers the States of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia. Its receipts for the year ending March 1st, 1855, were $9,146 14. Its expenditures were $8,155 45; and $15 were remitted from its Treasury to that of the Parent Society. There has also been received by the American Home Missionary Society, during the twelve months ending April 1st, 1855, from New Jersey, $941 40; from Pennsylvania, $155 50; and from Maryland, $21; making, in all, $1,117 90. The total raised within the bounds of this Auxiliary for Home Missions, is $10,264 04. Of this, $1,132 90 was received into the Treasury of the Parent Society, toward the support of churches at the West.

The number of missionaries in commission has been sixty three, viz., forty nine in Pennsylvania, eleven in New Jersey, one in Delaware, one in Maryland, and one in the District of Columbia. One church has assumed its own support; five new fields have been entered; four houses of worship have been completed; and two new churches have been organized.

The cause of Home Missions mourns the loss of THOMAS FLEMING, Esq., late President of this Auxiliary, who died in Philadelphia, on the 16th of March, 1855. He had long been a warm friend of the Society, and a liberal contributor to its funds.

The statistics given above, with others contained in preceding Reports, shows that the field of this Auxiliary is one of no common difficulty. Although broad and rich, it has hitherto yielded comparatively limited contributions toward the support of the Gospel in the young States and Territories of the West. The sparseness of the population in some districts; in others, their foreign origin, language, and prejudices; in others still, an inadequate appreciation of christian duty, or an obstinate indifference to all religion, present serious obstacles to the missionary work; but, in the words of the last Report, "it is a work that will, in the progress of years, if diligently prosecuted, yield a rich reward. Many a pastor has now a large and influential congregation, who was entrusted with its oversight when it was a feeble flock." The pioneer farmer has to endure many hardships before he can secure a comfortable home, and settle himself into the easy and regular habits of the older community that he left. The pioneer minister must pass through a similar experience; and this experience again of the private missionary, is often repeated under another form, in that of the Society which sustains him. While, however, compelled to look this fact in the face, we feel that the friends of Home Missions should find in it only additional incitements to renewed and redoubled exertions. The great State, which is the principal field of this Auxiliary is—alike in the number and the industry of its population, its natural resources, its accumulated capital, and its commanding central position—among the very foremost in power and importance of the States of this Union. The weightiest social and political interests are staked upon the speedy prevalence of evangelical Christianity over the errors and indifference which now prevail to so alarming an extent. But higher than all these, the eternal welfare of myriads unborn is confided to the hands of the living generation. A great work is imposed upon the Philadelphia Home Missionary Society. We trust that a noble future is before it.

CENTRAL AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. Theodore Spencer, Secretary; J. E. Warner, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Utica.

The receipts of this Agency for the year ending March 1st, 1855, were $4,885 61, being a small advance on those of the year preceding. In addition, the sum of $3,440 53 has been contributed from this field directly to the Treasury of the Society, making a total for the cause of Home Missions, of $8,326 14, of which nearly two fifths were spared for the benefit of the churches that are farther West. We give the following summary from the Annual Report of the Agency:

"The aspect of the field is, on the whole, more and more encouraging. A growing interest is felt in the different subsidiaries to the Gospel, and greater efficiency has been given them. The cause of education is constantly rising in the public estimation. The principles of the temperance reformation are taking deeper root; and especial zeal has been shown to secure the enactment of a law to prohibit the liquor traffic. Sunday schools are sustained with unflagging spirit, and continue to be rewarded with happy results. Several houses of worship have been repaired, and debts that have encumbered others have been removed. Considerable accessions have been made to some congregations. Benevolent contributions have been kept up at former rates, notwithstanding the pressure of the times. The Agency have co-operated with the Committee in the effort to raise the salaries of missionaries somewhat in keeping with the enhanced cost of living, and to a certain extent, with gratifying success. Greater caution has been observed in making appropriations, so as to secure the payment by the churches of their equitable portion toward the compensation of their laborers, and to confine the aid extended within the limits defined by the rules of the Society."

"The completion and progress of railways in our field, within the last year, have let in a tide of thrift in which our churches have shared, and the prospect of their extension cheers us with the hope of further prosperity. Avenues will be opened to sections of the State included within our field that have been hitherto an almost unbroken wilderness; and while they will thus contribute greatly to the strength of existing churches, they will collect the materials, and make ready the places for new ones. It is our happiness to speak of several revivals of religion, which have resulted in the hopeful conversion of considerable numbers; and to report several young men as having commenced a preparation for the ministry. Thus, while we have much reason for confession and grief, we have also cause for gratitude and praise; and looking at what has been accomplished, and what is promised, we thank God, and take courage."

WESTERN AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. John A. Murray, Secretary; W. T. Scott, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Geneva.

The receipts of this Agency for the year ending March 1st, 1855, were $6,569 20, an advance on those of the preceding year of more than $500. The expenditures were $5,349 71. The sum of $3,500 was remitted from its Treasury, and $6,328 50, without passing through this Treasury, was forwarded directly to the office of the Society in New York; making the total from Western New York, $14,897 70.

Since our last Annual Report two members of this Agency, Mr. Hiram H. Seelye, and Mr. Charles A. Cook have deceased. "Devout men carried them to their burial," and mourn their loss.

During the year, forty three missionaries have been commissioned to preach in forty eight churches. The whole number of missionaries, including those of the previous year whose commissions extended into this, was fifty one.

The missionaries have generally been encouraged by evidences of progress. Old debts have been removed, lecture rooms fitted up, parsonages secured, and more commodious houses of worship erected. A few of the churches have given notice that hereafter they will sustain the Gospel without aid; and several report revivals. Many of the missionary churches are exceedingly feeble, and are kept in this condition by the incessant drain of emigration to the West; and yet, instances of the most encouraging success are detailed in the recent Report from this field.

An unusually large number of the churches are vacant, and some of these are among the most important. The want of ministers is seriously felt. A great harvest is perishing for lack of laborers to gather it in; and waste places are becoming more desolate still. As many as fifty ministers—in the opinion of the Secretary—are now needed to supply the vacancies in Western New York, with the missionary stations that ought to be improved.

"But, on the whole," in the words of the Report, "the churches in Western New York are rising in influence and importance. It is not a high estimate that the houses of worship now building, or dedicated within the year by our two denominations will cost $200,000." This is an earnest of better days.

"The American Home Missionary Society has been an incalculable blessing to Western New York. Four fifths of our Presbyterian and Congregational Churches look to Home Missions, as the instrumentality that raised them from weakness to comparative strength. It afforded help at a point, where without help they would have sunk. The $130,000 expended by the Society in aiding these feeble churches have done an amount of good that no words can express. But for this expenditure, the majority of our churches would most probably have no existence. It has been a sure and permanent investment for good. Already Western New York has paid back into the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society more than double the amount that has been expended, and hundreds of thousands of dollars have been contributed on this field to other causes of benevolence that would never have been contributed, but for the previous Home Missionary expenditure. But, if with this we could spread before you the hundreds of revivals that have blest the labors of the missionaries, the thousands that have been converted and added to the churches, and the scores of faithful ministers converted in these churches and now preaching in our own and foreign lands, Home Missions would be acknowledged a fundamental charity indispensable to the increase of other charities, and to the moral interests of our land and the world."

WESTERN RESERVE AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. Myron Tracy, Hudson, Secretary; T. P. Handy, Esq., Cleveland, Treasurer.

Forty three missionaries have been sustained on this field during the past year. The number of churches to which they have ministered statedly is forty eight; the number of missionaries being less by one, and the number of churches by three, than during the year preceding.

The amount paid into the Treasury of the Agency, is $3,552 22, and the amount expended for missionary purposes on the field, $3,632 44. Various contributions from churches and individuals, amounting to $606 94, have been forwarded directly to the Treasury at New York; making the total of receipts, from the field covered by this Agency, $4,159 16. This sum is less by $1,045 01, than was raised during the previous year. "This fact," says the Secretary, "I attribute to the general commercial embarrassments of the country, and the almost entire failure of the crops, in this region. When I look at the severity of the pressure upon the entire community, occasioned by these two causes, I am surprised that the collections have been so large, rather than that they have been no larger. The same causes, which have cut off our income, have greatly increased our wants. Several churches which, a year ago, we hoped would not again apply for aid, are still on our list, and some of them for an increased amount. It has been necessary also to advance the salaries of many of the missionaries, while the ability of the people to sustain them has been diminished."

In other respects, however, the religious condition of this field affords encouragement to the friends of missions. The churches generally are becoming more established in sound doctrine, and suffer less from the assaults of error and fanaticism than in time past; the pastoral relation is gradually becoming more permanent, and more highly prized; and the institutions of the Gospel, as sustained by this Society, are steadily advancing in stability and influence. During the past year, the churches have enjoyed less, perhaps, than the ordinary measure of spiritual prosperity; yet most of them have received some accessions from the ranks of the world.

Rev. Myron Tracy, who, for the last twelve years, has held the office of Secretary of this Agency, was compelled, in consequence of enfeebled health, to resign his post, in January last. In the prosecution of his work, he has enjoyed, in an eminent degree, the confidence of the community; and the Committee would express their high appreciation of the wisdom and fidelity with which he has fulfilled his trust. Since his official labors commenced, the contributions to the cause of Home Missions from this field, have increased more than four fold. He states that, "during this time, one hundred and twenty five ministers have received from this Agency a portion of their temporal support, while they have ministered the bread of life to one hundred and two feeble churches. Eight of these ministers have fallen asleep, and their graves are with us to this day. Others have passed from our bounds, some of whom also rest from their labors. Only forty three remain on the field, in any department of active service. The amount of funds collected by the Agency, and expended in this field, during the period of my connection with it, is about $34,000, and about $5,000 have been forwarded to the Treasury of the Society, to aid in the same great work in other portions of the land." The churches that have made these gifts, it is to be remembered, were, almost without exception, planted and reared by Home Missionary labor, and are now illustrating by their beneficence the reproductive power of this enterprise.

The Report of the Agency from which the foregoing facts and extracts are taken, was prepared by Mr. Tracy, and forwarded to the Society, early in March. Since that time he has closed his work on earth, and gone to his reward. He died at Hudson, on the 27th of March, at the age of 57 years. He commenced his labors on the Western Reserve in 1827; and since that time, he has borne a prominent part in building up the kingdom of Christ in this and the adjoining States. By his unremitting labors, his wise counsels, and his deep and unaffected piety, he had secured to himself universal confidence and esteem. His praise is in all the churches. In his death, the cause of Home Missions has lost one of its most valued advocates and friends. In its service he spent the best years of his ministry; and his last communication to its officers, written a few days previous to his death, closes with the following expression of his interest in its objects: "I cannot close without expressing to you the great satisfaction I feel in having been permitted to labor so long in so good a work; and while life shall last, I shall cherish an ardent attachment to the cause which I have been permitted to serve."

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. Thomas Wickes, Secretary. Office at Marietta.

Twelve missionaries have been employed within the bounds of this Agency, during the year, and have supplied fifteen feeble churches, statedly, with the means of grace.

The outlay of the Society, for these services, has been $1,218 52, of which $352 87 have been paid into the Treasury of the Agency, and $317 61 forwarded, from individuals and churches on this field, to the Treasury at New York, making the entire contributions to the cause from this part of Ohio, $670 48.

In four or five of the congregations, under the care of the missionaries, the reviving influences of the Spirit have been enjoyed, as the result of which the churches have been greatly encouraged and strengthened. And where no such harvests have been gathered, abundant proof is furnished that the labor of the husbandman has not been in vain in the Lord. The ordinances of God's word have been sustained, and a standard lifted up against the incoming flood of iniquity and error; the good seed has been sown in the hearts of the young, through the agency of Sabbath schools, and the faithful few, scattered among these hills and valleys, nourished in the divine life.

The work of Home Missions on this territory is subject to peculiar difficulties, arising from the geographical position and physical features of the field, and the character of its original occupants. In reference to its religious history and prospects, the Secretary of the Agency speaks as follows: "While we rejoice in the good accomplished, we have reason to lament that we cannot discover signs of greater advancement. At some points, as we look back over a few years, we can see that there has been progress. A great gain has been secured to the cause of Christ. The Gospel has been introduced, obtained a permanent footing, and wrought an entire revolution in the moral aspect of the community. On the other hand, however, we see two or three instances of churches declining, and by their decay giving rise to no little apprehension that they may become extinct. And when we look at the abounding desolations, beyond the circumference of our feeble churches, and the distant prospect of their being brought under the influence of sound evangelical truth, our hearts are pained and saddened. At the present rate of progress, the thorough evangelization of this region is an attainment far in the distant future; and if this be the object which the churches of our land have really set before them, we would they should understand, that the means now in operation are not adequate to the undertaking. An incalculable amount of good is accomplished by present efforts and outlays. The institutions of religion are maintained, and a multitude of souls saved; but the piety, and zeal, and contribution, and prayer, and effort of Christians, have not reached the point which is necessary to effect the complete evangelization of this growing country."

WESTERN OHIO.

Rev. Marcus Hicks, Columbus, Agent.

The number of missionaries who have held commissions from the Society in this portion of the State, the past year, is forty six, and the amount raised for Home Missions on the same field is $3,038 16. The contributions of the churches to the Society's funds have been diminished, and their efforts to sustain the means of grace embarrassed, by the causes already alluded to, as having retarded the missionary work on the Western Reserve. Increased burdens have rested upon the feeble churches, a double share of which, it is believed, has been borne by the missionaries themselves. Yet, with an inadequate support, and in the face of manifold discouragements, they have patiently prosecuted their labors, and God has crowned them with a rich reward. The missionary churches, generally, seem to have enjoyed an unusual measure of spiritual prosperity, traceable, in some instances, as it appears, to these pecuniary embarrassments.

"It has been generally felt," says the Agent, "that the drought of the last summer, and the financial pressure of the fall and winter, were a rebuke to the worldliness of the people; and many Christians and churches seem to have wisely improved the discipline of their Heavenly Father. There has been an increased attention to the duties of religion, and rich blessings have fallen upon many of the churches. They have been quickened in holy living, and strengthened by additions from the world. In several congregations seasons of special religious interest were in progress at the close of the year."

Only one church on this field has, during the year, assumed the support of its pastor, but two others, at least, are understood to have made their last application for missionary aid. Two houses of worship have been completed, two others commenced, and others still enlarged and improved. Several destitute districts have been supplied with the means of grace, in which churches have been, or soon will be, organized. Twenty churches, however, are still destitute of the stated ministrations of the Gospel. Some of them are important and promising fields; others, through long neglect, have become nearly extinct; and if they continue unsupplied, will soon be beyond the hope of recovery. They stand as melancholy memorials of past neglect, and impressive arguments for a more vigorous prosecution of the missionary work.

The whole number of missionaries employed in this State the past year, is one hundred and one; yet it is evident, from the foregoing statements, that the supply of missionary labor was never more inadequate than at the present time. By the rapid increase of population; by the springing up of new centers of business, along the track of the railroads, and the consequent withdrawal of the people from other churches, thus reducing them to a state of dependence; and by emigration to the new settlements of the remoter West, the fields demanding missionary culture are being rapidly multiplied. A much larger expenditure of missionary labor and funds than is now reported, will be requisite for the coming year. It is to be expected, however, that while this enterprise must be carried forward on this field, for many years, on a much more extended scale than hitherto, its pecuniary claims will be more than met by the contributions of the churches within the State.

INDIANA.

Rev. Henry Little, Madison, Agent.

Thirty five missionaries have been commissioned the past year, to labor in this State, and its churches have contributed to the cause of Home Missions, during this period, $1,134 76.

While the results of missionary labor performed on this field, bear witness to the fidelity of the missionaries, they do not indicate that the churches generally have made as much progress as has been witnessed in some of the other States. Upon some favored spots the rain of heaven has descended, and the husbandman has "come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him;" but from the field as a whole, the spiritual, like the natural harvest, has been less abundant than in many former years. Yet, in view of the circumstances in which our brethren here are laboring, we must regard it no ordinary triumph, if the churches to which they minister have been able to maintain their ground.

The adverse influences which have operated more powerfully in this, than most of the other Northwestern States, have been frequently alluded to in former Reports; but they should be borne in mind whenever we attempt to gain a correct view of the difficulties and achievements of the missionary enterprise. As this State was not easily accessible to emigrants passing westward by the great lakes, most of its early settlers entered it by way of the Ohio river, and came from the States lying on the other side of it. They had not been taught to prize and sustain the institutions of religion, and for several years, scarcely anything was done for the spiritual benefit of this region. The result of this neglect was, the establishment of society upon an irreligious basis; the unrestrained growth of various forms of error; indeed, the entire preoccupancy of the ground with thorns, which it has cost much subsequent labor to subdue, and which, even yet, are ever springing up to choke the word. In this preparatory work, a vast amount of missionary labor has been expended, with results less striking, perhaps, but not less important than those which have crowned the enterprise in other States.

But the progress made has been slow, and, during the last few years, especially, it has been greatly retarded by the draughts which have been made upon these feeble churches by emigration. "The inhabitants," says the Agent, "are *im*migrants, and they easily become *e*migrants. They have no family cave of Machpelah, where they are anxious to deposit their remains. They are susceptible to all the new and dazzling wonders of the West, and are easily set in motion. An immense multitude every year emigrate westward from Indiana. Of those who come in to take their places, but a small proportion are pious, and of these, only a part, of course, are Presbyterians or Congregationalists; so that many a faithful and successful missionary has not, for several years, maintained his ground. He has received many valuable additions, but has sent a still larger number to the West."

This State, as a whole, however, is rapidly advancing in population and influence, and the facts just referred to, so far from being arguments for continued neglect of its religious welfare, should stimulate the friends of missions to a more vigorous prosecution of their work. The present supply of laborers is lamentably inadequate. A missionary speaks in the following terms of the existing disproportion between the religious and the material progress of Indiana: "This State is improving at an unexampled rate, in nearly every thing, except religion; and in this respect improvements are made, but they are by no means commensurate with the material advancements which are rushing forward in every direction. The work of church extension lags far behind the progress of population; so that we have many vacant churches, and many important fields, white already to the harvest, with none to thrust in the sickle. It is a question of painful interest in all our ecclesiastical meetings, What shall we do for men and means to meet and supply the great and increasing demand for ministerial labors in this important field? We expect much from your Society; but the rate of supply which the churches have enabled you to make us, both as to men and means, falls much below our rapidly increasing wants."

ILLINOIS.

Rev. Aratus Kent, Galena, Agent for Northern Illinois.

In this State the Society has had in commission, since the last Report, one hundred and two missionaries, and has received into its Treasury, from the same field, $3,362 95.

In the early part of the year a large number of missionary fields were visited by the special effusions of the Spirit, the happy fruits of which are seen, not only in large ingatherings of souls to the churches, but in an entire change in their external condition and prospects. Into several congregations, which had long been distracted by divisions, and oppressed by their pecuniary burdens, new life and vigor have been infused, old debts have been canceled, commodious houses of worship have been built, and the whole expense of sustaining gospel ordinances assumed. One case of this sort is referred to by the Agent in the following manner: "For the encouragement of the friends of missions, I will specify an instance where many years of toil have resulted, within a few months, in the erection of a sanctuary, and the installation of the missionary, in one of our young villages, which is destined, at no distant day, to become an important commercial center. The friends of Christ, though few and feeble, have struggled hard against a powerful current of opposition, but now they report themselves a self-sustaining church. Who can estimate the results of that patient effort, by which the leading men of the place have been gathered and cemented together, in an organization which promises, in future years, to mold the character of that community, when it shall have become a city of 30,000 or 50,000 inhabitants, and when other churches, as they lift their spires to heaven, shall point to this as the nursery whence they were transplanted, to bear fruit to the praise of Jehovah's grace."

On many fields, where no such material or spiritual changes have been wrought, the labors of the missionaries have been attended with manifold good results. In the cause of Temperance, and especially in the contest to secure the enactment of a Prohibitory Law, they have borne a prominent part. In regions hitherto the strongholds of error and unbelief, the gospel standard has been uplifted and upheld. In other districts, which have been burnt over by the fires of fanaticism, the foundations of evangelical truth have at length been laid, and its ministers have been gladly welcomed. Several posts have been occupied along the new routes of travel and traffic, where, with God's blessing, churches will soon grow up to a condition of independence. Thus, at many points on this wide field, an important work has been done, in clearing and preparing the hard soil, on which rich harvests may be gathered in future years, and perhaps by other hands.

The physical changes which have taken place in this State, during the past year, have greatly increased the labors and responsibilities of this Institution. The Illinois Central Railroad, more than 700 miles in length, and uniting Galena and Chicago on the north, with Cairo on the south, has been completed within a few months. This, in connection with other subsidiary roads, traversing the State in other directions, has wrought an entire revolution in its commercial relations. The vast and fertile interior, hitherto almost valueless, on account of its remoteness from the markets of the East and South, is now brought into easy communication with the cities of the Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico. The value of the soil, and of all agricultural products, has become greatly enhanced; secular enterprise is stimulated; a rapid tide of population is flowing in; and villages are springing up in scores, where the missionary of the cross should be early sent to preoccupy the soil with the good seed of the kingdom. Already, at many points, the most favorable season has passed by. While the friends of evangelical truth have slept, the enemy has sown tares. A large foreign population has come in, bringing with it the errors and vices of the old world, poisoning society at its fountains, and in some places, threatening to "dispossess the inhabitants of the land, and dwell therein." Shall this region be abandoned to Romanism and Infidelity? Shall the feeble and shepherdless flocks be left to the tender mercies of these ravening wolves; or shall they be gathered and folded and fed by faithful shepherds, by whom they shall be led into the green pastures, and beside the still waters of salvation, and nourished up to everlasting life? This is the question; and it is for the friends of Christ, whose contributions and prayers sustain this Institution, to furnish the answer.

MISSOURI.

Rev. Timothy Hill, St. Louis, Secretary.

The number of missionaries who have borne the commission of this Society in Missouri, since the last Report, is twenty four;

and the amount received from the churches of that State is $256 25.

The history of the missionary work in this field, during the past year, presents little that is of a cheering character. The lives of all the missionaries have indeed been spared, and they have prosecuted their labors with commendable zeal and self-denial. At some of the missionary stations the preaching of the Gospel has been attended by larger numbers than heretofore, and progress has been made towards the support of religious institutions. One of the churches has been favored with a revival of religion of remarkable power and extent. But the general aspect of the field has been such as to try the faith of those who are called to labor there in word and doctrine. The congregations have been greatly embarrassed in their pecuniary affairs, by the drought of the last summer, and the financial pressure of the winter. Throughout the year, a fierce excitement has prevailed, in consequence of the enactments of the National Legislature, in reference to slavery. The passage of the "Kansas and Nebraska Bill," the consequent opening of these new Territories to the introduction of slavery, and the struggle which followed between the friends and the enemies of this system, for the preoccupancy of this portion of the national domain, have kept the public mind in a state of agitation and ferment, which has been exceedingly unfavorable to the proper action of religious truth. The worst passions of the people have been aroused, sectional jealousies have been excited, and suspicions have been awakened, against portions of the community, and, in some instances, against the missionaries themselves, weakening their influence and destroying their usefulness. On the western border of the State, this excitement has been wild and turbulent in the extreme. In some cases, the missionaries have been brought into collision with the propagandists of slavery, their character has been assailed, their labors interrupted, and their ministry, for the time, rendered of none effect. In other cases, the people themselves have been scattered; and the shepherd has been left without a flock. The following prediction from a missionary in one of the border counties has since been fulfilled: "The few members who compose my church expect to move over to Kansas Territory in the fall, or early next spring. So likewise will many of those who have been regular members of my congregation. This will break up our church organization, and render it useless for me to continue to labor in my present field. Since the opening of the Kansas Territory for settlement, the people in this county have been excited in reference to slavery and politics, to such an extent as to grow cold and indifferent on the subject of religion."

It is owing to these causes, mainly, that the number of laborers in this State, sustained by the Society, is less than it was the last year. But, while the Committee are constrained, in justice to themselves and the missionaries, to allude to these difficulties, they were never more deeply impressed than they are at present, with the importance of providing more adequately for the necessities of this great and growing State. She is rapidly advancing in population, and wealth, and resources, and influence; but no corresponding progress is made, if, indeed, any progress is made, in supplying the means of her spiritual culture. Where are the men, ready to endure hardness as good soldiers, who will face the obstacles, and grapple with the gigantic forms of error and sin which prevail there, declaring prudently, but fearlessly and faithfully, the whole counsel of God?

MICHIGAN.

Rev. Herbert A. Read, Pontiac, Agent.

In this State seventy seven missionaries have labored, the past year, in connection with this Society, and $2,387 63 have been contributed to the cause of Home Missions.

It was stated in the last Report, that Rev. Calvin Clark, who had acted as Agent of the Society, in this State, for eight years, had resigned his post. He continued, however, to render such services to the Society as were compatible with his pastoral duties, until near the close of the year, when Rev. Herbert A. Read, pastor of the Congregational church in Pontiac, was appointed to this office. Mr. Read, we are happy to state, has accepted the appointment, and entered upon his duties.

Though the Society has been deprived of the active services of an Agent, its operations in this State have been prosperous in a high degree. The Reports of the missionaries, with scarcely an exception, have been of an unusually cheering character, and fully warrant the belief that the churches generally have made greater progress than in any former year. Several sanctuaries have been erected; others have been enlarged or otherwise improved; old debts have been canceled; more liberal subscriptions have been made, and a more generous support secured to the ministry; the waste places have been visited; the scattered sheep gathered into the fold, and supplied with the regular ministrations of the word; Sabbath schools have been organized, and the Word of God extensively circulated; and several of the churches have enjoyed precious seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. If the churches of this State should continue to enjoy the same measure of prosperity which has been granted them the past year, many more of them will soon cease to depend upon the benefactions of this Society.

The northern portion of Michigan, hitherto comparatively secluded and neglected, is now receiving more attention, and is rapidly becoming settled. The valleys of the Saginaw, Shiawassee, Muskegan, and Grand rivers, already contain a large population very inadequately supplied with the means of grace. Along the shores of Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay, in the mining districts on Lake Superior, and at the Sault St. Marie, where a ship canal is already completed, uniting these great inland seas, there are promising fields of labor for which adequate supplies have not yet been found. There are few points in the whole missionary field which present more urgent claims and higher promise.

The late Agent, in presenting his last Report to the Society, speaks as follows of the work already accomplished, and the work yet remaining to be done by this Institution: "What has the American Home Missionary Society done—I might almost say, what has it not done—for Michigan? It has founded, at least, 200 churches of the denominations for which it acts. They look to it as the mother that has brought them forth, and nursed them hitherto. Its missionaries have labored and prayed them into existence, watched over them in their feebleness, sustained them when ready to die, fed them with the sincere milk of the word, and borne them to the mercy seat in fervent supplication. Perhaps no State in the Union, is under greater obligation to this Society, than Michigan. But the work is only begun. For what has been accomplished during the last twenty five years, let us give thanksgiving and praise to our redeeming God and Savior. But a far greater work is to be done the next quarter of a century, than has been done the last. The true policy is, to increase the number of laborers, and occupy at once the new and promising openings in various parts of the State but especially in the northern portion. Multitudes are rushing thither to find a home for themselves and their families. Now is the time to take possession of that goodly land, and set up there the standard of the cross."

"In taking leave of the Society, with which I have been so long and so happily connected, my bosom heaves with commingled emotions. Twenty years ago, with a commission in my hand, I came to Michigan, then a Territory in its infancy. I have grown up with it, and shared in its prosperity and adversity. Of the ministers laboring in this Territory when I entered it, only one is now at his post. The rest have left the State, or are unable to discharge the functions of the ministry, or have gone to their recompense of reward. For twenty years I have watched the operations of the American Home Missionary Society, and observed the influence it has exerted in all parts of the State. No mortal can estimate the good it has accomplished. It will be known only by the revelations of the judgment day. If there be joy in heaven, among the angels of God, over one sinner that repenteth, with what interest will they regard the planting of 200 christian churches, which shall live, and multiply, and extend their influence, century after century, till the consummation of all things? Such results, achieved in this brief period, are truly wonderful. To God be all the glory!"

WISCONSIN.

Rev. Dexter Clary, Beloit, Agent.

This Society has aided, the past year, in sustaining, in this State, one hundred missionaries, which exceeds by thirteen the number commissioned in any former year. Of these, six have preached in the Welsh language, two in German, and two in Norwegian. They have ministered regularly to one hundred and twenty churches, and about fifty congregations where churches have not been gathered.

In no previous year have the churches of Wisconsin enjoyed a larger measure of temporal and spiritual prosperity. This State was spared from that providential infliction which, during the last summer, fell so heavily upon most of the Western States. In many instances, the abundant worldly increase which God has granted them, has been liberally bestowed by the people to establish the institutions of religion. Twelve houses of worship have been completed, by missionary churches, and about twenty others were in progress of erection at the close of the year. Ten churches have been organized on missionary fields, and five which have hitherto been dependent for the means of sustaining the ministry, have, within the year, ceased to rely upon foreign aid. Out of one hundred and seventy churches in this State, connected with the denominations that sustain this Society, twenty six are now able to support their own ministers.

The Committee are accustomed to encourage the missionaries and churches to institute the pastoral relation, at as early a period as practicable. The backwardness manifested on the part of the people, to assume the responsibilities involved in this relation is greatly to be deplored. Only twelve of the missionaries in this State are pastors of the churches to which they minister. Three of them have been installed within the last year.

Many of the churches have shown their appreciation of the value of religious privileges, by a hearty coöperation with the Committee in securing to the missionaries a more adequate remuneration for their labors. They are also becoming more systematic and liberal in their contributions to the various objects of christian benevolence. The amount contributed the past year to the funds of this Institution, is $1,264 41.

The northern portion of this State, which has hitherto remained an almost unknown wilderness, has been at last invaded by the army of immigration, which is fast subduing its primeval forests and prairies, and transforming them into fruitful fields. The northwestern border of the State, especially, is being rapidly settled, and, for the most part, by a moral, intelligent, and enterprising population. Several missionaries have been sent into this region during the year, and are laboring with much success to prepare, in the wilderness, the way of the Lord; and are laying foundations on which many a material and spiritual temple shall, in future years, be reared to the praise of his great name. Several additional laborers are needed at different points in these new settlements, to give proper form to the social organizations which are soon to emerge from the chaotic elements congregating there. Even in the northern extremity of the State, at the western point of Lake Superior, is a settlement, not yet one year old, but containing five hundred inhabitants, from which an earnest appeal comes for a preacher of the Gospel.

"Twenty missionaries at least," says the Agent, "will be needed this season, to occupy the destitute churches, and the waste places; and notwithstanding the large appropriations already made to Wisconsin, may we not hope for increasing aid? As a Home Missionary field, the State is in its infancy. A score of years has not passed away since it was heathen ground,—a part of the great Foreign Missionary field. Great things have been already done, by the early and extensive influence of Home Missions. A vast amount of good has been achieved, affecting all the interests of society, social, literary, and religious. The entire history of the past gives great encouragement for future efforts."

"The State was never so prosperous as now. Her population receives large accessions from year to year. The newer portions are rapidly filling up. Twenty new counties have been organized since 1850, making the present number fifty; and there is room for many more. New facilities are being furnished for commercial operations. Centers of influence are multiplying, in which are abundant materials for societies and churches, and abundant work for christian ministers. The natural resources of the State are being developed, and the day is at hand when Wisconsin will exert an important influence, for good or for evil, upon the character and destiny of the country. That influence ought to be salutary, and the spirit and principles of the Gospel of Christ are indispensable to make it so. Under the guidance of these principles, and imbued with this spirit, Home Missionaries should be stationed at all points where settlements are commenced, and cast the salt into the opening fountains."

IOWA.

Rev. Julius A. Reed, Davenport, Agent.

The number of missionaries commissioned the past year, to labor in this State, is sixty three. This is a larger number, by seven, than has ever before been sustained in one year. Five of those missionaries have preached to congregations of Germans, and in the German language. Seventy two churches, and forty one congregations where churches have not yet been organized, have been statedly supplied with the means of grace through the instrumentality of this Society. The amount received into the Treasury, from the churches of this State, since the last Report, is $637 51.

Among the facts stated as indicating the progress of the missionary work during the year, we would specify the following: Twelve churches have been organized in different portions of this field, and one which has hitherto been dependent upon the Society has undertaken to support its own minister. Several others have made advances in this direction, though their progress has not been as great as was anticipated at the commencement of the year. Eight houses of worship have been completed within the year, and a larger number are still in progress of erection. Of the churches which are, or have been, aided by this Society, forty nine are now provided with church edifices. Early in the year, the spiritual aspect of this region was unusually gloomy. Political excitement, business speculations, worldliness in its various forms, seemed to have taken full possession of the public mind. The word fell among thorns, and the thorns sprung up and choked it. Since that time commercial disaster has fallen upon the community, the spirit of engrossing worldliness has been rebuked, and, during the winter, God has graciously visited many of the churches with the reviving and converting influences of his Spirit. The churches are advancing steadily, though slowly, in intelligence, liberality, order and efficiency in the use of all those agencies which God has ordained for the extension of his kingdom and the salvation of men.

The population of Iowa, in June, 1854, was 325,202, showing an increase, since 1850, of 131,286, or an average annual increase of about 33,000. The increase during the last year was much greater than in any year preceding; and as railroads from the east have, within a few months, reached the Mississippi at three points opposite to this State, and will soon be extended into the interior, it is probable that the stream of immigration will augment from year to year. Already, according to the statement of the Agent, there are at least twenty four counties containing a sufficient population to require missionary culture, where no minister, of the denominations sustaining this Society, has yet been stationed. Some of these counties contain several thousand inhabitants. Most of them are poor, and, while struggling with the hardships and trials incident to a residence in a new country, they must depend on others to provide for their spiritual necessities. To supply the sixteen vacant churches, and, at the same time, provide adequately for the wide-spread destitutions in the new settlements, a large reinforcement of missionary laborers will be needed the coming year.

MINNESOTA.

Ten missionaries have been under commission in this Territory, during the past year. Three of them have commenced their labors, in connection with this Society, since the last Report. They had previously held commissions from the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions to labor among the Indians. As the white population have come in, and driven out the heathen before them, the region is suddenly changed from a Foreign to a Home Missionary field; and the relations of the missionaries have been transferred accordingly. Another of the missionaries in this Territory, who has been in commission since 1852, is pastor of the same church which was organized twenty years ago, in connection with the mission to the Dakota Indians, but is now composed entirely of white settlers. In all the fields, occupied by the missionaries, churches have been gathered, four of which have installed their ministers as pastors. Three churches have been organized during the year covered by this Report,—one of them at Sauk Rapids, which is now the extreme outpost of the Home Missionary field in this direction, being situated on the Mississippi river ninety miles north of the Falls of St. Anthony. One of the churches in this Territory, which was planted through the agency of this Society, has already assumed the support of its minister, and others are making encouraging progress toward the same result.

The settlement of this Territory has been somewhat retarded by delays in securing titles to the land, and by the diversion of the current of emigration to the Pacific coast. But these causes have now ceased to operate; and, during the past year, a large accession has been made to the population. Several flourishing settlements have been formed on the Mississippi, and in the valleys of the St. Croix, and the Minnesota, to which the attention of the Committee has been called, and which they hope soon to occupy. Some of them are destined to become, in a brief period, important centers of influence, and no time should be lost in laying there the foundations of christian institutions. The future character and influence of this infant Territory are soon to be determined, and will be determined, mainly, by the men to whom its early religious training is entrusted. To furnish and sustain such laborers, and in such numbers, that this work shall be well performed, is among the gravest responsibilities devolved upon the patrons of this Institution.

KANSAS.

In May last an Act was passed in both houses of Congress, defining the boundaries, and providing for the organization of two new Territories, to be called respectively Kansas and Nebraska. The ancient guarantees by which this region had been forever consecrated to freedom were by this Act set aside. Thus the question whether this vast domain should be actually surrendered to the blighting influence of negro slavery, was left to the decision of the actual occupants of the soil. This consideration, aided by the natural advantages of the country, soon set in motion a tide of emigration. In Kansas, the principal point of danger, and of attraction, several thousand persons took up their abode in the course of the summer and autumn. To provide for their spiritual necessities and aid them in planting institutions which should bless the tens of thousands who should follow them, seemed to be the plain duty of this Society. Accordingly, two missionaries were designated to this Territory, and commenced their labors in October last.

One of them is stationed at Lawrence, which is situated near the junction of the Kansas and Wakarusa rivers, and about forty miles from the mouth of the former. It was settled chiefly by emigrants from New England, and was considered the most important post of labor in the Territory. He was cordially welcomed, and was appointed chaplain of the colony for one year. A church of about twenty members was soon organized, a Bible class and Sabbath school opened, prayer meetings established, and all the means of grace were sustained with growing interest through the winter. Another missionary has been stationed at Juniatta, on the Big Blue river, four miles from its junction with the Kansas, and about one hundred miles from the eastern boundary of the Territory. Several settlements have been formed in this neighborhood, which promise to become important points of missionary labor. A church will soon be organized. A third laborer for this field was commissioned near the close of the year, but his particular destination is not yet determined.

The missionaries who have spent the winter in the field, have endured much privation and encountered many difficulties. Before they could provide comfortable dwellings, they were overtaken by a winter of unparalleled severity; and their families have been much exposed to its rigors. In their journeys for preaching and exploration, they have slept upon the open prairie, or in the shelter of the groves. The inhabitants generally were in similar circumstances, and the time and thought which would otherwise have been given to spiritual interests, have been engrossed in supplying these pressing physical wants. Some too, it must be added, who bore the christian profession at the East, being freed from all social restraints, openly avow themselves enemies of the truth they once espoused, and oppose the efforts of its ministers. But the chief hindrance to the labors of the missionaries, has been the intense political excitement, attendant upon two elections which have already taken place. The invasion of the Territory by an army of voters from an adjoining State, to overrule the suffrages of the inhabitants, has created an agitation and indignation in the public mind, not altogether favorable to the reception of religious truth. But better days are at hand; and the work so auspiciously commenced must be prosecuted with renewed vigor, and on an extended scale.

Tens of thousands of emigrants will make their homes in this Territory during the present year, and the type of its future will soon be set. If it is to be saved from the dangers which impend over it; if its smiling prairies are to be dotted over with the homes of intelligent, industrious, christian freemen; the missionary of the cross must go forth, in the very front rank of emigration, and amid the din of sectional and political strife, his voice must be heard, saying, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord!" It will be the aim of the Committee to meet these new responsibilities, as the means placed at their disposal, and the claims of other fields will permit.

CALIFORNIA.

Rev. Timothy Dwight Hunt, San Francisco, Agent.

In this State, twelve missionaries have labored under the direction of the Society, seven of whom have been commissioned since the last Report. Two others are now under appointment, and expect to sail from New York in the month of May.

The churches at Placerville and Grass Valley, which were aided by the Society at the beginning of the year, have since that time assumed the entire support of their ministers. The same is true of the church at Cresent City, where a missionary has been stationed, for the first time, since the commencement of the year. At Columbia, also, which was first occupied by the Society in December last, the whole salary of the missionary was at once pledged by the people. At other places, the congregations assisted, expect, in the course of a few months, to relinquish entirely the aid of the Society. During the year, four churches have been organized, in the missionary fields, under encouraging auspices. Five churches have been completed, and another purchased,—three of them at points where no missionary had been stationed previous to the year just closed. All the churches have been more or less strengthened by additions to their membership, and the hearts of some of the missionaries have been cheered by witnessing sinners turning unto the Lord. In addition to the burdens thrown upon these feeble churches, for the maintenance of gospel ordinances, they have contributed liberally for the support of a religious journal, which is regarded as an important auxiliary to the missionary work; for the endowment of a college recently founded under their aupices; and for various other objects of christian benevolence.

In view of the circumstances under which the missionaries have labored, the past year, the progress made is encouraging and even surprising. It has been a year of heavy and manifold calamities. Unsuccessful speculations, desolating fires, the ruinous depreciation of agricultural products, unexpected delays in establishing titles to land, and finally, the great commercial crash of the last winter, have impoverished thousands, embarrased all departments of business, and greatly hindered the work of establishing the institutions of the Gospel. Yet the success which, in the face of these obstacles, has attended the labors of the missionaries, demands our grateful acknowledgments to him who giveth the increase, and encourages the Committee to a vigorous prosecution of their work.

Hitherto the immediate oversight of the Society's interests, in this State, has been entrusted to a Committee of resident ministers, for whose valuable counsel and aid the Executive Committee acknowledge their great indebtedness. But the field and scale of their operations have increased to such a degree, as to require the attention of an Agent entirely devoted to this work. The Committee have secured for this service, Rev. T. Dwight Hunt, for several years pastor of the 1st Congregational church in San Francisco, who has relinquished his pastoral charge in order to enter upon the duties of this office. He commenced his labors January 15th. Mr. Hunt was the first Protestant minister who raised the gospel standard in California. The high position he has occupied, and his familiar acquaintance with the religious history and condition of the State, eminently qualify him for the service he has undertaken. He has already made extensive tours, exploring new fields, preparing the way for additional laborers, stimulating the assisted churches to increased effort, and enlisting a more general and liberal coöperation in the missionary work. As the result of his labors, the Committee indulge the hope that they will be enabled to conduct their operations on a more extended scale, and yet with less expense than heretofore; and that the coming year will witness far more signal triumphs of the truth than have yet been achieved.

OREGON.

No additional laborers have been sent to this Territory since the last Annual Report. Those who were then under commission, five in number, have continued their labors during the year, without interruption, and with encouraging success. At Salem, a house of worship has been completed at an expense of about $1,000, which has been wholly defrayed by the people. The congregation has greatly increased, and the missionary is cheered by many tokens of good. The church at Oregon City has been favored with a gracious visitation of the Spirit, by which its members have been united and quickened, wanderers recovered, and sinners brought to the knowledge of the truth.

It has been stated in former Reports, that a serious obstacle to the success of missionary labor in Oregon, arises from the operation of the "Land Law," which makes liberal grants of land to actual settlers upon it. The people are thus separated from each other by such distances that they are with difficulty brought to coöperate in supporting the Gospel. Another evil consists in the frequent removals to which the people are subject. In this way one missionary church has lost, in the course of fifteen months, more than half its members. As the habits of the people become more fixed, and the country becomes more thickly settled, these difficulties will be obviated and the congregations will be established on a firmer basis.

This Territory is rapidly increasing in population, and there is an urgent demand for a large missionary reinforcement for this field, and for Washington Territory. In the vicinity of Puget's Sound, and in the Umpqua and Rogue river valleys, are important and growing settlements, which should be occupied without delay. The church at Portland has been left vacant by the transfer of its pastor to another field. The Committee have made strenuous efforts to supply this post, but thus far without success. The claims of this field are thus stated by one of the missionaries: "Our southern counties are multiplying, and filling up rapidly. In Lane, Umpqua, Jackson, Coös, and Clatsop counties we have no minister, and none in all Washington Territory; yet, the people are here, and now is the time to set the house of God in order. There is an evident and great gain in beginning this work early. The current flows rightly if we give it a right direction. If left to itself, in a short time it is so turned out of its course that it cannot be changed without long labors and great sacrifices. We need an established ministry and worship, to give confidence to society in a new country like this. The economy and the necessity of early meeting the wants and calls of our new settlements, is not, even now, fully estimated. We cannot do with less than six additional laborers for Oregon during the current year.

CONCLUSION.

As we turn, in conclusion, to meditate upon our work, it rises upon us with an ever-increasing, and at times, even an oppressive magnitude. The history of the past year is full of monition. Men had fondly hoped that, for civilized nations, the era of barbarous wars had ended. That hope is extinguished. They have waited, with earnest longing, for the day when our own government should be baptized with the christian spirit, and be manifestly actuated in all its policy by christian principles. But the day is not yet! For, as one of the most revered among the ministerial fathers of our churches has said: "Dark clouds are hovering over our own land. An evil, already of most portentous magnitude, is extending its encroachments. Iniquity the most flagrant is framed by law; and the remonstrances of those who fear God are treated with scorn." Those who have placed their reliance upon the good sense and integrity of the people, have been reminded of a truth which cannot be too deeply impressed upon our hearts, that a people who fear not God, will neither respect the rights of their neighbors, nor comprehend their own interests. We have witnessed an act of civil war, an armed invasion made with the deliberate purpose of putting down the right —the revolver and the bowie-knife dictating at the ballot-box. Those whose hearts are susceptible to the truth, discern in such things as these the shadow of a great peril; for while reminded of the principle that free governments are founded upon popular virtue, they see a proof, alas! of the fact, that multitudes of our own people are yet slaves of passion. The whole earth groans under this bondage, and our own proud and happy nation must lift up its voice of mourning and shame with the rest. Woe is unto us unless we can carry our Christianity to higher point than it has yet reached!

Such facts as these are calculated to discourage any well-wisher to his kind, who looks only at the things which are seen and temporal; but the Christian finds in them new assurance and resolve. Though he fears, he is not cast down. It is his occupation, here, to meet such emergencies. God sends him forth into the world that he may triumph over its iniquity. If our country is in any peril, then, if her wickedness is anywhere great and violent, if the difficulties are formidable, every good man, and every christian Society, will but find in these things fuel for their faith and their resolve. Is an empire founded on a distant ocean, founded in a day, founded in that love of money which is the root of all evil? The news is welcomed with gladness; for we know that this shall ere long become a province of the kingdom of the Lord. There is no discouragement in such a demand upon our labor, but only a visible divine decree, bidding us, with all prudence, carefulness, and confidence, prosecute energetically our missionary work. Does the frontier advance faster than we can follow? It is but a motive for pushing our work with redoubled ardor. Do tides of ignorance, superstition, and unbelief sweep from across the Atlantic, and threaten to submerge the feeble communities of the West beneath their bitter wave? It is but an argument for the laying of foundations that can stand the shock. Or, again, do powers of darkness invade the garden which God hath planted westward in our Eden? We find in this but a command to preach the Gospel of Christ which maketh free, not only from deeds, but from desires and purposes of evil. Every want and every wrong in our land comes to us with its appeal and says: Found churches! Preach the truth! Live the life, everywhere! Let there be no delay! Let there be no rest, for while you rest we grow! Necessity for the utmost diligence is therefore laid upon us, but it is a diligence that feels itself pressing on, with immutable certainty, to a glorious achievement.

Nor are signs of success wanting. The influence of the churches which this Society has founded, has been made apparent throughout the West in many ways, and especially in the triumph of a principle which promises to shut up more extensively the sources of crime and poverty, than perhaps any law upon any statute book. Never could this have been accomplished, but for the preparative influences of the christian churches; and even with these influences, this great measure would have waited long, and perhaps have failed at last of success, had not the present pastors of these churches, many of them still missionaries of this Society, thrown themselves with ardor and unanimity into its support. This is emphatically a HOME MISSIONARY triumph, and one of profoundest significance. The awakened conscience of the people has discovered a new crime! The day will come when they shall hate all iniquities as they hate this. For, every sin that is mastered by the popular conscience and intelligence, seen so as to be feared, felt so as to be abhorred, execrated so as to be crushed, must prove a stepping-stone to a height whence the possibility of further moral progress shall be recognized, and at last its necessity realized, and its achievement secured.

We therefore continually take courage. We believe that God will yet make this a CHRISTIAN LAND; that the churches which we are instrumental in founding or in supporting, to-day, will still be flourishing when thrones have fallen, and hierarchies have passed into contempt; that they will be the nuclei round which families will gather, and communities be organized, all finding the secret of their strength and prosperity, in the influences of the house of God—these communities, again coalescing in larger combinations, and made able to agree and unite upon broad plans of national policy, by the oneness of the Spirit that rules in the churches and in the hearts that have come within their sacred atmosphere. And thus it is our hope and faith, that as long as this continent shall remain the abode of mankind, its great expanse shall be covered with christian homes, homes of the free and of the good, abodes of industry, and of courage, of honor, and piety—nurseries of souls, who, during this childhood of their immortality, shall here be born anew, be cherished and disciplined towards the fullness of the stature of a perfect man in Christ Jesus. We have only to continue the work which is now begun, we have only to seek first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto us. THE LORD REIGNETH: LET THE EARTH REJOICE!

Relation of Auxiliary Societies, Agencies and Committees of Missions to the American Home Missionary Society; Applications, &c.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

Most of the State Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them—as the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusets—were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the Gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves as auxiliaries with the American Home Missionary Society, from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which such Auxiliaries—acting on the principles of the Parent Society, undertaking the supply of the destitute within their own bounds, and paying over their surplus funds to the Parent Institution—are connected with the Parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz.:

First—The Auxiliary is not superseded or overshadowed by the National Institution, but, on the contrary is invigorated and sustained by connection with it.

This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the State to which it belongs. From it alone, so far as its means will allow, the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment is cherished towards it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—While the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connection with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it is also a branch of the National Society, and, as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus, the State and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in and free access, through the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on the work.

Agents and Agencies.

Besides preaching to the destitute and taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Agents of the American Home Missionary Society exercise a general superintendence of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation, they ascertain the wants of the destitute; assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee; and in other ways labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds. At present, the Society has in its employ no merely collecting Agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the regions where they labor. The Secretaries of several of the larger Auxiliaries, are also the Agents for this cause in their respective bounds.

In certain districts, where the duties of an Agent are likely to be peculiarly responsible, there is associated with him a board of counselors selected from the region of his labors, called an Agency. These Boards of Agency differ from Auxiliary Societies, in that they have no independent existence, but are appointed by the Executive Committee from year to year, and are governed by rules which the Committee prescribe. Their office is to counsel and direct the Agent in carrying out the principles of the Society, and to give advice in relation to such local matters as may be submitted to them by the Executive Committee. The persons composing a Board of Agency, are selected for their intelligence and interest in this cause, and their influence in promoting it; and are so distributed over the field as to secure a personal acquaintance with its condition. The Agent of the Society is also the Secretary of the Agency with which he is associated.

These boards of counsel might not have been necessary, had the ecclesiastical bodies on the ground been able and disposed to pay sufficient attention to the missionary work, and to act as its directors in their respective bounds. But the ministers composing them are usually scattered over a wide extent of territory, and meet but seldom, and only at seasons when they are much occupied with other business; and accordingly it has been necessary in some cases to organize agencies for this specific work. But in other cases, Synods, Presbyteries, and Associations, have chosen to act as Auxiliaries to the Society, examining into the condition of the destitute within their bounds, and recommending the appropriate action for their relief. Ecclesiastical bodies thus related to the American Home Missionary Society, act through

Committees of Missions.

The American Home Missionary Society has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the churches in their connection. Accordingly, the commission issued to every missionary requires that his credentials be acceptable to the ministerial body of his denomination, within whose bounds he is appointed to labor. And the various Presbyteries, Associations, &c., are invited to appoint, each, a Committee of Missions from its own members, to receive applications from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a Committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice, in all matters pertaining to missions in the connection to which it belongs. This mode of coöperation has been preferred by numerous ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guaranties to the churches of each denomination represented in the Society, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered, with all the advantage of having the endorsement of the body to which they belong. The advice of such a Committee, acting in the name and by the direction of the ecclesiastical body to which they belong, is regarded as the highest authority in matters pertaining to the standing of ministers and churches in their connection, and has the same influence with the Society, as that of a Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated. Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and gospel order, as not to retain the fellowship and confidence of the great body of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in our land, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected, as a basis of action, by the Executive Committee.

As cases may occur in which the feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any Board of Agency, or Committee of Missions, through whom to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that applications may be vouched by any two ministers of known and approved standing, who can certify to the facts of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sought by the Executive Committee, with as little delay as practicable, from the most authentic sources from which they can be obtained.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs, through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the missionary work, of those whose views of doctrine and church order admit of coöperation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discouraged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and East, along which has passed, from the latter to the former, a silent and invisible current of moral influences, more valuable, if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time, the connection of the Parent Society with the various Associations that act with it, is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

Applications for Aid.

Feeble congregations, applying for aid in supporting the Gospel, are requested to embody in their application the following particulars, viz.:

The name of the church or congregation; the number of communicants, and the average number of attendants on public worship; the denomination and size of congregations immediately contiguous, with the distance to their places of worship; the total amount of salary which the applicants propose to make up, the portion of that salary which they pledge for the given time, and the arrangements that are made for securing it; whether aid is expected from any other source; and the least amount that will suffice from this Society; whether the minister for whom a commission is desired, is the pastor of the church, or if not, whether any arrangements are made or contemplated in the course of the year, with reference to his installment. These statements should be signed by the trustees and elders or deacons, or by a committee of the congregation, and confirmed by the certificates of two or more clergymen, acquainted with the facts. Also,

The name and post-office address of the minister whose services they desire to secure; whether he is a resident of the place in which he preaches, and is engaged in any other calling than that of the ministry; his credentials; and the certificate of two or more ministers of known standing, as to his general character for piety, zeal, and acceptableness, as a minister of the Gospel.

Where the ecclesiastical body with which a church is connected has a "Committee of Missions" to act in their behalf, this Committee are the proper persons to certify the statements of the church, the standing of the minister, and his prospects of usefulness in the place where his services are desired; and the application should be sent to them for their endorsement and recommendation.

Applications, after being properly endorsed and recommended, should be addressed to the care of the Agent (or Secretary of the Agency or Auxiliary) for the region where the applicants reside.

As a general rule, the appropriations of the American Home Missionary Society are for twelve months from the date of the application; at the end of which, if further aid be needed, a new application must be made, containing all the particulars above stated, and endorsed and recommended in like manner. And each congregation applying for renewed aid, should furnish, in addition to other testimonials, the certificate of the missionary, that they have fulfilled their previous pledges for his support.

The address of the Society's Agents and the Secretaries of its Auxiliaries will be found on the cover of its Reports and of the Home Missionary. Where no such medium of communication with the Society exists, applications may be sent directly to the Society's office in New York.

ADDRESSES

At the Twenty Ninth Anniversary.

ADDRESS OF REV. G. W. HEACOCK, OF BUFFALO, N. Y.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

Resolved, That the Gospel of Christ is alone adapted, and alone adequate, to meet the highest wants, and to achieve the highest welfare of man.

Mr. President,—The Resolution which I have read is but the reäffirmation of our faith in the solitary and divine preëminence of the Gospel, as man's highest want and highest blessing. And yet the Gospel is challenged as to its divine character, with the allegation that it lacks too much the vigor, the vitality, and the success which should attend the mission of a divine power. The existence of the multiplied and multiform religious errors of christian lands, of our own land—these are urged in abatement of the claims of the Gospel as a divine power. Why, it is objected, if it be such, has it not long since laid a fixed spell upon these multiform and multiplied incantations of error? There is Infidelism and its irreligion, and almost every other form and progeny of error. Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, and every strange diabolism which the bewildered brain of man can invent, are springing up all over the land, like rank grass by the water-courses. Surely here is work enough to be done in prayer, patience, and faith. There is the old enemy of Christ—Romanism—with its corruptions and superstitions; and last, not least, Mormonism, planting itself by the city of the Salt Lake, and casting away, backward and eastward, its shadow of shame and reproach upon our American Christianity.

But besides these errors, the Gospel is also challenged, as to its divine energy, with the continued existence of great social abuses. Why has it not, long before this, triumphantly rebuked these abuses? Why has it not overthrown them?

Now in reply to all this, we answer: It does not prove that a divine power is not operating in the Gospel, because its processes are not abrupt, sudden, and summary—but just the opposite, gradual and slow. For in the great process of nature, where few will deny a divine energy, we notice amid the grandest evolutions, this patient and gradual progress. The great summits of the mountains are not heaved to heaven in a night, but inch by inch, through the lapse of centuries; first with earthquakes and convulsive throes of the mighty central forces, the great granite ribs of nature are broken—then pressed upward and outward, foot by foot, through vast cycles of time, till finally the slow-rising summits pierce the clouds, and rise to the serene atmosphere where mists and storms are never found. Such is God's power and action in the economy of nature; such also is he in the economy of grace in the Gospel. Slowly the summits of a moral elevation are lifted heavenward. But when once uplifted there and past the region of storms, the height is bathed in perpetual sunshine, and a perpetual serenity. The sun no more goes down on that summit, nor does the moon withdraw herself:

> "Though round its breast the rolling clouds are spread, > Eternal sunlight settles on its head."

To clear up such a morning of clouds and darkness, of mist and murkiness, as that upon which the Sun of Righteousness arose 1800 years ago, demands time. To dissipate the shadows of such a sky, demands that that sun should be nearing its meridian. The first level beam—the first flash of the coming sun—does not lift and roll up like a curtain the heavy fog bank which covers the low lands. No! for hours after the sun has left the horizon, marching to his meridian, that level strata of fog seems as motionless as if it were a strata of granite. Then the surface begins to undulate slowly—then to roll, and break, and separate, rising in fragments of greater or less density, some huge shadows creeping heavily up the mountain sides; others, lighter and more attenuated forms and shapes, still hovering in the atmosphere, but growing more and more shadowy and unsubstantial, till, finally, they pass away. Such is the process in the moral economy, by which the shadows of error are vanquished; not by a process of mechanical pressure and expulsion, but rather of rarefaction.

And thus it happens, that the social abuses of our day, though they look grim and abhorrent enough in this noon of the nineteenth century, yet, bad as they are even now, their features are, beyond all contradiction, vastly mitigated and softened. Cruel as they are at this hour, no man can deny but that greatly their cruelties and horrors have been abated in all christian lands; and as these abuses have been mitigated, so also have these multiform errors been greatly attenuated. They possess little, almost none of that colossal, granite, gigantic immobility which characterized the vast systems of modern heathendom or ancient paganism—great, huge, colossal forms bestriding the mind of a whole empire, and paralyzing it for centuries. An active-minded Yankee will run through half a dozen of these attenuated forms of error, and if not spoiled in the somewhat dangerous process, will come out at the end, in a few years, a somewhat wiser, if not a better man, from the process.

Again: the deep debasement and imbruted deformity of old errors, cannot be, now-a-days, and among us, repeated. There was a time when the dark, degraded, bewildered heart of humanity would recoil at the imposition of no religious system, however gross, however full of abominations. But that time has long since passed in nominally christian lands. This has the Gospel accomplished by enlightening the mind, educating and elevating the moral sentiments of men, even where it has not regenerated the heart. You find an illustration of this statement in the history of French infidelity. Beyond all contradiction, that system gathered tremendous strength and vigor from the very abuses and abominations of Romanism. Jean Paul has said of the French Atheists, that, looking upward for the All-Seeing Eye, they beheld nothing but "a bottomless Death's Eye Socket!" Would it not be more true, though less tragic, to say, that instead of the eye of Infinite and Holy Benignity, they saw glaring down upon them the great sensual eye of the Roman basilisk, and they started back from it with the deep recoil of an irrepressible horror. These men knew better than to bow at such a shrine, and call it a divine one. Why it was as if Rome, with her abominations and cruelties, had hauled down the white banner of Christianity with its red symbol of Redemption, and had run up in its place the black flag of a pirate, and overlaid the very cross on that banner with a Death's head and marrow bones. There was a time and there were people, when even such a signal of Deity had been accepted with abasement and terror, when poor imbruted humanity would have sunk tamely and abjectly down, and prostrated itself to worship even at such an altar. But that time was past then and there; it is here much more than past—it will never return. Such abuses of religion can never, never here be repeated. Rome, in this land, could not for a day enact the unblushing abominations, superstitions, crimes, which she has in other times, and does in other lands. This has the Gospel effected. With all the recriminations, too, with which our modern and most radical reformers challenge the Gospel, no greater, no more fatal calamity could happen to all the reformers of the day, than the loss of this old and much abused Gospel. Why, sir, the very sensibilities and conscience to which these men make their appeal, have been roused and quickened to vitality and vigor by the influence of the despised Gospel. Without that, the efforts of philanthropy would be laughed to scorn. Where were the moral reforms and reformers of Paganism? Sir, the very idea was born of Christianity.

The very soil on which these men have planted their whole enginery of reform, is that which has accumulated and gathered around the Rock of Ages. Sweep that away, and with it would go also every hope of reform, whirling away and down the stream of time with the wreck of every other monstrous form and progeny of social wrong or religious error. Could these who plead for reform, while they would uproot and upturn the Gospel, but succeed in thus destroying the foundations, their success would be only his who was hoisted by his own petard.

Then, again, prerogative has fettered and cramped the free and vigorous action of the Gospel. It has been one of the grand devices of Satan to burden the Gospel with human patronage, as if in itself it were not fully equal to the work it had undertaken. And so it has been proposed to strengthen it by human authority and names; in a word, to lend it a human sanction in some way, as if its divine seal and imprimatur could not be made sufficiently clear; or, being made so, yet it was not enough. But it must be shored up and strengthened by the addition of the authority of members, names, or classes! But, sir, the highest prerogatives of the Gospel are in its very self. The Infidelity of the present cries out to the friends of the Gospel, as if it were our loss: "The days of prerogative are past." Now we echo joyfully back the cry—"The days of prerogative are past!" When you say, "Thank God," we say, "Amen." For what strength has prerogative ever lent to the Gospel? Such strength as the splinter and bandage would lend to the little and healthy limb of a young giant, the strength of compression, repression, and restraint. Thank God, these bands and fetters are snapping and falling off each day, and the Gospel, in itself and for itself, and its own intrinsic worth and weight, and carrying upon itself the broad seal and signature of God, is taking a new, and mightier, and wider hold upon the hearts of men, than it has since the first few centuries of its era. In its influence upon debasing errors, its mitigation of social abuses, its self-emancipation, working out each day more completely from all that binds and fetters it, the Gospel is preparing for itself a wider scope and energy of action. It is not the progress of the age which has conferred this freedom and scope upon the Gospel; but it is the Gospel which has conferred this preparation on the age. The Gospel borrows no progress from any age, but confers upon every age, as it is prepared to receive it, richer and richer elements of benefaction and blessing. If she has not in the past led the nations forward at a more rapid pace of advancement, it was because of their inability to follow the strength of her march. That she is now to lead them forward with more rapid and eager footsteps, seems to be indicated on every hand.

When the Gospel, as a white and newly-descended angel of mercy, stooped with deep pity, even debased and imbruted humanity lay wrecked and weltering. No one then doubted her divinity. The contrast was too strong to admit a moment's hesitation. She was then altogether a divine thing. But now that she has lifted up the world, and blessed it with her sunshine—now, that she has so patiently taken its shames and dishonors upon herself, and so generously put her honors and glories upon it—soiled with conflict, perverted by professed friends, abused by mal-administration, men begin to pretend a doubt as to where both the honors and the shames originally belong, and whether they ought not, at least, to be divided between the two—christianity taking a moderate share of the honors and a generous portion of the defects, while humanity is to take the lion's share of the honors and as little as possible of the shame. Hence comes the new evangel of the absolute religion, with its twin apostles—one in Old England, the other in New England. Newman and Theodore Parker, whose mission it is not only to discredit the fact of a divine Gospel, but also to deny men's need of such a Gospel. Man needs no such special external divine light. He has a light within him—the absolute light which enlightneth every man. It is not Christ, indeed; no, but the absolute sentiment of religion. This sentiment, the great apostle of this absolute faith tells, finds its expression equally in the christian symbols, and in the religious terms of the grim-faced Calmuck, or the human sacrifices of the degraded savage whose hands are besmeared with the blood of his terrible offerings. Now, in the name both of God and humanity, what has man to hope from the unaided help of such a sentiment, which leaves him, by the confession of its own apostles, in the deepest social debasement, and the miserable slave of the most degrading, and bloody, and superstitious terrors? And, besides all this, what has made Mr. Parker and Mr. Newman to differ from the Calmuck and the savage? Is it the possession of this common and absolute sentiment of religion? This cannot be the cause, because it is common to both. We must look elsewhere, then, for the cause which makes them to differ as to their moral states. What is that cause? Had Mr. Parker been born a Calmuck, who doubts but that he would have lived and died a Calmuck, and no other? No unaided internal force should have elevated him above his fellows and companions in darkness. If he differs from such to-day, to what is that difference more palpably and undeniably due, in the face of the sun, than to that ab-extra force, viz.: the influence of that Gospel which he seeks to discredit? But in order to inaugurate the absolute religion, it is necessary thoroughly to invalidate the special claims of Christianity. Hence the possibility of such a revelation has been denied, and, more than this, a blow has been aimed not only at the moral perfection of the christian system, but, also, at the moral perfection of its great center—Christ himself. But let these men know that humanity will not surrender, without a struggle, its divine man. Put out this light and the nations would grope like blind men for the wall. What said your great historian within but a few months past? Did he not hold forth this great fact, a God, incarnate, as the noblest, richest element in all human thought; the mightiest and most benign force in all human history; the richest heritage to man and the nations? And will humanity lightly surrender such a hope? But these opposers of the divine speciality of the Gospel, having stolen some fire from the altars of Christianity, are saying to each other, "come, let us return, burn down both the temple and the altar from which our fire was taken, then the absolute light will shine and our light will appear." Sir, Christianity will prove to the torch of the incendiary what it has to the fagot of the persecutor—asbestos, incombustible, fire-proof!

What will—what can humanity do without its divine man—suffering for its redemption? So dark are the miseries of life, so fierce its ills, personal and social, that we need an expression intense and deep of the divine sympathy and love—without this the world would go mad with sorrow and sin. That intense expression of love we find in the cross and in that alone, in the compassionate sufferings of an incarnated God. Now, if these men say we need no such expression either to soothe or sustain us amid the darkness or the trials of life—if they are determined to launch out upon this sea, so often swept by storms and heaved by tempests, in a cast-iron canoe, with a stone paddle—why, if they will, we must, in the names of Parker, and Newman, and the absolute religion, commit them to the perils of the deep. And may God pity them. But as for ourselves, and we hope the vast mass of our fellows, God forbid that we should go in the boat.

But, sir, not only as contrasted with the absolute religion—but also with the schemes of the socialistic philosophy, had we time to trace the contrast, the Gospel would be seen to be, in the language of our Resolution, "alone adequate and alone adapted to meet man's highest want, and achieve his highest welfare."

But, sir, there is another temper in the public mind opposed to the high claim which we have made for the Gospel as man's highest blessing. This temper fails vividly to realize, or carelessly ignores man's highest want. It assumes that great want to be more social than religious. Now, inasmuch as man's highest relation is his relation to God, as this is superior to all other relations, by just so much is the religious nature in man superior to the social, and its want should be met first of all. It is the grandest necessity—its claim is preëminent, its supply the first and chief aim of the Gospel. Now, I know this saying may provoke the outcry of the mere moral reformer; but I shall yet abide by the conviction and expression. The Gospel, in its bearings and results has a divine side as well as a human side—a side toward God as well as towards man. It blesses as truly, and infinitely more largely by the relations which it creates between man and his God, than by the amenities which it awakens between man and his fellow. When the Gospel, therefore, is preached as a mere evangel of social or civil immunities and blessings—when it is said "we want no other Gospel than this, if your Gospel be not such away with it"—then we affirm that the highest end of the Gospel is ignored, its highest aim discredited, its noblest, its divine side turned away and hidden. Now, sir, we admit, indeed, nay we affirm, that Christianity has led on a whole constellation of reforms. We claim them as her fruit and offspring—that without them she would be as a sun bereaved of its attendant planets. Yet, she walks amid that constellation with the princely splendor of a superior star—infinitely transcending, in her higher and divine elements, while she does not hide them. There is a want in the heart of humanity which no social blessing can fill—nothing but the direct benison, the direct benediction of the great rich heart of God, falling, too, from the very lips of God upon the human soul, can ever reach or ever satisfy that want. Civil rights and social reforms the Gospel draws after it. Yet all these are but her inferior gifts, scattered by the way-side, not the golden goal to which she is leading the footsteps of humanity. The Gospel is as unique, as superhuman, as divine, as ever; as much other and above all other schemes as ever. It is able to lay as mighty a spell as ever upon the individual heart and upon the hearts of great nations. Against all the charms of a ceaseless diabolism, it is as able to work its mighty counter charms. It is the same mine of superior wealth. The glory of the Redemptive scheme is the same glory that excelleth. The personal experience of Christianity is the same sense of ineffable wealth, the same strong impulse to beneficent action. The great bestowment carries with it to the individual soul the same intrinsic evidence and seal of its divinity. Christ, in one word, is the same great desire of the nations, the same great wealth and want of humanity.

Mr. President, among all the instrumentalities in use for the dissemination of this Gospel none can take the preëminence of that class which it is the object of this Society to employ and send forth, viz., living men—a living and loving ministry of the grace of this great Gospel—men whose hearts take on somewhat of that energy of faith, and love, and hope which this Gospel is so well able to inspire. With such messengers, and such a message, under God, the result is as sure as it shall be benign and glorious. Were the Gospel a ministration of terror and wrath you might hope to arrest it. But it is a ministration of divine benignity and blessing. And you cannot arrest it. You could as soon lay asleep the pulses of the infinite heart. It has been well said the symbol of this Gospel is also the Resurrection. It possesses a perennial vigor. Like the undying vitalities of nature, renewing from spring-time to spring-time the life and verdure of the earth; so has the Gospel the exhaustless forces of a moral life, and from age to age, and from the hearts of one generation to another, reproduces at her will the old energy and the old faith. It is this which gives to the hearts of her disciples the sure confidence of triumph. Fill the land with such men and the end is not far off—men who know at once their weakness and their strength—men who can sleep upon the field and rise with each new day's sun as freshly and as joyfully to the strife as if it were but to-day begun.

Address of Rev. W. I. Budington, of Brooklyn, N. Y.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED, That we find in the claims of our Home, the special and most effective claims of the American Home Missionary Society.

MR. PRESIDENT: The name of your Society expresses with equal beauty and simplicity your object. The field of your christian labors is your home. And as there is no word in the language so beautiful and so honorable to our mother-tongue as this, so there is nothing so precious. You have not chosen that Latin word, domestic, which has to do with our houses, but the Anglo-Saxon word, home, which has to do with the heart.

"For without hearts there is no home."

It is not an outward, but an inward thing. It is a moral idea which this word summons before us. It is the world of our affections—the dear, familiar scene upon which our infant eyes first opened, and with which are associated forever our happiest hours. Preëminently fitting, therefore, is this name for your Society; for, as a home is a spiritual thing, it has a natural alliance with religion, which can alone make a home worthy of the immortal spirit. If the homes of America remain such, it will be because the old Teutonic chastity, and respect for woman, still lives in our hearts—because the religion which has covered the heathery hills of Scotland, and the smiling plains of England, with abodes of comfort—nay, and not less the hills of our own New England—it will be because that same religion shall be domesticated throughout the length and breadth of the land.

1. The very name of your Society, therefore, makes its appeal to our common humanity.

We love our home as men; God made us so; and it is inhuman and brutal to be insensible to the honor and prosperity of the land that gave us birth.

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own, my native land!
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned,
As home his footsteps he hath turned,
From wandering on a foreign strand?"

No! It is a universal instinct with our race, and scarcely less dominant than it is universal. On this broad and deep basis rests your Society. It appeals to the principle of patriotism, to the love of home; and to be insensible to that appeal is nothing short of a denial of our common humanity.

2. And not only does it appeal to us as men, but preëminently as Anglo-Saxon men.

We are proud of the race to which we belong, of the stock from whence we came. We love to trace our origin back through the island-home of our fathers to the dim forest glades of Germany—we love to connect together in thought the wild woods of America with the forests of middle Europe, traveling over the wide space that separate them, as we travel over the wide space of time that separates our American Anglo-Saxons from their rude fore-fathers amid the frozen shades of Saxony. We prefer to trace up our ancestral lines to them rather than to the classic Greek or imperial Roman. And why? Tacitus tells us that they had no walled towns or cities, but they had homes. The Teuton built his little hut in some opening of the woods, or on a grassy plain, near by a running stream that pleased him. He lived by himself; but we discern in his humble abode a woman, who shows, by her intelligence and the spirit of her eyes, that she is a companion and not a slave, and that her presence makes for her warrior-lord a home. Even amidst the gloom of savageism we see the light of a certain nobleness of character; and for that nobleness we love the rude German more than the imbecile Roman and Greek, sunk in luxury and emasculated by vice.

Your Society, therefore, appeals not only to the warm love of home in our human hearts, but to the warmer love of our Anglo-Saxon blood. It is our instinct, as a race, to love our home, and our mission to make our home worthy of love. I am no idolater of noble blood, either in families or nations; on the contrary, I believe that every race that have acted an honorable part on the stage of human history, have certain traits which are admirable, and which fit them to contribute to the general good of humanity. On this account we hail with inspiring anticipations the commingling of blood and nationalities on our own soil. The Anglo-Saxon blood underlies, and no doubt will continue to underlie, our national character; but it has received, and is destined for generations to receive, important modifications, the influx of new traits, the heightening or the amelioration of others. All we ask and hope for is, that our original and historic character shall not be inundated and lost, but that the current of our history shall flow on in the direction which our suffering and heroic fathers gave it, and in the channel which we believe the God of Providence has scooped out for it.

3. So that, upon the whole, it is chiefly in our character as Americans that this Society appeals to us.

We have such a home, that if, as men, it were not natural for us to love it, and as Anglo-Saxons, it were not our especial fondness to gather about it our heart's treasures, we could not fail, as Christians, to love the land that gave us birth.

1. Behold, what a magnificent land it is!

I do not mean to present any of those startling numbers with which we are already familiar. They are so vast, that we fail to get any real conceptions from them. We only know, that for extent, for variety of climate, for productiveness, for mineral treasures, and for commercial facilities, no country on the globe rivals ours. What eye is quick enough in detail, and comprehensive enough in extent of outline, to travel intelligently over the map of the Union? From that great State on our northeastern frontier, her interior dark with the living glories of a forest sufficient to build the navies of the world; and her coasts indented with bays and harbors sufficient to float those navies,—from the sea-like lakes strung upon our northern line, and the ever-sounding Niagara in the midst, placed between those inland seas and Old Ocean, like Nature's priest, with her misty columns of incense, ascending morning and evening—an eternal tribute of praise—from the long line of our seaboard, the savannahs of the South, the prairies of the West—to the rising states and cities of the Pacific seaboard—what a boundless extent of country, and how filled with the destinies of mankind! God has even been sowing the sands of the desert with the seeds of a problem, which it will take all our political wisdom and christian forbearance to solve. But what is to be the character of the millions so soon to occupy this broad belt of land, reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific? I believe, under God, our Home Missions are to be a principal means of answering this question, as the Christian and the philanthropist would have them answered.

2. Let us bear gratefully and solemnly in mind, that our free institutions give a fair and open field. We can ask none fairer or more open. And if the political philosopher could adopt the maxim, that truth has no more to ask than an open field in which to meet error, much more may the Christian adopt the principle; for beside the native, inherent power of truth, we have also the influence of the Holy Spirit. In the name of God, we are ready to meet the issue in the coming struggle. Relying upon the truth, and upon the God of truth, we bid defiance to Romanism and to Infidelity in all its shades. We have no better field in which to contest our supremacy, no other weapons than those we have, and no other prize than what is set before us,—the redemption of this our home for Christ and for Humanity!

3. And here let me say, facts most abundantly show that a free and open field, such as lies before us in this land, is all we need to ask, and is most favorable to Protestant Christianity.

A gentleman whom I delight to rank upon my list of friends, recently made a short tour into the western country, and came back with a heavy heart, in regard to many aspects of the cause of Christ there. The intense worldliness generated by having so much to do, and stimulated by such surprising facilities for amassing wealth, seemed to him to give but little place to religion, and little hold upon the heart. He thought there was no just sense of personal accountability, for the maintenance of religious institutions, and churches were at the West drawing their support from the East, individual members of which were worth, not their thousands, but their hundreds of thousands. I do not doubt the accuracy of my friend's observations, for he is not less distinguished for his acumen, than for his eminent service to the Church. It is the inference, inferable from these statements, that religion, under a voluntary system of administration, has not kept pace with the wants of the population, that I am disposed to question.

Under the impression that a compilation of such facts would show that religion, at the West, has been relatively losing ground, I made the appeal to the late western returns, fearing the result, but determined, however sad it might be, to make it only an argument for greater efficiency in Home Missions.

And here let me say, that I do not doubt that, in some localities, my friend's worst fears may be realized; and for aught I know, it may have been so within the last five years, or since the census was taken. But the fact which discovered itself to my researches was not less encouraging than it was surprising; and so surprising was it to me, that in my then state of mind, it was some time before I could realize that the figures were exactly the reverse of what I had been led to expect.

Comparing New England with the Northwest States, i. e., the oldest with the youngest, New England has provided 69 per cent. of her population with church accommodations, and the Northwest 60 per cent. The average value of these churches, indeed, is in the one instance $4,000, and of the other $1,000; showing, simply, that while New England worships in houses of frame or stone, the Northwest worships in log cabins, or, at best, frame houses. Of the cities, again, comparing the oldest with the youngest, Boston provides church accommodations for 56 per cent. of her citizens, and Chicago for 73 per cent. I do not bring out these facts as affording a basis of self-confidence, or presumption as regards our future, but as evincing, and as it seems to me, evincing beyond our most sanguine expectations, the singularly favorable action of our voluntary system, resting directly upon the conscience of the church, in spreading the institutions of the christian religion.

Let us take our Northwestern States,—that large, new, destitute region,—with all the disadvantages of large importations of Romanist and Infidel masses from Europe, and we are glad to institute the comparison between it and the fairest exemplifications of the workings of a State church. We do not believe that the English church, with all the advantages of her immense wealth, and the devotion of her sons, could by any possibility have supplied an equal amount of population, over such an extent of country, and within so brief a period, with church accommodations for so large a proportion as 69 per cent., and we appeal to what she has done for her colonies, and for our own country when we were in a state of colonial dependence. We do not charge English Christians with a want of love to their churches, or of zeal for our common Christianity. On the contrary, we believe that but for the repression and hindrance of a State church, the members of the Church of England would have planted her institutions wherever Englishmen went, from the North to the South along our sea-board; and instead of the Protestant Episcopal Church of these United States practically dating her existence, or at least the history of her growth and prosperity, from the establishment of our independence, she would have dated from the settlement of Virginia, as Congregationalism does from the settlement of Massachusetts. So that it comes to this, that if we do not succeed in the work to which we pledge ourselves, it will not be because of outward hindrances, but because as men, as Anglo-Saxons, and as Americans, we do not love our home, or loving, are not true to her claims.

4. This allusion to the heroic days when our fathers first settled New England, suggests another thought which should impel us to be faithful to the religious wants of the land. For when we look at the magnitude of our rising nation, and the ages of fearful activity through which it is to live; when we remember that Rome was not built in a day, and that the building of a house or an empire corresponds in time to its majesty and the age through which it is to last, the two centuries which separate us from our forefathers sink to nothing; we learn that we belong to the same age with them, the age of foundation-laying, and we may emulate their fame as founders, for we share their work. When that long, unwritten, and, as yet, unimagined history shall be filled out by our country; when that long track of time shall lie behind the historian of that distant future, the first two, three, and possibly four centuries will be classified as belonging to the formative period; next will come the era of development, when the seed sown shall grow, the joints and sinews of the nation shall be compacted into the vigor of manhood; and lastly, will come the ages of fruit, the final results which our nation's life has wrought out, the contributions we shall make to the government of God. Shall we have, as did Rome, an age of decline and fall. We hope that the final issues, in which our American history shall result, will be the dawnings of a bright day, the ushering in of a kingdom to which all others are but ministers.

But it is our privilege to be standing among the fountain-heads of this unwritten history. We are in our work, we shall be seen by after ages to be, shaking hands with our Puritan Fathers. As they laid the small foundations along the outer rim of our empire, we are stretching the lines of the main edifice across the continent. As every stone they laid is now pressed by a masonry, which we fondly hope and believe to be the pride of the whole earth, so the courses which we are to lay from the slopes of the Alleghanies to those of the Rocky mountains, and along the milder coasts of the Pacific, will forever underlie a structure, and bear up an empire, to which neither Greece, nor Rome, nor Great Britain can furnish a parallel. If there be, therefore, any spirit of heroism in us,—if any touch of love for those old historic times,—if any reverence for the graves of our ancestors, we shall be true to the claims of our home, and so to the claims of the American Home Missionary Society.

5. But there is one more consideration afforded by the Providence of God.

It seems to me, that this Society never met under circumstances so impressive. The events of the past year have given a significancy to the position of our country which it never had before, and by consequence an importance to Home Missions they never before appeared to possess.

The dubious character of the contest in which England finds herself engaged, nay, the already disastrous results of it, have materially affected the position of England among the nations of Europe, and by so much have jeoparded and impaired the position of Protestantism. If England should retire from her place as the leading power of Europe—if she be compelled to resign the scepter of international influence, we cannot contemplate the succession without pain and misgiving, and pray that the mother may not lose her place until the daughter be prepared to take it. We would not have Russia, the impersonation and standard-bearer of despotism, assume the forfeited primacy of modern civilization. Nor would we have France, now republican and now imperial, now Infidel and now Roman, dominate in the councils of Europe. But England has already lost her prestige, she may lose more; and if so, America becomes the leading representative of Protestantism.

As Christians, we take no pleasure in this prospect. We do not wish to go forth single-handed, but with her, hand in hand, in the maintenance of the free evangelical faith. If we have felt hardly and spoken hardly of Britain, it has been in the days of her pride and power, when refusing to treat us as brethren, and failing to make us vassals, she ruptured the tie between us. If, as individuals, we have grown bitter towards them, it has been because of a real or feigned contempt for our country and our institutions, because of their sturdy ignorance of our statistics, and their careless inability to comprehend our Constitutions, State and National, while they are at pains to acquaint themselves with the petty concerns of some little German Principality.

But in the days of her adversity, we shall forget those causes of alienation, and cherish the memory of our common origin, language, and religion. We shall remember that at the root our interests are the same,—that, in reality, we are, as compared with all other nations, but one people. We shall sharply discriminate between the English government and the English people. And if the history of the siege of Sebastopol shall continue to be a history of the valor of the British soldiers, and of the incompetency of British nobles,—if Sebastopol fall not, it will be a fall of the aristocracy, and we devoutly hope the emancipation of the English Commonalty. But if the time has come for the development of the internal weakness of the British Constitution, if her glory has culminated, we trust, not alone as Americans but as men, for the sake of humanity, that our country will still be the Home of Freedom, of Intelligence, of Religion, and of Power.

Address of Prof. C. B. Haddock, D. D., of West Lebanon, N. H., late U. S. Minister to Portugal.

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED, That we owe to the Old World to sustain and extend the Protestant religion in the New.

The position of this country, Sir, is one of the remarkable features of the age. It is, I think, without a parallel in history. The nearest approach to it, in some important respects, is the present attitude of Russia, a young power like ourselves, and situated on the eastern borders of European civilization, as we may, without much extravagance, be said to be on the western.

Young men lead society in its internal developments; young nations lead the world in the progress of the race. It is this fact more than her million of bayonets, that gives to the hereditary ambition of the Czar of Russia, its fearful portent. A great people, in its youth, in the fresh morning of life, with its energies yet untamed by adversity and its enthusiasm unchilled by experience; why, Sir, there is no such power for good or for evil on the earth. Mistakes may waste its strength, misfortune may crowd its aspect, but its resources are infinite; disaster and defeat, under which age so falters and sinks, only serve to educate the young.

Picture to yourself, Sir, these two young nations, the United States and Russia, on the opposite sides of the great central empire of thought, and art, and luxury, and power, whose fluctuations have engrossed the attention of history for half the age of the world, and whose experience comprises most of all we know of man.

There is Russia, occupying one seventh of the earth's surface, and extending half round the globe, full half of Europe and all of northern Asia. Her eagle waves its black wing from Cronstadt to Sebastopol, from the Baltic to the Pacific. Her monarch is absolute, head of the Church as well as the State; her religion, as loyal as Romanism itself, and better adapted to purposes of State, for it acknowledges no foreign head; her people all full of the enthusiasm of a nation just become conscious of its power, just awakened to a sense of national importance, and devoted to their sovereign as a god upon the earth. Within little more than a century, she has grown, almost unobserved by the rest of the world, from 15,000,000 to 60,000,000; has successively and systematically appropriated province after province from the neighboring states—Finland, a great part of Poland, large districts of Persia and Turkey;—and is now stretching out her avaricious arms towards the shore of the Mediterranean sea. Within a quarter of a century her commerce has doubled. A vast revenue at the disposal of a single will, and devoted to the development of her internal resources, is bringing forward all the arts which minister to national strength, with the vigor and freshness of her own artic vegetation. Young life is throbbing and bounding in all her veins; generating visions of empire and glory as gorgeous and as entrancing as the magic lights of her Boreal skies. The ingenuity and skill of both continents are tempted to her service by large rewards and flattering honors. Such is the gigantic power which we see fortifying itself and training itself for aggression and dominion in the East—an absolute despotism by divine right—the natural and necessary enemy of liberty, jealous of all free thought, all democratic sentiment every where.

On this side of the world (and by our arts of navigation, brought, we may say, alongside of Europe,) is the Republic of the United States—the embodiment of popular liberty, as Russia is of despotism—young in years and young in heart, with a form of government which naturally and easily molds itself to the expression of the public mind, and with the Protestant religion—a religion which aims, by general education and the free spirit of Christ, to make every citizen a king and a priest unto God. Our theory is, the least possible government; the utmost practicable liberty; the greatest happiness of the greatest number—absolute social equality; a State, where, in the eye of the law, all men are equal. In this we are singular; it is our great peculiarity, and most strikingly distinguishes us from all the governments of the Old World—the freest no less than the most absolute.

Under this character we set out in our career; under this character we have risen to our place among the nations. A little more than half a century we have grown from 3,000,000 to 30,000,000; have created a commerce hardly second to that of England; a navy that shuns no flag upon the sea, a social order, a tranquil industry, a confiding enterprise, a domestic purity and happiness, a personal individual consideration unequaled in the world. We cover a territory exceeding that of Rome in the days of the empire. We have just entered upon that self-relying and ambitious period of national life when all things seem possible, and, therefore, are possible. With more than the vitality and enterprise of Russia, we are, in principle, in purpose, and in destiny, her natural antagonist. If the old order of things under which Europe and the world have suffered for so many centuries, is to be perpetuated, it will be by the success and prevalence of the great power that now overshadows the East, and is planting its iron foot upon the romantic shores of those historic seas, where Liberty began her triumphs, and the Gospel achieved its first miracles.

Thus situated, Sir, what is our proper mission? To stand still, an idle spectator of the conflict between civilization and barbarism, between a free Gospel and a despotic church? No, Sir. To imitate the empires of history, and run again the insane career of conquest and ruin? No, Sir. To seclude ourselves behind the great sea, and shut up our ports, and harden our hearts against the oppressed of other lands, who long and labor to enter into our rest and partake of our blessings? No, Oh! no, Sir. We know the heart of the stranger, for we were strangers ourselves once. To take arms and do battle with France and England against Russia, hacking the limbs off the colossal power which threatens the liberties of Europe? To watch the liquid gates of his empire, and chase him back when he sallies out beyond the limits of his proper domain? All this, some may think, very well; but, Sir, it were very little. A people that in the enthusiasm of patriotism, burned their old, beautiful capital, lest an enemy should find shelter in it, how much cares such a people for Sebastopol, or Cronstadt, or St. Petersburg? Were the Crimea filled with Americans, as it is with Russians, how many of us would wait for the question of right to be settled between us and a proud invading army? Sir, we should fight for the last fortress on the shore, so long as a man lived to defend it; and when it could be held no longer, we should, like our fathers, flee to the mountains. No power could subdue us; and it looks to me very much as if the subjects of the Czar and the Czar himself, were made of the same stuff. When a nation's territory is invaded, desperate resolution reigns within and new sympathies are awakened without. However, we ought to feel, in regard to this great conflict, whatever may be the issue of it, there can be no doubt about our own practical duty; our mission is pacific; our proper weapons are not carnal, but spiritual; and, thank God, they are mighty.

Our first duty is to set the world a living, lasting example of liberty and happiness—the liberty and happiness which our fathers sought and found here, a liberty and a happiness which nothing but the Gospel has ever produced, which nothing but the Gospel ever can produce. The happiness and the liberty which we enjoy suppose a degree of perfection in man nowhere attained without the Gospel, and which it is the very end of the Gospel to produce. It is in Christ, only, that we are made, in the highest degree, fit for freedom, capable of true social happiness. It is by apostles, and prophets, and evangelists, and pastors, and teachers, that we come, in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man. The Bible alone has described a perfect man; the Bible alone has exemplified a perfect man; the Bible alone can make a perfect man; and it is only as we approximate the ideal of perfection, as the Bible has delineated it, that we are qualified for self-government, fitted to maintain and enjoy free institutions, and to transmit them to our children. Thus, only, can we present them as a model and a motive to the world. Sir, I challenge the enemies of Christianity to name a trait of the good citizen that is not a feature of the perfect man of the Bible, or to name a trait of the good man of the Bible that does not render him a better citizen, and is not, indeed, necessary to the full enjoyment of perfect civil liberty.

I do not say that this is the only good we can do to the Old World; but it is a good so great that I lose sight of every other in the contemplation of it. Whatever other beneficence the spirit of Christianity may devise, the silent power of an exemplary national life appears to me to be our greatest charity to mankind. To be good is to do good always; to perfect ourselves is, in the highest degree, to benefit our fellow men.

In this view, Sir, the mission of the United States has something grand in it beyond the ordinary lot of nations. Providence has given us means and an opportunity of usefulness infinitely more to be coveted than fleets, and armies, and all the vulgar instruments of power. At no period has national example been so mighty and so immediate in its influence. We cannot live unto ourselves; we speak to the world; we act in the sight of all men; our light cannot be hid; we shine, as we rise, upon the mountain tops and down into the lowest valleys. England, herself, feels our power more than her most conservative statesmen like to acknowledge; it is felt in Russia; Germany and the Peninsula are excited by it to aspire after liberty; the whole of southern and central Europe, impoverished and enfeebled by bad government and a paralysing religious system, listen to the story of our experience with vague wonder and delight. Cultivated and liberal men there, even in Spain and Portugal where neither the Government nor the Church are interested to promote the prevalence of popular intelligence on moral and political questions, betray a thorough acquaintance with our institutions and intense curiosity in regard to the minute details of our social and domestic life. The Governments of the continent seem little aware to what extent the democratic spirit is diffused among their subjects; the most jealous and the most alarmed see not half the cause they have for alarm. In Portugal I am sure, and I have no doubt in the whole Peninsula, the time is not very far off when nothing will be wanting but the steady light of our example, and a few leading minds, to kindle a fire which the blood of patriots would not be able to extinguish, a fire which, fanned by the breezes of heaven, will burn over and clear up the loveliest land on which the sun shines for a harvest of truth and love, of liberty and happiness, which the sun and the moon will be glad to see. No doubt we are vain enough of our position as a people; but our true power, exerted at this moment upon the continent and in England, and exerted more and more every day, has not begun to be appreciated by us. I do not think there is any influence at work in Europe to be compared with it, or that there ever was an influence exerted by one nation upon another to be compared with it—the influence not of armies carrying devastation and ruin to the abodes of industry and comfort, not of navies vexing the sea and terrifying the land, not of state intrigue and diplomatic artifice, but of truth, of character, of happiness—the influence of the beautiful and glorious example of a free, prosperous, christian people. We have only to be ourselves what we should be, what we may be, what we must be, what we can be only by the grace of God, through the Gospel of his Son, a nation of good and true men—freemen, freemen all, such as Christ makes free—and God never armed a people with such power.

To the Old World we are indebted for the greatest gift which one people can receive from another, the gift of the Bible and the institutions of the Gospel; and, next to this, a gift such as no land, besides, ever did receive from another, the gift of a race of great and good men, holy men of God, who spake and acted as they were moved by the Holy Ghost—Puritans of England and Huguenots of France—the very flower of the christian civilization of Europe, expelled from their native lands, like the apostles from Jerusalem, by Providence, to found new States in the New World.

The debt of love which every nation owes to its neighbor is augmented, in our case, by a debt of gratitude, which we never can fully pay. If unmindful of it, we shall be wanting in regard for the memory of our fathers, undutiful and untrue, as the children of men who loved their native country less only because they loved liberty more. We owe it to the Old World, Sir, to cherish the institutions of the Gospel in the New. Every convert to the faith of Christ here is a new witness to the value of our unsealed, unchained Bible. Every church erected in our western villages, every school house planted on our western borders, is a new light to gladden the hearts of the suffering masses of mankind. Every minister you station in any part of the land is a missionary of grace and freedom to the whole East.

I can overlook the wrong which our fathers suffered under the oppression of misguided governments; I can forget the relentless cruelty which drove them from under the parental roof, and dried up the charities of home, for them; but I cannot forget that we owe to the place of our fathers' birth, the scene of their trials for Christ, their sufferings for liberty, and to the race from which they sprang, whatever we enjoy above the common condition of humanity. For our freedom, our intelligence, our christian institutions, our habits of social life, our chief personal and domestic privileges and blessings, we are, under God, indebted to the christian civilization of Europe.

For such benefits, what less ought we to do; what greater or more appropriate return can we make, than to perpetuate and extend the invaluable principles and institutions of the Gospel in our own land? It has pleased God, in these last days, to raise out of the sea a new Continent, another, a nobler, a more wonderful Pharos for the nations; it is our duty to see that its light is kept burning.

Prophecy and Providence both teach us to hope—both are full of promise; the earth is to have a millenium—a more perfect state, the last blissful result of its long and painful experience—a consummation worthy of the God who made it, fit to crown the history of him for whom it was made. This happy consummation is to be a victory—a triumph, the glorious issue of a great struggle—the conflict of renovated christian mind against principalities and powers—against spiritual wickedness in high places. In this war, so far as we can now see, this country is to take the lead of the hosts of truth and freedom. May the noble army all be baptized with the baptism of the Spirit; may they put on the whole armor of God. I am only sorry that we have not a more appropriate ensign. The Eagle, the rapacious tyrant of the heavens—the prince of the power of the air—let us leave him, Sir, to Rome, and Russia. Let our standard rather be the Dove, or the Lamb—the Dove, that descended upon the head of Jesus at his baptism—the Lamb, that when our victories are complete and a renovated, ransomed world shall turn its grateful eyes to heaven, will be seen seated on the throne with God!

MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS.

FROM THE PUBLICATIONS AND CORRESPONDENCE OF THE SOCIETY.

A Good Investment of Labor.

Give us then, O ye Christians of the East, give us a tenth, yes, a fifteenth part of the money and men expended on the Sandwich Islands, and in half the time, we will show you in California, results of manifold more importance to the world. Twenty or more little churches are taking root, and gathering strength; and if they can be increased in number, by the formation of new ones here and there as the way opens, the prospect for good to the world is bright, is animating. We are a wicked people. You know more about that than you do of the influences working out renovation. But we need power to follow up those influences, and keep them pressing at every point, as the Prince of Darkness yields. The men you have sent are good men, and true. We are all of one mind. Give us time and your prayers, and you shall see. Remember we are but four or five years old yet; let us have five years more, and then you may judge. I know your great care of so great a country. But importance varies with localities, and we appeal to you and the christian world, if this coast does not present extraordinary claims! We earnestly hope that no suitable man will be detained for want of means; and of course we say again, as long ago, an unsuitable man cannot live here.

Christian Emigrants Appreciated.

Nothing can be more encouraging to your missionaries, of a worldly nature than to welcome christian families to these destitute fields. None but missionaries can realize their joy, on entering the dwelling of a stranger, to find that family prayer is sustained, that there is a long-cherished love for the Gospel, and a desire to enjoy its benefits, and share its responsibilities. With what pleasure does he learn that they have long been regular attendants at prayer-meetings, and that they are determined to sustain one in their neighborhood, that they have all been either teachers or scholars in the Sabbath school, and that all the family can sing. It does more to encourage and cheer his heart, than the news of a discovery of a gold mine, or even than the announcement that a railroad is to be run through his town. While your missionaries are longing and praying for the coming of gospel ministers to supply these waste places, they are also pleading for a large emigration of self-denying, godly families, to come and plant this country over with christian firesides. Oh! if our voice could reach across the Alleghanies, we would beg those numerous christian families, who can be spared just as well as not—"Come over and help us!"

The Molding of the Future.

The contributions from your Society are gratefully received and remembered. Oh! how many communities would be destitute of the word of life, and how many souls lost, were it not for the timely aid afforded by your Society! Oh that the church of Christ in all her membership, North and South, East and West, would feel that, under God, they have the molding of this nation's, and of the world's future, that the truths of the Gospel constitute the pillars, and the only pillars, upon which national greatness can safely rest, and that the promulgation of these, and their exemplification in life, is the great mission of the church "which is his body!" How should every heart swell with emotion, and every hand labor in this blessed cause!

Necromancies.

Among all the isms and obstacles with which we have to contend here at present, "Spiritualism" is the most rampant. There has been a great revival of this delusion here of late. Simon Magus was not more extolled, or believed in, than have been some of these pretended mediums—holding their conclaves on the Sabbath, and calling thousands together to witness their ludicrous, silly, and sometimes impious performances. But, God be praised, not one of our members has yet been drawn away after them.

More Necromancy Still.

The prevalence of Spiritualism around us has largely contributed to this result. They are, theologically, infidels, and gain credit for their abominable doctrines, by a pretended intercourse with the spirits of the dead. They go to great lengths here. They run quite away from Judge Edmonds. They go with Fanny Wright in denouncing the law of the marriage relation as all wrong. Many of them deny the Bible altogether; others will deny those parts that do not suit them. They gain such influence over the minds of those inclined to skepticism, as to lead them out into open opposition to the truth. Many of the world, and some of the church, are more or less affected by their dogmas. Frequently itinerant lecturers come along, disseminating the vilest doctrines under the guise of Spiritualism. Under all these adverse influences, we are scarcely able to obtain a candid hearing for the good old doctrines of the Bible. Though my congregations are good and attentive under preaching, there is such a restlessness on religious subjects, that the truth makes no permanent and abiding impression upon the heart and the conscience of men. What will be the result of all this agitation and fermentation, it is difficult to see. Were the church but faithful to God, we would have no fears for the result. And as it is, our hope is only in God. He reigns, and in his own good time he can make clear the darkest sky. We mean to toil on, and pray on, encouraged by the hope that the kingdom will yet be given to the saints of the Lord.

Romish Intolerance.

In a neighboring French village, entirely Catholic, lived a poor family, that belong to our church. As they resisted all solicitations from the priest and bigoted neighbors, they were exposed to persecution. One day the father called on me, being in great trouble. His child was lying dead in his house, and would not be permitted to be interred in the village cemetery. We succeeded in getting a burying-place in a private cemetery of the neighboring village. But no one would assist this unhappy family. The father must go away to dig the grave. I followed with the carriage. When I arrived at the burying-ground I found the grave half digged; the poor father, overwhelmed by sorrow and fatigue, had fainted, and was lying on the ground. I must myself finish what he had begun. So was the child at last interred.

Red-Republican Liberty.

The infidel Germans are assuming a lawless attitude here. Our village authorities require all saloons to be closed on the Sabbath. They reply, "We sold ardent spirits under an arbitrary government, when we pleased, and this is a free country, and we will not be controlled in the matter." They have hoisted their red-republican flag, and constructed a bower near the village, where, with their barrel of beer, they spend their Sabbaths.

A Quick Cure.

A few of them were prosecuted, last Monday, for keeping open saloons on Sunday. They at first refused to pay their fines. One of them went to bed, feigning sickness, in hope to avoid being taken to jail. The sheriff sent for a physician. When the invalid found that a certificate from the physician was necessary, to make his plea of sickness valid, he concluded to get up and dress himself, paid the doctor and his fine, and went about his business again.

Oh! if we could have had the Maine Law.

Our saloons are enticing some of our most promising youth to ruin. Intemperance and gambling are increasing. Last week, I had to attend the funeral of a man who died of delirium tremens. A few years ago he was a man of distinguished abilities, and a promising member of this church; but rum proved too strong for him. On his dying bed, he tried to cast himself upon Christ for mercy, and wished me to pray for him.

Some of his associates wept profusely at his funeral; but they returned to their saloons, to follow him to the drunkard's grave. Oh! if we could have obtained the Maine Law last winter, these men might have been saved.

The Backsliding Father and his Little Child.

A short account of the conversion of a man who is now a member of my church may not be out of place here. He has a family of three children, the youngest a boy of five or six years. Twelve years ago, in a season of religious interest in another town, he made profession of his faith, and moving to the county seat of this county soon after, there, with his wife, joined the Congregational church. For three or four years, he maintained family worship, and was attentive to religious duties. After leaving that place for a year, he again returned, and grew cold, neglected his duties, and was finally cut off from the church. Since then, he has been a wicked man. He has in that time been to California and returned. So profane did he become, that he requested his wife to check him, as he would utter oaths almost unconsciously. For a time she tried to do so, but finding it of no avail, ceased her efforts. Last spring his little boy was sick nigh unto death. One day he was in the room with him, and becoming irritated, uttered an oath. The child, with deep sorrow depicted upon his face, looked up to his mother and asked her "What makes Pa swear so?" The question went home to the father's heart. It continued to ring in his ears. Soon after this, the family moved into this neighborhood. * * * A friendly evening visit was soon paid to this family. After conversation for a little time upon matters of general interest, the subject of religion was introduced. Then it was discovered that the great deep of that father's heart was broken up. He was on the borders of despair. He had been a professed Christian, and thought once that he knew what religion was; but the Scriptures taught that it was "impossible for those who had been once enlightened, if they shall fall away, to renew them again to repentance." What could he do? Must he relinquish the idea that he had ever known Christ? or, must he come to the conclusion that there was no hope for him? He felt as if he had lost all control of himself—as if his passions were his master, and that if there were no help from without himself, he must eternally die. He believed family prayer a duty, but felt that it was a great cross for him to bear, since he had lived before his household in such a wicked manner. At the close of the interview, by his own request, a chapter in the Bible was read, and prayer offered, and the necessity of calling his family together, confessing to them his neglect of duty, and taking up the cross, was urged upon him. The next morning he did all this; and the same day the little boy went to see his pious grandmother, who lived near by, and said to her, "Pa reads in the Bible and prays now, and isn't going to swear any more." He seems now, to himself and to others, a miracle of grace. He seems to fear nothing more than that he shall neglect some duty, and thus grieve the Spirit of God. He said to me, a few days since, that the more he thought of his past life, the more he felt that he did have a spark of grace twelve years ago, but only a spark compared with what he now enjoys.

The Blind Girl at her Father's Funeral.

We have been called to follow to the grave one of our number who has been an acting Deacon in our church for some years. His death was peaceful. We had already buried his wife, who was also a decided Christian and a worthy member of our church. Among a numerous family of children, they had one young daughter who was blind, and who had for a time past been attending the blind asylum at Janesville. She was greatly attached to her father, and he to her. He died quite suddenly, while she was away. She was sent for, but did not arrive until the people were all assembled at his funeral. The scene was most affecting. The services were being commenced; she was led into the family group, and seated near the coffin: and now, in order to satisfy herself of the fearful reality of what she had heard, but could not see, we presently saw her reaching out her tiny arm, as if to find some token that she was now, verily, a blind orphan! And when her sensitive fingers touched the coffin, she bowed her head in silent grief. It was with difficulty, for the moment, that I could proceed in my discourse. But the most affecting part was yet to come! The services being ended, the lid was opened, and when friends and neighbors had taken their last look of this good man, then the family group gathered around his remains, and she among the number. They looked, and wept. Presently I saw her feeling her way along up to the head of the coffin, until her hand rested on the opening lid. She stood a moment, as if to gather strength, and then with her other hand she withdrew her glove, and her little fingers were placed over upon the cold forehead. They went from that to his ear, his cheek, his eyes, his mouth, his nose, his chin, his neck and his hair, as she had been wont to do in other days, until she had formed on her mind an image of the physiognomy of him whom unseen she had loved. But the voice was not there; and she stood and sighed as if all the world was lost to her. It was too much. I had to turn away and weep!

Influence of Churches.

God never forgets a work of faith, or a labor of love, in whatever department of his service it be performed. But he seems to hold in especial remembrance those works, those labors of faith and love which are designed to realize the idea of his presence on the earth, and to promote his worship among men. The announcement which came to Jacob out of the heavens, "I am the God of Bethel, where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me," was a prelude to a long series of blessings, both temporal and spiritual—all connected back, like so many links in a chain, to that memorable act of consecration, performed twenty years before. And it may be regarded as a standing announcement of God's purpose to bestow similar favors on the children of men in connection with the ordinances of his house; for he has always done it. The tabernacle at Shiloh, the temple at Jerusalem, the synagogue, the church, the chapel, have a history which needs only to be studied, to convince us that they have been fountains of his richest blessings to man; a history which, if written, would throw into comparative shade the halls of science, of justice, of legislation even, as means of elevating the condition of man—his temporal condition, to say nothing about his future state, with which these halls confessedly have nothing to do.

Heaven within the Soul.

"But there is a higher region in the spirit of man, a region in which revolve the orbs of a nobler ideal of life—sympathy with the joys and sorrows of our fellow-tenants of the dust, a benevolent regard for the earthly well-being of our fellow-men, family affection, patriotism, philanthropy. How pure and lovely, often, are these planets of the soul! But they are planets still. Their circuits may be wide and noble, but they revolve never the less about the temporal and the finite. Their prophets, therefore, though they may win the esteem of mankind, can never enthrone themselves in the inner heart of humanity. Lift up thine eyes once more, O child of earth and of heaven! There is a loftier region still within the compass of thy spiritual vision. Behold the objects which ensphere themselves in these upper heavens,—eternal truth, eternal right, eternal justice, divine and eternal love! Here dwells the idea of absolute moral rectitude. Here dwells the idea of perfect holiness. Here dwells the sentiment of duty. Far above the meteors of wealth and fame and pleasure, which gleam amid the clouds and storms of personal interest and personal passion; infinitely beyond even these lesser and planetary lights of life, at which we have just been gazing; from afar, in the deep empyrean of the soul, they look down, with a calm and stellar brightness, upon our evil world, the fixed stars of the human spirit.

Woman in California.

As a general thing, I am sorry to say, the influence of woman in California, so far, has not been what was expected of her. Women of religious professions step into the deep stream of worldliness, along with their husbands, and instead of leading them out, drag them down. Of this I have seen so many instances already, that I feel it should be recorded for general warning to the many who are about to make this country their home. Woman might do wonders here, for temperance, morality, and religion. It is my conviction that there is no place on earth where the same number of people drink so much liquor as in California; and here, as every where else, it brings forth its progeny of vices, and all with fearful precocity. I have seen more liquor drunk in the last two months, by those who are styled ladies, than in all my life before.

California and the Sandwich Islands.

But to us, in the midst of the field, it seems very evident that the addition of so large and so important a region to the sphere of labor of the American Home Missionary Society ought to be the signal for a large increase of its revenue. The churches have the opportunity of erecting, through your agency, a CHRISTIAN STATE on the shores of the Pacific. It has cost nearly 900,000 dollars, in more than thirty years, to make a christian nation of the Sandwich Islanders. The money and the time are not to be mentioned in comparison with the achievement. But we will venture the prediction, altogether fearlessly, that if the christian public will act energetically, and pray earnestly for California, they will have a christian nation here, for a fourth that sum, in a fourth that time, which will exert ten times the influence for Christianity which those Islands now do.

We institute the comparison, not for the sake of disparaging the achievement which has lately been announced; far from it. None hailed the announcement with more joy than we; and if it had cost nine hundred millions, instead of thousands, it would still have been infinitely more than worth its price. But we would have the work which is going on in this land viewed in its true light. It is really, even if not nominally, the founding and rearing of a new christian State, and one whose influence will tell for truth the world over. This did not become a christian State when the arms of a Protestant nation conquered it, or the money of that nation bought it; it did not become such when crowds of men, claiming the name of Christian, came to dig God's gold, and profane his day, his book, his name, in all these hills and valleys. It will become a christian State when sufficient christian teachers come here to gather christian churches, and to bring up to sacred and believing recollection the doctrines and the cross of Christ. And it is with the churches of the East to bring this to pass or not. It does seem to us, in the midst of our toils—joyous beyond expression, save in the view, continually thrust before us, of priceless opportunities gliding by with none to grasp them—it does seem to us that the churches at home, with a privilege before them like that which this country is presenting, must rouse themselves to grasp it, and fill your treasury, and bid you thrust the laborers upon the field.
